ROOSEVELT OPENS CAMPAIGN

PROMISES CUT IN COSTS AND LOWER DEFICIT

Makes It Clear He Will Run Again.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Slashing savagely at New Deal critics in defense of his alphabetical recovery program from the AAA to the WPA, President Roosevelt today told the nation that extravagant federal spending was over and the country can look forward with assurance to a decreasing deficit.

Mr. Roosevelt spoke at a homecoming celebration staged in his adopted state before 100,000 jubilant Democrats jammed into Grant Field, the stadium of Georgia Tech. His address, a major political utterance in the reelection campaign he opened in his western tour last September, constituted an accounting of his stewardship since March 4, 1933.

Sounds Campaign Keynote.

The President reviewed the economic and social advances made since that date, attributing all gains to his brain trust experiments. In the review he sounded the keynote of the campaign he will wage, concluding with the first definite announcements of his candidacy with the assertion that American life had improved in the last two and one-half years and would continue to do so "if I have anything to do with it."

In the summary Mr. Roosevelt hailed the accomplishment of his greatest effort of the year—the putting of 3,000,000 employables on relief to work by Dec. 1. He announced that on Wednesday 3,125,000 persons were at work under the 4 billion dollar works relief program and others have received orders to report to work in a few days.

He did not mention that the job goal deadline had originally been set for July 1, was postponed until Nov. 1, and pushed back a second time to Dec. 1. He also avoided mention of the 3,500,000 job quotas of the earlier deadlines.

Lashes His Opponents.

The President's case for the New Deal was punctuated with verbal lashing of administration opponents in political and industrial life. The brunt of his attack was aimed at former President Herbert Hoover, who has recently emerged from political retirement in a series of thrusts against government by experimentation.

Throughout the entire address he sprinkled allusions to the years preceding his inauguration with particular emphasis on the four years Mr. Hoover occupied the White House. These he designated variously as "that orgy of prosperity" and "those fool's paradise years," to conclude with an assertion that "the mechanics of civilization came to a dead stop on March 3, 1933," the day before his inauguration.

Defends Lavish Spending.

In building up to his pledge to decrease the deficit Mr. Roosevelt defended his lavish spending. He asserted that the public debt was increased by Hoover from 17 to 21 billions and under the New Deal from 21 to 29½ billions, asking that it be noted that the last figure includes a working balance of 1½ billion dollars in the treasury and nearly 4½ billions of recoverable assets.

In minimizing the mountain debt the President recalled that early in his administration he summoned bankers to the White House to ask them what they thought the debt could rise to without serious danger to the national credit. Their answer, he said, was the country could stand a debt of between 55 and 70 billion dollars. He pointed that if such an estimate could be made at that date the country could stand more today when the country's credit is higher than any other nation in the world.

Avers Peak Passed.

"As things stand today," he followed through, "and in the light of a definite and continuing economic improvement, we have passed the peak of appropriations; revenues without the imposition of new taxes are increasing and we can look forward with assurance to a decreasing deficit.

"The credit of the government is today higher than that of any other great nation in the world, in spite of attacks on that credit made by those few individuals and organizations which seek to dictate to the admin-

DR. BREASTED SHOWS GAIN IN N. Y. AFTER ATTACK OF MALARIA

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Word from Presbyterian hospital tonight was that Dr. James H. Breasted, noted orientalist, confined here with an attack of tropical malaria, was "getting along very nicely."

Dr. Breasted arrived yesterday on the Italian liner Conte di Savoia and was examined by Dr. J. Bentley Squier in his cabin.

Dr. Breasted recently completed a tour of inspection of the various expeditions of the oriental institute of the University of Chicago of which he is the director. He sailed from Naples on Nov. 20 and it was the opinion of Dr. Giovanni Valenzi, the ship's doctor, that Dr. Breasted had probably contracted the disease in Egypt.

While in the east he obtained the permission of the Persian government to remove the 30,000 Elamite cuneiform tablets, found several years ago in Persepolis, to Chicago for decipherment.

Sample Good, Trial Should Be a Thriller

There was much more than the usual amount of excitement around the Des Plaines street branch of the Municipal court yesterday when Mrs. Mary Conroy, 36 years old, 5925 South California avenue, was arraigned on a charge of obtaining $1,000 under false pretenses from J. Edward Cordon, 4441 Lowe avenue.

Mrs. Conroy, a blonde, is employed as a clerk by the board of education. It is alleged that she assured Mr. Cordon, organist of St. Gabriel's Catholic church at 45th and Wallace street, that she could get him a job as music supervisor in the schools for the $1,000 he paid her, and that she failed in the promise.

Hint Brings Hodes On the Run.

She is also alleged to have argued with Mr. Cordon that the price for the job was not exorbitant, in view of the fact that she had to "make a split with an official in the city hall."

This implication caused the city hall to take more than usual interest in the case, and Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes appeared in court to aid Assistant State's Attorney John M. Long in the prosecution. He explained later that, since the good name of the city hall was involved, he was determined to get the whole truth and see that punishment fell upon the guilty.

Mrs. Conroy, who was arrested Wednesday and released on bonds, arrived in the Des Plaines street police station about noon, accompanied by her husband, Edward, who was formerly a city fireman. The court is on the second floor of the station and the defendant was sitting in the squad room [a more pleasant place than the courtroom full of persons awaiting trial] when Mr. Cordon arrived.

Get Set for the Uproar!

That was when the excitement began. The organist was accompanied by a woman who made what is technically known as a "pass" at Mrs. Conroy. This threw Mrs. Conroy into a fit of hysterics. Her screams reverberated through the somewhat rickety station. Ex-Fireman Conroy caught the contagion and began announcing that he could lick practically anybody—or maybe everybody—present.

Hearing the commotion, the district

GERMANY REVEALS START OF WORK ON THIRD BIG ZEPPELIN

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Germany is building a third giant Zeppelin, an official announcement said today.

The new ship, which is already under construction, will be called the LZ 130, it was said. It will be a sister ship to the LZ 129, which will soon be ready for service.

The announcement said the LZ 130 will be completed in the Friedrichshafen hangar after the LZ 129 is moved out.

CONG. O'BRIEN HELPS DEDICATE NEW POSTOFFICE

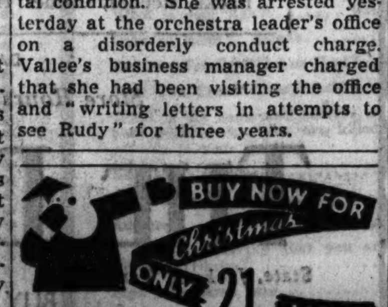
The new $41,000 postoffice in Melrose Park was dedicated last night. Congressman Thomas J. O'Brien, 4858 Washington boulevard, a Democrat, who represents the Sixth Illinois district, was the principal speaker.

"The people of Melrose Park should be thankful for this magnificent new structure, and if you ever want a bigger one I'll be able to help you get it," he said. This was said to have been the first appearance of Congressman O'Brien at a public gathering since he and others were robbed in a handbook at 27 South Dearborn street on Nov. 7.

Postmaster John D. Larry of Melrose Park said the new postoffice, which is at 801 Broadway, would be open for business Monday. The dedication was under the auspices of the Melrose Park Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis club, and West Lake Street Business Men's association.

Hold Woman Who Says She Is Rudy Vallee's Wife

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—An attractive woman who told a magistrate she was the wife of Rudy Vallee and the mother of six children by him was committed to Bellevue hospital today for observation as to her mental condition. She was arrested yesterday at the orchestra leader's office on a disorderly conduct charge. Vallee's business manager charged that she had been visiting the office and "writing letters in attempts to see Rudy" for three years.



MOTHER DAZED; CAN'T TELL WHY SHE SHOT YOUTH

He Drank Too Much, Officers Told.

BULLETIN.

Santa Barbara, Cal., Nov. 29.—(Special.)—The condition of Jesse Livermore Jr., shot by his mother, tonight became more serious, according to physicians who have been fighting for his life since he was taken there early this morning. The physicians said he was bleeding internally and they held little hope that he could recover.

Santa Barbara, Cal., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Jesse Livermore Jr., 15, son of the well known Wall street speculator, was near death in a hospital here tonight with little hope held for his recovery from a rifle bullet wound which police said was inflicted by his mother, Mrs. Dorothea Livermore, during a drunken altercation.

Undersherif Jack Ross said the shooting climaxed several hours of drinking and quarreling in Mrs. Livermore's Montecito mansion early this morning. The shot was fired, Ross said, when the youth dared his mother to shoot him after she had told him she would rather see him dead than drink to excess.

"Go ahead and shoot," Ross quoted the boy as saying after he had brought a .22 caliber rifle into the living room of their home. D. B. Neville of Hollywood, a guest at the home, said he heard the shot and rushed into the room. The boy was on the floor, he said, and Mrs. Livermore was near by with the rifle in her hands.

Too Critical to Operate.

"I've shot my boy," Mrs. Livermore hysterically told Dr. Neville Ussher, when he arrived at the home, he related.

Attendants at the hospital to which the boy was taken said death appeared to be merely a matter of hours. Surgeons had prepared to operate to remove the bullet, which entered his chest and coursed downward through his liver, but his condition became so critical he was placed under an opiate.

Mrs. Livermore, who divorced the stock operator in 1932, also was taken to a hospital. She was hysterical and, according to Undersherif Ross, "too drunk" at the time she talked to Dr. Ussher to be responsible for any statement she made.

Says She Was "Upset."

She was put under arrest at the hospital and a guard placed at her bedside. Later hospital authorities said she was able to speak rationally and District Attorney Percy Heckendorf and Ross went to her room to talk with her. They did not try to take a formal statement, but asked her:

"Did you intend to kill your son?"

"No; he just dared me to do it. That's all. He just dared me to do it, and I guess I did it," declared the woman.

"But I want you to see that letter Livermore wrote me. I got it yesterday—yesterday morning—Thanksgiving day. It upset me, unstrung me, that's what it did."

A butler at the home of Mrs. Livermore, where the shooting took place at 1:30 o'clock this morning confirmed the woman's statement she had received such a letter.

The butler said his mistress was "greatly upset" after receipt of the letter, and turned it over to Mr. Neville.

Away from Home Most of Day.

Ross said young Livermore told him he had been away most of the day because "there was so much drinking at home;" he returned home around midnight and disputed with his mother about her drinking.

"We quarreled about it," he said. "There were other things, too, I didn't like."

After the boy was shot he refused to blame his mother. He said, "It was an accident. That is all I wish to say about it now."

A telegram came from his father and was read to him. It said:

"Keep your spirits up, son. Will

Chicago Opera Puts On a New Kind of Drama

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

The Chicago City Opera company furnished a melodrama yesterday as thrilling in plot as many of its stage performances. Hero, or villain, depending on whose story you take, is Paul Longone, general manager of the company.

The soprano, singing to the Superior court of Cook county that she has been wronged, is Mrs. Daisy Maud Underwood of Kansas City, known professionally by reason of her Indian blood as Princess Pakanli.

Off the scenes, expected to ride up collectively on a white charger with the money to pay off the mortgage, is the city council of Chicago.

In the anvil chorus are sundry anonymous musicians of Chicago, whose insinuations of things gone wrong in the opera company Manager Longone denies. And in the wings stand the opera's technical staf, wondering if the ghost will walk today.

Soprano Sues for $10,000.

Mrs. Underwood filed a suit for $10,000 yesterday against Manager Longone and the opera company, stating with as much amazement as legal verbiage renders possible an alleged discovery that she would have to pay, instead of being paid, to sing with the opera company.

For good measure she threw in the insinuation that Manager Longone had made here what is euphemistically classified as an improper proposal. All this Manager Longone denied with a fine Latin vigor.

Mrs. Underwood's bill, filed by Attorney Herbert R. Stoffels, asks damages of $10,000. She charges that she came to Chicago last July 22, and was given an audition by Longone. He complimented her on her voice and engaged her to sing three operas, she says. Newspaper files of Aug. 15 record Manager Longone as making a public announcement of this fact.

Needed: A $5,500 Sponsor.

But, Mrs. Underwood, charges, when she returned to the city in September Longone told her that if she was to sing she would have to find a sponsor who would guarantee the expenses of the performance. That would cost $5,500, she was told, and Mrs. Underwood asserts that she has two letters to George La Motte, an Indian baritone, setting forth those terms.

Her bill also asks damages for mental anguish and sets forth that Longone "made unreasonable demands upon the plaintiff" as a condition to his performing what she alleges was an oral contract to engage her for three performances. She elaborated on that charge yesterday in her lawyer's office. She is a comely woman of the full bosomed operatic type, with auburn hair and freckles. Her hazel eyes snapped as she said:

"I saw Mr. Longone at the Congress hotel, and he told me, 'The first thing you'd better do is move in here in the Congress.'"

Listens, but Doesn't Move In.

"What reason did he give?" she was asked.

"No reason," she replied.

"What did you say?"

"I didn't say anything, I just listened," she replied, "but I didn't move in."

The next scene found Manager Longone at the center of the stage, flanked by Charles S. Peterson, president of the opera company, and two members of the company staf. Longone admitted readily that he had offered to let Mrs. Underwood sing for $5,500, but asserted that was the arrangement from the beginning.

"Princess Pakanli had a nice voice," said Longone. "But it was not an operatic voice. It was not trained. I advised her to get more coaching. Then her friend, La Motte, came to me. He wanted to know if it was possible to arrange a special performance of "Aida" for her.

"I told him what such a perform-

BRITAIN STUDIES PLAN TO SETTLE ETHIOPIAN WAR

New Scheme Devised with French Aid.

Crisis for Italy Near

PARIS, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Laval's decision to back Great Britain if her fleet in the Mediterranean is attacked has dashed Italian hopes of delay in a league of nations oil embargo when its sanctions committee meets Dec. 12, informed observers said tonight.

Thus the Italo-Ethiopian crisis has been advanced to a decisive stage, these persons said.

An important Italian authority is quoted here as saying addition of the oil embargo to the present economic siege against Italy would soon make continuation of the African war "impossible."

BY DAVID DARRAH.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Settlement of hostilities between Premier Mussolini and Ethiopia and also of the strained relations between Mussolini and Britain seemed not far distant tonight.

A studied silence marked the attitude of Downing street officials today which seemed to be a prelude to preparing public opinion for an announcement that Il Duce has become moderate in his activities and that an oil embargo perhaps should not be applied to him.

"Nothing to say," was the official attitude on everything.

Report Plan Under Discussion.

It was reported, however, that foreign office officials are studying a plan for settlement of the Italian-Ethiopian conflict just received from Maurice Peterson, expert on Ethiopian affairs, who has been in Paris conferring with French experts.

The plan would give the Italians a modicum of territorial concessions, but extensive economic privileges in Ethiopia and in return Ethiopia would get a Red sea port. It is a matter of fixing it up so Mussolini, Ethiopia, and the league of nations will all be able to claim a victory.

A further indication that the British and Italians are about to make a deal was indicated in an announcement from Geneva that the meeting of the committee of 18 on sanctions has again been postponed until Dec. 12.

Cabinet Committee Meets.

There was a meeting of a British cabinet committee at the treasury this morning, held ostensibly to discuss sanctions, but it could not have been very important, for Prime Minister Baldwin left town despite it to make a previously scheduled speech at Dundee, Scotland. It was announced that the cabinet will meet Monday to review the whole situation.

The British press today was full of explanations of why the league, after having decided to spank Il Duce with an oil embargo paddle, now has decided he isn't such a bad boy after all.

"After all, we had better not stir up a hornet's nest," it was implied in the explanations.

So explicit were these explanations that they led to observations in some quarters that the whole business of oil sanctions was merely a stage set up for farsighted and skilful maneuvering and that the Italian government itself and the oil companies were actors in the piece.

See Significance for U. S.

For Washington it may be significant in this connection that the British press today broke out into detailed and long definitions of the American position with regard to sanctions and neutrality. The Times editorialized at length that President Roosevelt was merely trying to keep his country neutral and had no thought of coöperating in sanctions.

The clear idea is prevalent that there is a considerable rift between Washington and Downing street. One deduction is certain—that Washington is more than embarrassed at having been induced by the British to exert pressure on oil exporters when oil was not included under the congressional neutrality list only to find out later that the league had stopped the oil embargo.

When Ray Atherton, counselor at the American embassy, called at Downing street last week for a conference on the subject of postponing the oil embargo he was apparently surprised to find that two days later correspondents of the British press had been informed about his visit, but not by him. Atherton expressed indignation, but not to Downing street.

U. S. Hedges on Jap Protest.

But there is another angle on all this, according to news reaching London tonight. London's uneasiness about the Chinese situation is accentuated. It was reported here tonight that the British had asked Washington to participate in a joint protest to Japan about the encroachment in China. Washington is said to have replied blandly that it had not been sufficiently informed yet to take such a categoric stand.

So, failing Washington support, London has just asked Tokio to please state its aims. There was something of the oil situation and memories of former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson in that reply, or at least so goes the story here, and it will all form a colorful background for the naval disarmament conference in December, if a satisfactory date can ever be fixed for it.

FRANCE BACKS BRITAIN

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 29.—The British government tonight confirmed reports from Paris that Premier Laval had renewed the assurance that France would aid Great Britain in the event of an Italian attack upon this country, and that the French premier had notified Ambassador Vittorio Cerruti of Italy that any warlike measures by his country against Great Britain would be considered as hostility to all league of nations states, including France.

When Sir George Clerk, British ambassador to Paris, saw Laval Wednesday he urgently requested him to make it clear to Premier Mussolini once more that any aerial attack on British ships would bring France into immediate military coöperation with Britain.

Laval also was asked to tell Mussolini that any hostile act by him would be instantly met by the whole weight of the British empire, acting on behalf of the league of nations.

Relieves British Anxiety.

This latest guarantee by Paris of Anglo-French unity in the present tense situation greatly relieves the anxiety felt in London for the last week.

The British government has been worried over whether France would stand by the agreement it made last month to join its naval forces with those of Britain if Italy attacked the British fleet in the Mediterranean. Since that assurance was given the situation has grown more serious. It became particularly menacing when Premier Mussolini declared that he would consider an oil embargo as an act of war to which he would reply in kind.

When that threat was supplemented by mysterious movements of Italian troops this week as an apparently hostile gesture against Britain the gravity of the situation was greatly augmented, in the opinion of British officials.

The British, therefore, sought further assurance from Laval, something to bring his October agreement up to the present moment and to strengthen it to meet the new dangers.

DUCE VEILS WAR PLANS

ROME, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Official Italy drew a cloak of secrecy about its plans for defense against an oil embargo today, although a government spokesman said such action by the league of nations would be "an act of very great unfriendliness."

Italy's reprisals, the spokesman insisted, would be determined only after the embargo were declared. He denied the accuracy of reports from high unofficial sources that the Fascist grand council had adopted a program of defense against possible oil sanctions at its meeting Nov. 18.

These sources said the program included withdrawal of diplomatic missions from sanctionist nations, withdrawal from the league of nations, and possibly a sudden attack on the British Mediterranean fleet.

As for the attitude of the United States, authorities said they understood America would continue to ship oil for Italy's civilian population but not for her war activities.

Italy's treasury has more money in sight than it ever held before, financial experts said today.

Il Duce sought money for war in three ways: Taxes, cash from bond conversions, and requisition of Italian credits and securities abroad. The people have added a fourth by contributing gold.

The Bank of Italy had nearly 4,000,000,000 lire in gold on Oct. 20, when it discontinued publication of a statement. Financial sources said it still had about the same amount.

HISTORIAN ADAMS SEES EUROPE ON BRINK OF A WAR

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Europe is living on the brink of war and any untoward incident or accident may suddenly throw the whole world into another great conflict according to James Truslow Adams, historian.

Back from Europe to take up permanent residence in his native land because "it has become impossible to live in Europe with peace of mind," Mr. Adams said that England and Italy have gone too far to permit any solution of the present tension except with extraordinary difficulty.

"If a world war comes, the United States probably will be drawn into it unless we are willing to revise all ideas of freedom of seas and national honor," the historian warned. "In the event of hostilities, we may be able to maintain peace ourselves but only at the cost of establishing a new ideal of pacificism. Personally, I would be in favor of that, unless too much was done to us."

ITALIAN BOMBS KILL ETHIOPIAN WOMEN, CHILDREN

Raid on Daggah Bur Takes Heavy Civilian Toll.

BULLETIN.

WITH THE ITALIAN FORCES IN ETHIOPIA, Nov. 29.—(Exchange Telegraph Agency.)—A successful Italian attack by warriors under the command of the sultan of Aussa was made today on the Addis Ababa railway to Djibouti at Lasarat station (not shown on maps). Reports reaching headquarters said a large quantity of war materials was captured, and that Ethiopian reinforcements from Diredawa arrived too late to catch the raiders.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The Ethiopian government said today many women and children were killed when Italian airplanes bombed Daggah Bur, fortress on the southern front.

"Nine Italian planes," said the communique, "dropped 1,500 bombs, mostly incendiary, on Daggah Bur Thursday, killing many women and children.

"A new church and many houses were destroyed by fire. Four sick natives within the church were among the victims. There were no victims among the soldiers, who are trained to scatter in the fields every morning."

Emperor Nears Dessye.

Emperor Haile Selassie, traveling by caravan, was expected to reach Dessye tonight. There he will assume personal command of Ethiopia's defense.

Elaborate precautions were taken to protect the emperor from an Italian air raid. He was accompanied by more than 300 chiefs and priests.

Ethiopians said they did not know how long the ruler would remain at Dessye, which is headquarters between the northern and southern fronts.

Some said he might remain there for the duration of the war and others that he might return, especially if reports of Ethiopian victories in the north are true.

Italians Impose Censorship.

ASMARA, Eritrea, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Eritrea's new high commissioner announced a "rather strict" censorship today on news dispatches from the northern African war front.

Under the censorship, disclosed at a press reception at the palace, no information of Italian military moves may be given and no names of commanders, including that of the commissioner himself, may be mentioned.

[Marshal Pietro Badoglio is the new high commissioner of Eritrea and commander in chief of the Italian armies in East Africa.]

The censorship, the commissioner asserted, will apply alike to foreigners and Italians. Explaining the ban on names, he declared:

"The war is by the Italian people, not by individuals. Therefore names, including my own, must not be mentioned."

He said the censorship was intended to prevent reporters from acting as "informers," but added he would assist in getting correspondents to the front because it would be a contradiction to bring them to Africa and then not let them work. However, they will be held responsible for what their newspapers print, the high commissioner said.

Claim Ethiopians Retreat.

ADOWA, Ethiopia, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Ras Seyoum, shifty leader of Ethiopia's warriors in northern Ethiopia, was moved from the Seloa section in the Tembien region [west and north of Makale] to the vicinity of Bora, Italian officers reported today.

Native Italian columns which moved into the Tembien area forced some of Ras Seyoum's followers to retreat from their positions on the Italian flank and withdraw farther from Italian occupied territory, it was said.

Ras Seyoum, it was said, apparently will try to join forces with Ras Kassa, leading another Ethiopian force in the north, south of Amba Alaji.

Norris Supports Expansion of War Materials Embargo

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Senator Norris [Rep., Neb.], lone survivor of the six senators who voted against American entrance into the world war, argued today for an extension of the neutrality program act to embrace bans against all war-purpose commodities—"including cotton, steel, and everything else."

The veteran of the "little group of wilfulls" who also helped defeat the armed neutrality bill of 1917, expressed his views as two developments in present day neutrality problems were in the making.

Ambassador Augusto Rosso, Italian envoy, made his second visit to the state department in three days. Officially, he explained the call was for a "general discussion" with R. Walton Moore, assistant secretary of state.

Munitions Act Effective.

Unofficially, major significance was attached to the incident in view of Italy's battle against league of nations' economic sanctions and especially against a proposed blocking of the flow of the vital commodity, oil. Current American oil exports to Italy have been the subject of administration scrutiny.

At the same moment, another phase of administration neutrality effort was swinging into action—the munitions control act. Beginning today, all exporters, importers, and manufacturers of munitions—as defined by President Roosevelt under six categories—must register with the munitions control board.

Norris insisted that the United States should remain completely disassociated from the league's sanctions program.

"That," he said of participation, "would immediately get us into the war itself. It would be a war policy, not a peace policy."

Lesser of Two Ills.

He conceded that a broad ban on shipment of American goods to belligerents "would hurt us some, but it would hurt a lot less than to get into war.

"There can't be any great war without our getting hurt," he said. "But I don't think we ought to set up private gains against the destruction of human life."

Norris said he felt congress should extend the present neutrality legislation "to all articles that directly or indirectly can be used for the manufacture of munitions." He said this should include also oil—a commodity vitally necessary to present day war machines.

"Such a law ought to be mandatory against both nations," he said. "If we want to deal with one nation differently, it ought to be up to congress and if we ever found it necessary to make an exception congress should make it, because the exception might mean war."

LAVAL CABINET WINS 2D BATTLE ON 'GOLD FRANC'

Deputies Back Fight on Devaluation.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 29.—Halting the strongest devaluation offensive yet launched in the chamber of deputies, Premier Pierre Laval tonight won the second battle in his struggle to keep office. The deputies voted confidence in his policy of keeping the franc anchored to gold by 324 to 247.

Laval won his initial victory yesterday on the issue of discussing financial policy before taking up the dangerous topic of suppression of the Fascist leagues, on which Laval's adversaries are counting to overthrow him. This debate will come up next week and will undoubtedly be much more dangerous to the Laval cabinet than the financial one. The brilliant showing the premier made today, however, and the support he got from the chamber make his chances of surviving it look good.

Lull on Fascist Front.

Laval is also helped by a momentary lull in the battle between the popular front of Socialists, communists and other leftists and the Fascist Croix de Feu of Col. Francois de la Rocque.

The leftists were robbed of a good deal of their thunder when a march on the chamber by de la Rocque's partisans which was predicted earlier in the week failed to materialize and de la Rocque instead gave out a newspaper interview disavowing any revolutionary or warlike intentions.

Leftists Appear Foolish.

Consequently the imposing forces of police and mobile guards which have been protecting the chamber in the last few days have had nothing to do and the theatrical preparations for "saving the republic by the cohorts of the popular front have proved so far unnecessary—in fact, it has made the defenders look a little foolish.

SHAKESPEARE AND G. B. S. ARE EXEMPTED FROM ITALIAN BAN

ROME, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Shakespeare and George Bernard Shaw are above Italy's sanctions reprisals. Orders given by the propaganda ministry to bar theatrical productions in Italy from nations applying sanctions made an exception of these two noted English dramatists. Fascists said they felt Shakespeare and Shaw belonged "not to England but to the world."

Shaw Refuses "Honor."

LONDON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw conceded today that it was most flattering to be associated with Shakespeare. He added, however, that he objected to his plays receiving "preferential treatment" by Italy.

"I have instructed my agents not to apply for any exceptions in my favor in the Italian intellectual counter-sanctions," he asserted.

ITALIANS SECURE BIG OIL SUPPLIES AT SUEZ REFINERY

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York News.]

SUEZ, Egypt, Nov. 29.—The Italians are buying much oil here for their Ethiopian campaign. The Anglo-Egyptian refinery at this port has been doing an abnormal business for the past months on benzol, gasoline, and lubricants. These have been packed in tins and drums and loaded on Italian mail boats and cargo steamers bound for Massaua, Eritrea. The refinery is working night and day and has taken on about 200 extra workers. It is estimated the refinery has been producing about 3,000 tons of benzol and 1,000 tons of gasoline and lubricants a month.

ROYALTY OF U. S. FARMYARDS ON DISPLAY TODAY

Live Stock Show to Open in Amphitheater.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Aristocrats of the animal world were led one by one up the ramps of the International amphitheater at 43d and Halsted streets yesterday. This great structure will be the scene today of the opening of the 36th International Live Stock exposition, which has become one of the big events of the Chicago winter season as well as the supreme court of the agricultural world.

Hay kings and corn kings and wheat kings are made at the exposition, but the interest of the great majority of the half a million visitors expected this year will center on their friends of the animal kingdom, the steers with rolling eyes; the fat pigs that escaped the drouth and Secretary Wallace; the silly looking sheep with eyes deep down in their wool; the magnificent and proud draft horses that draw the brewery wagons; the dainty, prancing show horses that will canter and pace around the tanbark ring every day until Dec. 7.

A Palace of Beasts.

Great preparations were made yesterday for the opening at 8 a. m. today. The $2,000,000 amphitheater, center of a new city of neat red brick buildings that has arisen from the stockyards fire of two years ago, became a first class hotel for beasts. Man became the servant. All care was lavished upon the animals.

When the steers were led up the ramps from their palace freight cars they were taken first to the bathroom where attendants were waiting to wash the stains of travel in streams of nice warm water. Then they were combed and led to new stalls, deep in clean yellow straw, where they took a nap. After this their servants began to comb and beribbon them for the great show. Their hoofs and horns were filed and polished, their deep velvet hides given permanent waves, their food brought to them on electric conveyors.

A Sheeplike Existence.

In another section the sheep were being manicured and clipped in the latest style, a rooflike back. Attendants went over them with big hedge clippers and then patted the wool into the exact shape that the season demands. The sheep stood four in a pen, wired off from too inquisitive hands.

The swine were snoring lustily in beds of clean straw, their hides shining with the labor of men, their tails all set in the proper angle.

Down horse row the bedrooms were more private. Here each hopeful champion had a room and private bath and attendant, a special room for harness. They were petted and scraped and taped and pompadoured until they sent up shrill whinneys of protest. Their rooms were hung with gay colors and their food was of the best.

Prince's Cattle Welcomed.

Late in the afternoon the three cattle of the prince of Wales arrived. They were placed in stalls with the others and received the same attention. They came from the E. P. ranch in Alberta and consisted of three Scotch Shorthorns, the chief entry of which is a 2 year old bull, Bapton Orator, who took first prize this year in the Royal Winter fair at Toronto.

The others are younger hefers, Princeton Nerrissa and Princeton Omega. Bapton Orator's keepers apologized because his red hair was rough and uncombed. They said they needed a bath worse than his bovine highness, but that the Orator, so named because he has a famous bellow, would get his first. Today he will look like a dude.

Observe Chicago Day.

Today is "Chicago day" at the show by proclamation of Mayor Kelly. Chicago has shown more and more appreciation of these programs each year.

This year, according to B. H. Heide, general manager, the show will be bigger and better than ever. He says that more farmers are sending in exhibits and that farmers are replacing their lost livestock with better breeds. One hundred thousand out of town visitors are expected to attend the eight day show.

There are many things of interest besides the cattle and horses. The United States department of agriculture has put in a scientific exhibit, showing the best way to grow the latest thing in farm money crops, the soy bean, and many other things. The University of Illinois, Purdue university, and the Field Museum of Natural History have interesting exhibits.

Grain Interests Agriculturists.

The grain show is of special interest to experts. Grain samples have been sent in from 36 states, Canada, and New South Wales. John Alford, wheat king of Peace River valley, has an exhibit. There are 45 per cent more draft horses than last year and 40 per cent more swine.

Of interest to the housewife is an exhibit of retail cuts of beef, pork, and lamb arranged by the National Live Stock and Meat board in six huge enclosed coolers. In one is shown the newest development in meat cookery, illustrating the right and wrong ways to cook it and the use of the new roast meat thermometer which takes the guesswork out of cooking.

Jane, the sheep dog that does her daily stunt herding a flock of sheep in and out of the arena, has a special cage in the sheep section. She is owned by Luke Pasco of Vermont. As a boy Pasco was blind for eleven years and his dog took care of him. When his sight was restored he undertook to improve the breed of sheep dogs, with Jane as one result.

The first of the horse show programs will be given this evening. There is parking space available at the show grounds for 8,000 cars.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT TO WED

Claudette Colbert of the films and Dr. Joel J. Pressman in San Francisco yesterday as they admitted they plan to be married. Earlier in the day Dr. Pressman battled a photographer who took the couple's picture when they stepped from airplane. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Wedding After Jan. 1

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Claudette Colbert climaxed action as swift as any of her motion picture rôles by announcing her engagement to Dr. Joel J. Pressman here today.

Fisticuffs, flight, mystery and romance were woven into drama which started when the actress and Dr. Pressman arrived by airplane from Los Angeles. He objected to being photographed and exchanged blows with a cameraman.

Miss Colbert denied they were married despite the reservations of the United Air Lines plane for "Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Pressman."

Then came the flight to a hotel, to a theater and on to another hotel where Miss Colbert unraveled the plot by saying she was engaged. "No, no, no!" she declared. "We're not married now. We're engaged. We're going to be married shortly after the new year."

IF TRIAL IS LIKE SAMPLE, IT WILL BE EXCITING DAY!

commander, Capt. Patrick Collins, barged out of his office, to discover that Mrs. Conroy had fainted. There was a hurry call to the emergency aid station of Dr. Mitchell S. Corbett, 1380 West Lake street, and ere long Dr. Corbett and an assistant dashed in to revive the patient. It was something like two hours before she was pronounced ready for her ordeal.

They Tell It to the Judge.

Then there was a gathering before the presiding judge, J. B. Hermes. It included Mrs. Conroy, Mr. Conroy, Mrs. Mary Moore, 4557 Ellis avenue, a militant friend of the defendant; Mr. Cordon, Mr. Long, Mr. Hodes, William V. Daly, an assistant corporation counsel, and John L. Hendrick, attorney for Mrs. Conroy.

Mrs. Moore, temporarily, took charge of the proceedings.

"I'm a taxpayer and I own my own home and have a right to talk," she announced loudly. "This woman is being framed."

Mr. Long requested that the remark be erased from the record and that Mrs. Moore be quieted. The remark was erased, but Mrs. Moore continued her speech until Judge Hermes asked a policeman to escort her out.

Corporation Counsel Hodes then made it known that he wished the record to show he was assisting Assistant State's Attorney Long.

Argue Over Continuance.

"We want the facts," he said, "in the interest of the public. And I hope there will be no continuance."

Attorney Henrick, on the contrary, pleaded for delay.

"I haven't had much of a chance to talk to my client," he declared.

The attorney wished a continuance to Dec. 11. Judge Hermes, however, ruled that the hearing would be held in room 921 of the city hall on Dec. 4. With that the gathering broke up.

Mrs. Conroy and her husband refused positively to talk about their side of the case. So did Mr. Henrick. Organist Cordon was even more reticent; he declined to admit his identity.

"I'm not Cordon," he averred. "I just represent Cordon."

WAR THREATENS NAVY PARLEY AS DELEGATES SAIL

U. S. Party Will Try to Check Building.

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Norman H. Davis, head of the American delegation to the London naval conference, promised tonight as the delegates sailed that they would do everything in their power to prevent competitive naval building.

The veteran of international conference, however, admitted that several "formidable obstacles" stood in the path of an agreement.

"The problems awaiting the attention of the representatives of the five chief naval powers who shortly will be gathering in London are unquestionably difficult and serious," Davis said.

Won't Tell Obstacles.

"No well informed person would seek to dismiss lightly the formidable obstacles besetting the road leading to a naval agreement."

He declined to answer a question as to what the obstacles were. He also refused to reply when asked if the United States would give naval parity to Japan.

"This is not the time for despondency or a defeatist approach to the solution of the problems that confront us," he declared.

"The American delegation are proceeding to London imbued with the spirit of the good neighbor. . . . Our attitude will be one of friendliness and good will.

May Take Months.

"We fully recognize the importance to ourselves as well as to all naval powers of avoiding competitive naval building. We shall, therefore, coöperate in every earnest effort to bring about an accord."

He said the conference might last as long as four or five months.

The delegates—Norman H. Davis, veteran of international conferences since the world war; William Phillips, undersecretary of state and close friend of President Roosevelt, and Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations—had passage on the S. S. Aquitania sailing at midnight.

Have Two Days to Map Plan.

As a result of the last minute change in date for opening the conference to Dec. 9, the United States representatives will have two days in which to perfect final plans for American participation in the parley.

Under previous plans they would have dashed directly from the boat to the Locarno room in the foreign office in London, a few hours late for the formal opening.

Increasing bitterness between the league nations, led by Great Britain and France, and Italy over proposed embargoes on oil and other essential materials was considered by diplomatic observers to add immeasurably to the many difficulties already facing the naval parley.

GIRL SWALLOWS PIN; TAKEN OFF LINER BY PLANE

Lifeboat Links Ship and Amphibian.

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Lillian Lennehan, 15, of Ramsey, N. J., was taken from the steamship Cambridge in Long Island sound this afternoon with an open safety pin in her throat and transferred in a lifeboat to an amphibian plane. She was flown to East 31st street and then rushed to Bellevue hospital for immediate treatment.

Efforts to remove the pin failed tonight when it was pushed into her stomach. If the pin fails to pass through the girl's system, physicians said, it will have to be removed by a surgical operation.

The transfer of the girl was made after a small United States coast guard plane had found that rough water made it impossible to come down while coast guard cutters were on the way to the scene.

Medical Advice Radioed.

Medical advice was radioed to the steamer before the girl was transferred.

The plane which made the rescue, a large amphibian, reached the side of the Cambridge off South Norwalk just as the coast guard plane headed away. The pilot signaled the Cambridge and made a safe landing in the water.

The first message telling of the accident to the girl was addressed to the Marine hospital, New York. It said:

"Fifteen year old girl swallowed safety pin. Open in throat. Not expected to dock until 3:30 p. m. Causing considerable pain. Can you take her off?"

The Marine hospital communicated with the coast guard and there followed a series of messages which sent the coast guard amphibian into service and medical advice on the way.

Marine Hospital Helps.

The United States public health service was advised and Marine hospital sent the following message:

"Keep child quiet as possible. Give no food or water by mouth. Give one-sixth grain of morphine by hypo if available."

In the meantime Lieut. Edmund E. Fahey of the coast guard in a small patrol plane hurried on to the Cambridge. He found it impossible to land his plane and make the transfer.

The amphibian meanwhile arrived and landed.

FIXES BONDS OF 3 IN RAPE CASE AND VENGEANCE PLOT

Philip Mortel, 30 years old, 5130 Dorchester avenue, was held to the grand jury in $10,000 bond by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the Felony court yesterday on a charge that he raped Mrs. Ruth Hanson, 24 years old, 5804 Barry avenue, on Nov. 8.

Judge Hartigan also set bonds of $4,000 for the woman's husband, Arthur, 28 years old, and Arthur Albert, 28, of 1810 North 24th street, Melrose Park. They were charged with assault on Mortel and attempting to commit a criminal offense in retaliation for the attack on Mrs. Hanson. Their cases were continued until Dec. 23 pending the outcome of Mortel's trial.

Hanson and Albert were arrested by a Hyde Park police squad at 5107 Blackstone avenue Thursday as they were trying with drawn pistols to force Mortel into their car. They explained that they had been seeking Mortel ever since the day he raped Mrs. Hanson in his apartment after a drinking party and planned to "do something to Mortel that he'd never forget."

Mrs. Hanson testified yesterday that she met Mortel casually on Nov. 7, had several drinks with him, and awoke in his apartment next morning, her face covered with bruises.

ROOSEVELT HITS AT HIS CRITICS; DEFENDS ACTION

Extravagant U. S. Spending Over, He Says.

istration and to the congress how to run the national treasury and how to let the needy starve."

At the outset of his address the President struck at the period of prosperity, rolling the word ironically from his tongue. He said he did not want to go back to that period in which "a wild speculation was building" up speculative profits for the speculators and preparing the way for the public to be left "holding the bag."

From this point the President presented his defense of his administration. He rolled off accomplishments he claimed for his alphabetical groups, although he did not name the experimental units.

Points to New Deal Acts.

He pointed to AAA farm price control, farm and home aid, bank deposit guarantees, child labor and low wages remedied by the defunct NRA, securities regulation, social security legislation, slum improvement and the land improvement program of the rural resettlement administration.

"I can realize that gentlemen in well-warmed and well-stocked clubs will discourse on the expense of government and the suffering that they are going through because the government is spending money for work relief," he went on. "I wish I could take some of these men out on the battle line of human necessity and show them the facts that we in the government are facing.

"If these more fortunate Americans will come with me I will not only show them the necessity for the expenditures of this government, but I will show them, as well, the definite and beneficial results we have attained with the dollars we have spent. Some of these gentlemen tell me that the dole would be more economical than work relief. That is true.

Says Dole Outrages Americans.

"But the men who tell me that have, unfortunately, too little contact with the true America to realize that in this business of relief we are dealing properly with self-respecting Americans to whom a mere dole outrages every instinct of individual independence."

The President was introduced by Walter F. George, senior senator of Georgia. The chief executive drove to Atlanta in a motor cavalcade from Warm Springs.

The route to the stadium avoided the capitol, where Gov. Talmadge was hung in effigy early in the morning. Atlanta police were called to the capitol with a telephone summons that a man was being hung on the grounds. They found a figure, whose red suspenders definitly indicated it represented the governor, dangling from a tree.

Speaks to School Children.

The party paused for a half hour at Fort McPherson and drove through thronged streets in Atlanta. Before preceeding to the stadium Mr. Roosevelt was greeted by the city's school children in Piedmont park, where in a few words he gave thanks for the reception.

Refers to National Debt.

The President then went on to give his picture of the national debt. At this point he interjected what was interpreted as a jibe at Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, the most severe critic of the New Deal within the Democratic party, who did not appear on the platform. Talmadge has frequently stated in his attacks, "You can't drink yourself sober and can't spend yourself wealthy."

The Roosevelt answer was, "Your government says to you: 'You cannot borrow your way out of debt; but you can invest your way into a sounder future.'"

In his introduction Senator George referred to Mr. Roosevelt as "the President and next President of the United States."

The President returned to Warm Springs immediately after his address.

RELIGIOUS GROUP HITS CONDITIONS, LAUDS PRESIDENT

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 29.—(AP)—A letter commending him for "having done more for working people than any previous administration" has been sent to President Roosevelt by the National Religion and Labor foundation, the organization's executive office announced tonight.

The letter, which condemns existing conditions while praising the President, was signed by 45 clergymen and religious educators of various faiths.

Prof. Jerome Davis of the Yale divinity school heads the signers. Others include Rabbi Sidney Goldstein of the Free synagogue in New York City; the Rev. Paul Jones of Antioch college; Dr. Herbert A. Miller of Bryn Mawr college and the Rev. Allan K. Chalmers of the Broadway Tabernacle, New York.

Dr. Willard E. Uphaus, the foundation's executive secretary, said:

"This letter is in response to the President's recent invitation to religious leaders for advice. It commends him for having done more for working people than any previous administration, but expresses the conviction that there can be no permanent recovery under the profit system. The letter urges the President to move left, to encourage the coöperative movement, bring about the nationalization of basic industries, and strengthen trade unionism."

RETURN MANSLAUGHTER VERDICT.

A verdict of manslaughter was returned yesterday by the coroner's jury investigating the fatal beating on Nov. 10 of John McBellis, 38 years old, 6335 Greenwood avenue, a driver for the Chicago Motor Coach company. McBellis was attacked by two unidentified men at 63d street and Dorchester [illegible]

TEXT OF PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS IN GEORGIA

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Following is the text of an address by President Roosevelt today at the Georgia homecoming celebration:

"I am happy to be in Georgia. I am proud of Georgia. Happy because of this moving reception which my friends, the senators and representatives in the congress from this state, have tendered me, and which you, the good people of this state, have responded to with such warmth and hospitality. Happy because I meet again so many old friends and neighbors. Proud because I see signs on every hand that the overwhelming majority of the people of this state are keeping pace with the millions of others throughout the nation who believe in progress, are willing to work for progress, and are going to get progress. Proud because I see clear signs of a revival of material prosperity in country and in city, and especially because I sense a swelling prosperity of the spirit that spells a greater help and a deeper happiness for our fellow men.

"Eleven years ago I came to live at Warm Springs for the first time. That was a period of great so-called prosperity. But I would not go back to the conditions of 1924, and I do not believe that you people would want to go back either. Of that year and of the five years that followed, I have a clear recollection which you can verify for yourselves.

Profits in Speculating.

"In that orgy of 'prosperity' a wild speculation was building speculative profits for the speculators and preparing the way for the public to be left 'holding the bag.' In that orgy of 'prosperity' banks, individually and by chains, were closing their doors at the expense of the depositors. In that orgy of 'prosperity' the farmers of the south had become involuntary speculators themselves, never certain when they planted their cotton whether it would bring twenty-five cents or fifteen cents or five cents.

"In that orgy of 'prosperity' the poorest vied with the richest in throwing their earnings and their savings into a cauldron of land and stock speculation. In that orgy of 'prosperity' slum conditions went unheeded, better education was forgotten, usurious interest charges mounted, child labor continued, starvation wages were too often the rule instead of the exception. Mammon ruled America.

"Those are the years to remember—those fool's paradise years before the crash came. Too much do we harp on the years that followed, when from 1929 to 1933 this nation slipped spirally downward — ever downward—to the inevitable point when the mechanics of civilization came to a dead stop on March 3, 1933.

Acted Before Too Late.

"You and I need not rehearse the four years of disaster and gloom. We know the simple fact that at the end of those years America acted before it was too late, that we turned about and by a supreme, well nigh unanimous national effort, started on the upward path again.

"I have reason to remember the past two and a half years that have gone by so quickly, reason to remember the fine spirit of the average of American citizenship which made my task lighter. Memory is short but yours is not too short to recollect those great meetings of the representatives of the farmers, regionally and in Washington, in the spring and summer of 1933, when they agreed overwhelmingly that unfair low prices for farm crops could never be raised to and maintained at a reasonable level until and unless the government of the United States acted to help them to reduce the tremendous carry-overs and surpluses which threatened us and the whole world.

Recalls Aid Demand.

"You and I can well remember the overwhelming demand that the national government come to the rescue of the home owners and the farm owners of the nation who were losing the roofs over their head through inflated valuation and exorbitant rates of interest.

"You and I still recollect the need for and the successful attainment of a banking policy which not only opened the closed banks, but guaranteed the deposits of the depositors of the nation.

"You and I have not forgotten the enthusiastic support that succeeded, and still in part succeeds, in ending the labor of children in mills and factories, in seeking a fairer wage level for those on starvation pay and in giving to the workers hope for the right collectively to bargain with their employers.

"You and I will not forget the long struggle to put an end to the indiscriminate distribution of "fly-by-night" securities, and to provide fair regulation of the stock exchanges and of the great interstate public utility companies of our country.

Provide for Aged.

"You and I—yes, every individual and every family in the land—are being brought close to that supreme achievement of the present congress—the social security law which, in days to come, will provide the aged against distressing want, will set up a national system of insurance for the unemployed and will extend well merited care to sick and crippled children.

"You and I are enlisted today in a great crusade in every part of the land to coöperate with nature and not to fight her, to stop destructive floods, to prevent dust storms and the washing away of our precious soils, to grow trees, to give thousands of farm families a chance to live, and to seek to provide more and better food for the city dwellers of the nation.

"In this connection it is, I think, of interest to point out that national surveys prove that the average of our citizenship lives today on what would be called by the medical fraternity a third class diet. If the country lived on a second class diet we would need to put many more acres than we use today back into the production of foodstuffs for domestic consumption. If the nation lived on a first class diet we would have to put more acres than we have ever cultivated into the production of an additional supply of things for Americans to eat.

Diet Is Third Class.

"Why, speaking in broad terms in following up this particular illustration, are we living on a third class diet? For the very simple reason that the masses of the American people have not got the purchasing power to eat more and better food.

"I mentioned a few weeks ago that farm income in the United States has risen since 1932 a total of nearly 3 billions. That is because wheat is selling at better than 90 cents instead of 32 cents; corn at 50 cents instead of 12 cents; cotton at 12 cents instead of at 4½ cents, and other crops in proportion.

"I wonder what cotton would be selling at today if during these past three years we had continued to produce 15 or 16 or 17 million bales each year, adding to our own surplus, adding to the world surplus, and driving the cotton farmers of the south into bankruptcy and starvation? The additional 3 billions of farm income has meant the rebirth of city business, the reopening of closed factories, the doubling of automobile production, the improvement of transportation and the giving of new employment to millions of people.

"That brings us squarely face to face with the fact of the continued unemployment of many millions of persons of whom approximately three and a half million are employables in need of relief. When some of the people of a great and wealthy country are suffering from starvation an honest government has no choice.

"At first, realizing that we were not doing a perfect thing but that we were doing a necessary saving and human thing, we appropriated money for direct relief. That was necessary to ward off actual starvation. But as quickly as possible we turned to the job of providing actual work for those in need.

"I can realize that gentlemen in well warmed and well stocked clubs will discourse on the expenses of government and the suffering that they are going through because the government is spending money for work relief. I wish I could take some of these men out on the battle line of human necessity and show them the facts that we in the government are facing.

Dole Less Costly.

"If these more fortunate Americans will come with me I will not only show them the necessity for the expenditures of this government but I will show them, as well, the definite and beneficial results we have attained with the dollars we have spent. Some of these gentlemen tell me that a dole would be more economical than work relief. That is true.

"But the men who tell me that have, unfortunately, too little contact with the true American to realize that in this business of relief we are dealing with properly self-respecting Americans to whom a mere dole outrages every instinct of individual independence.

"Most Americans want to give something for what they get. That something, in this case honest work, is the saving barrier between them and moral disintegration. We propose to build that barrier high.

"Last April I stated what I have held to consistently ever since—that it was the hope of the administration that by sometime in November of this year we would substantially end the dole and offer in place of it employment to by far the greater part of the three and a half million employable persons we estimated to be on the relief rolls in the United States.

Denies Program Failure.

"Week after week since then some individuals and some groups, careless of the truth and regardless of scruple, have sought to make the American people believe that this program was a hopeless failure and that it could not possibly succeed.

"Today is the twenty-ninth day of November. It gives me a certain satisfaction to be able to inform you, and through you the nation, that on Wednesday, two days ago, there were three million one hundred and twenty five thousand persons at work on various useful projects throughout the nation. The small remaining number have received orders to report to work on projects already under way or ready to be started. This result, I believe you will agree with me, constitutes a substantial and successful national achievement.

"Aside from the tremendous increase in morale through substituting work for a dole, there is the practical side of permanent material benefit. Within sight of us today stands a tribute to useful work under government supervision—the first slum clearance and low rent housing project.

"Here, at the request of the citizens of Atlanta, we have cleaned out nine square blocks of antiquated, squalid dwellings, for years a detriment to this community. Today those hopeless old houses are gone and in their place we see the bright, cheerful buildings of the Techwood housing project.

Gives Decent Homes.

"Within a very short time people who never before could get a decent roof over their heads will live here in reasonable comfort amid healthful, worthwhile surroundings; others will find similar homes in Atlanta's second slum clearance, the University project, and still others will find similar opportunity in nearly all of the older, overcrowded cities of the United States.

"I take it that it has been equally worthwhile to the nation to give jobs to the unemployed in the construction of a vast network of highways, including thousands of miles of farm to market roads, in repairing great numbers of schools, and building hundreds of new ones in city and country, in helping cities to put in sewers and sewage disposal plants and water works, in constructing cold storage warehouses and county recreational buildings, in creating aviation fields, in giving a million boys a chance to go to CCC camps and to work on forestry and on soil erosion prevention, in controling malaria, in pushing health projects, in putting white collar workers into jobs of permanent usefulness to their communities, and in giving youth an opportunity for better education.

Talks About Debt.

"Into the ears of many of you has been dinned the cry that your government is piling up an unconscionable and backbreaking debt. Let me tell you a simple story: In the spring of 1933 many of the great bankers of the United States flocked to Washington. They were there to get help of their government in the saving of their banks from insolvency.

"To them I pointed out, in all fairness, the simple fact that the government would be compelled to go heavily into debt for a few years to come, in order to save banks and insurance companies and mortgage companies, and railroads, and to take care of millions of people who were on the verge of starvation. Every one of these gentlemen expressed to me the firm conviction that it was all well worth the price and that they heartily approved.

"In order to get their further judgment, however, I asked them what they thought the maximum national debt of the United States government could rise to without serious danger to the national credit. Their answers, remembering this was in the spring of 1933, were that the country could safely stand a national debt of between 55 and 70 billion dollars.

"I told them that a rise in the national debt to any such figure was, in my judgment, wholly unnecessary, and that even if they, the bankers, were willing I could not and would not go along with them. I told them then that only a moderate increase in the debt for the next few years seemed likely and justified. That objective holds good today; but remember that at that time many bankers and big business men would have been willing to put the country far deeper into debt than I shall ever let it go.

"If the bankers thought the country could stand a debt of fifty-five to seventy billion dollars in 1933, with values as they were then, I wonder what they would say the country could stand today, in the light of an enormous increase of values of property of all kinds all along the line since 1933.

"Your government says to you: 'You cannot borrow your way out of debt, but you can invest your way into a sounder future.'

158 Millions on Hand.

"As a matter of actual fact, of course, the gross national debt under the last administration rose from a little over seventeen billions to twenty-one billions. The day I came into office I found that the national treasury contained only $158,000,000 or, at the rate of previously authorized expenditures, enough to last the treasury less than a month. Since March 4, 1933, the national debt has risen from 21 billions to 29½ billions, but it must also be remembered that today, included in this figure is nearly 1½ billions of working balance in the treasury and nearly 4½ billion dollars of recoverable assets which the government will get back over a period of years, and which will be used for the retirement of debt.

"As things stand today, and in the light of a definite and continuing economic improvement, we have passed the peak of appropriations; revenues without the imposition of new taxes are increasing, and we can look forward with assurance to a decreasing deficit.

Credit of U. S. Better.

"The credit of the government is today higher than that of any other great nation in the world, in spite of attacks on that credit made by those few individuals and organizations which seek to dictate to the administration and to the congress how to run the national treasury and how to let the needy starve.

"In the spring of 1933, if you and I had made a national balance sheet, we would have found that if we had added up the values of all of the property of every kind in the United States owned by American citizens, the total of these values, which we would call assets, would have been exceeded by the figure representing the total of all the debts owed by the people of the United States. In other words, at that time our national balance sheet, the wealth versus the debts of the American public, showed that we were in the red.

Satisfaction Found.

"Today, less than three years later, it is a fact that the total of all the debts in the United States is lower than it was then. Whereas, on the other side of the picture, you and I know that the values of property of all kinds—farms, houses, automobiles, securities, and every other kind of property—have increased so greatly since 1933 that today we are once more in the black. We were insolvent—today we are solvent.

"In this fact most of us find a deep satisfaction. But recovery means something more than getting the country back into the black. You and I do not want just to go back to the past. We want to face the future in the belief that human beings can enjoy more of the good things of life, under better conditions, than human beings ever enjoyed in the past.

"American life has improved in these two years and a half, and if I have anything to do with it, it is going to improve more in the days to come. The word 'progress' is a better word than 'recovery,' for it means not only a sound business and a sound agriculture from the material point of view, but it means, with equal importance, a sound improvement in American life as a result of continuing and forceful effort on the part of our people and through them, on the part of their government.

"I am certain that that is your purpose, and that is why I continue my confidence, my faith, in the people of America."

12 States Won by Roosevelt Now Oppose Him, Poll Shows

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—The majority against the New Deal increased sharply in the second week's returns in the Literary Digest poll, as published today, showing that only two states, both in the south, out of the twelve states canvassed, give a preference for the Roosevelt policies.

Of the 207,087 votes so far tallied in the nation-wide ballot of ten million voters the total number to register to date in favor of the New Deal is 91,351 and the total number against is 115,736. The protest in percentages against the New Deal rose from 53.28, as shown in the first week, to 55.89, the opposition spreading widely over all the states except those in the south. The additional returns reported this week numbered 167,000.

Complete Reversal Shown.

The poll is similar to that conducted in 1934, the cards having been sent to virtually the same lists of voters. In that year the result was 61.15 per cent in favor of the New Deal to 38.85 per cent against. The poll so far indicates a complete reversal of sentiment on the Roosevelt administration.

Florida is one of the big surprises, the vote from that state standing about even, with 3,834 voting for the New Deal, New Deal policies, and 3,928 voting against.

Illinois Tops Opposition.

Illinois came through this week at the top of the list of states going strongly against the New Deal, the vote standing 2,737 for and 5,613 against, or 67.22 per cent in opposition.

Ohio, where there is a bad factional schism in the Democratic ranks, stood 65.54 per cent against and 34.46 per cent for the New Deal.

Minnesota has been counted as leaning toward radicalism and therefore favorable to the New Deal, yet its first ballot this week on a vote of 21,903 gives 63.15 per cent against the New Deal. Missouri, another surefire Democratic state, as estimated by the Roosevelt leaders, cast 24,830 ballots against and only 19,850 for the New Deal.

South and West States.

Other states reported today were:

	For Roosevelt policies.	Pct.	Opposed.	Pct.
Georgia	8,704	67.55	4,181	32.45
Kansas	12,666	42.87	16,882	57.13
Nebraska	2,442	40.97	3,518	59.03
North Dakota	1,824	39.81	2,758	60.19
Oklahoma	6,825	48.68	7,196	51.32
Texas	4,702	61.88	2,896	38.12

The Digest publishers point out that more ballots have been returned in the second week's returns this year from Iowa than were cast by that state in the entire 1934 referendum, and that state now stands 58.29 per cent against the New Deal. All the western grain states which are subject to the heavy AAA bounties give a heavy opposition majority.

Thirty-six more states are to be heard from in the hundreds of thousands of ballots to be counted.

HEART VICTIM IDENTIFIED.

A man who was stricken with a fatal heart attack on a street car at 63d street and Western avenue last Monday was identified yesterday as Albert Schultz, 80 years old, 1329 West 71st street.

ILLINOIS IS MADE STEPCHILD STATE IN WPA HANDOUTS

Receives 87 Million Less than Its Share.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

Illinois has been "shorted" 87 million dollars in the distribution of New Deal easy money this year. This was disclosed yesterday by figures of definite allotments thus far to the state from the four billion dollar congressional appropriation for shifting 3,500,000 persons from the relief rolls to "made work."

Seven per cent of the nation's relief population lives in Illinois and on this basis the state should receive a total of $280,000,000 from the works appropriation to lift its quota from the dole. On the basis of the latest available figures, however, allotments to Illinois total $161,314,011 with additional grants not definitly determined but estimated at approximately $32,000,000.

Worthy Projects Turned Down.

The Illinois shortage goes hand in hand with refusals of the New Dealers to finance such substantial projects as the lake front airport and elevated highways for Chicago, and the approval of hundreds of projects of the boondoggling type. Even so, Illinois will not get its share of the nation's boondoggling.

A table showing the amounts allotted or earmarked for works projects in Illinois from the four billion dollars on the basis of the latest figures follows:

AGENCY.	GRANT.
Department of Agriculture—

64 Million for Direct Relief.

The four billion dollar appropriation had tacked on it an additional 880 millions for direct relief purposes, which was to have been used while the works program was being started. On the 880 million Illinois has fared somewhat better than on the works fund.

Up to date Illinois has been granted a total of $64,775,000 for direct relief purposes. This would be $3,175,000 more than the state's share on the basis of its relief population as compared with sister states.

Salary increases ranging from $7 to $17 a month will be given 350 WPA employés on the $300,000 Great Lakes Naval Training station rehabilitation project, effective Dec. 1. This was announced last night. The order places the crew on the Cook county security wage scale instead of the present Lake county scale. Workers on the job had demanded union wages and were reported last night to be planning a further protest.

Roosevelt Says:

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Highlights from President Roosevelt's address at Grant field today:

22 STATES GIVEN LAST CASH FROM U. S. FOR RELIEF

FERA Winds Up; WPA Goal "at Hand."

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Asserting the goal of providing 3½ million jobs for the unemployed would be attained by Sunday, the administration tonight announced an abrupt halt in the flow of further federal relief funds to the states. Parceling out final, supplemental "dole" allotments to 22 states, the New Deal relief spokesmen declared that henceforth—aside from the 3½ million on work relief—all responsibility for the needy rests with the local governments.

Complete liquidation of the federal Emergency Relief administration simultaneously was announced by aids of Harry L. Hopkins, as of Dec. 1. Hereafter, the Works Progress administration will stand as the government relief unit.

President, Hopkins Away.

The long-heralded end of FERA, which has spent more than 3 billion dollars since it was set up in May, 1933, came during the absence from the capital of both President Roosevelt and Hopkins.

Both, however, were in touch with developments. The President earlier in the day had declared in his Atlanta speech that with 3,125,000 needy at work on last Wednesday, the job objective had been virtually attained. Aubrey Williams, assistant chief of WPA and FERA, talked by telephone with Hopkins in New York City before receiving reporters and amending the President's statement. The entire 3½ millions, he said would be at work "by tomorrow night."

Keep Dole for December.

Williams conceded, however, that direct relief would be continued in December. That the allotments made today may be used next month for what has been called the "dole" was acknowledged even as he asserted that the 22 states not previously acted upon had "received their last allotment of federal funds by FERA."

With 26 states and the District of Columbia already cut off federal aid, the 22 receiving final allotments today were: California, Florida, Illinois, Kansas, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Montana, Washington, West Virginia, and Wisconsin, the territories of Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico, and the Virgin islands.

Williams announced later in the day that the total of the final grant to states was $38,815,487.

MAYOR TO HELP CITY DRIVE FOR '36 CONVENTIONS

Agrees to Appear Before G. O. P. Committee.

Mayor Kelly took a hand yesterday in the movement to attract both Republican and Democratic national conventions to Chicago next year. He accepted an invitation to accompany a citizen's group which will appear before the Republican national committee at its meeting Dec. 16 in Washington, D. C., to urge Chicago as a site for the national party conclave.

The mayor also agreed to ask the city council to adopt a resolution inviting both the Republican and Democratic parties to bring their conventions here as they did in 1932.

These arrangements were made at a conference between the mayor and Robert F. Carr and Albert D. Lasker, co-chairmen of the special citizens' committee in charge of the quest for the conventions, and William J. Hennessy, head of the Chicago Association of Commerce convention bureau.

Business Ready to Aid Move.

Carr reported that a preliminary canvass of business men who subscribed to the fund set up the 1932 political conventions, indicates that all are ready to repeat for 1936.

"We are confident that at least one of the conventions will come to Chicago," said Mr. Carr, "and we are hopeful of landing both."

The delegation which will go to Washington for the Dec. 16 Republican committee meeting is to include besides Mayor Kelly, Mr. Carr, Mr. Lasker, and Mr. Hennessy, and four vice chairmen of the citizens group —Sewell Avery, Charles A. McCulloch, John McKinlay, and Gen. Robert E. Wood.

The Democratic national committee has not yet set the date of its meeting, but James A. Farley, postmaster general, said in Chicago a few days ago it would meet some time after New Year's. Other cities reported to be seeking one or both conventions are Kansas City, St. Louis, Cleveland, Detroit, New York, Atlantic City, and San Francisco.

Hotels Give Pledge on Rates.

At the conference in the mayor's office, it was reported that the hotels have guaranteed that no increase in rates will be made if the conventions are brought here, while the railroads indicate that reduced fares would be offered, as in 1932. In 1932 the Chicago citizens' committee guaranteed the payment of expenses up to $150,000 for each convention, and this time the committee is striving to attain that mark.

Word from Bloomington yesterday was that George Hatzenbuhler of that city, national director of the Modern Woodmen of America, plans to announce his candidacy for lieutenant governor in the Republican primaries at a Woodman meeting in Peoria on Dec. 11.

COUNTY BUDGET CUT $454,000 AT FIRST SITTING

The county board's finance committee cut $454,000 from the preliminary 1936 budget yesterday as it started meetings which commissioners said would bring total corporate [operating] appropriations in balance with expected income next year. The committee went over the budget requests of six of thirty-two county departments. A definite policy of refusing salary increases or additional employés has been adopted, it was stated.

The largest reduction was made in the amount asked by John S. Clark, county assessor, the committee cutting the figure by $253,000 to $1,189,955. The total still is nearly $100,000 above the 1935 appropriation of $1,090,000.

Other reductions were $94,000 from the appropriation asked by the superintendent of public service, $92,000 from the board of appeals, $10,000 from the sherif as custodian of the county building and $5,000 from the civil service commission.

All department heads except the treasurer, state's attorney and jury commissioners had asked larger appropriations next year. The request made by State's Attorney Courtney was $661,733, or $10,000 less than the 1935 figure.

FAIR AND WARMER WEATHER CITY'S PROSPECT TODAY

Mostly fair weather, with occasional cloudiness, is promised for Chicago today in the official forecast. The temperatures are expected to be slightly higher.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel said, however, that the mercury probably would fall to 15 early this morning, which would be the lowest reading since last February. He indicated a belief that the maximum in the afternoon might be above freezing. The outlook for tomorrow is for fair skies with little change in temperature.

Cold was general yesterday over the mid-continent, with freezing temperatures extending as far south as Tennessee and Arkansas. In the northwest, however, there was a reaction that carried the mercury above normal.

Third Man Dies After Drinking Rubbing Alcohol

Death yesterday claimed the last of three men poisoned by drinking rubbing alcohol in a box car near West Chicago Thursday. The man who died yesterday was Frank Faulkner, 52 years old. Thomas Finnegan, 44 years old, of Green Bay, Wis., and Joseph Murphy, 45, of no known address, were dead when found. All three were casuals.

STATE GRANTED 5 MILLION, LAST U. S. RELIEF GIFT

Solves Problem Until Jan. 1.

The federal government advanced $5,000,000 to the Illinois emergency relief commission yesterday with the ultimatum that this would be the last grant to the state for relief purposes. The grant is $211,000 short of the funds requested by the IERC.

Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the IERC, however, declared that the commission would be able to "skin through" on its December relief operations through the final federal grant. After Jan. 1, 1936, the state of Illinois will be on its own.

Whether there will be a winter relief crisis depends on two things: the speed with which the federal Works Progress administration in Illinois shifts relief clients to "made work" projects and the placement of an estimated 32,000 relief cases under old age pensions after Jan. 1.

Gov. Horner has refused to call a special session of the Illinois general assembly or to adopt extraordinary measures for the future operation of relief. Howard O. Hunter, regional representative of the federal emergency relief administration, told the IERC a week ago that Illinois would require $3,000,000 for relief and only $2,000,000 was available from the state sales tax receipts.

The governor and his advisors replied early this week that the transference of persons from the relief rolls to old age pensions would make up the estimated monthly shortage of $1,000,000.

MRS. HERT QUITS POST AS G. O. P. VICE CHAIRMAN

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Alvin T. Hert of Louisville, Ky., tonight announced her retirement from politics and her resignation as vice chairman of the Republican national committee and as national committeewoman from Kentucky.

"I've been greatly interested in organizing Republican women," she said, "and I've been active for the last 12 years as national committeewoman from Kentucky.

"That's a long time, and now I think I am entitled to do some of the things I have been too busy to do before. I think it's time I stepped aside and let some other women take over.

"This is a personal act of my own and has no relation to policy or my beliefs."

CALIFORNIA G.O.P. CHIEF HAS VISIT WITH ALF LANDON

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Mark L. Requa, close friend of former President Herbert Hoover, spent almost two hours today discussing politics and economic problems with Gov. Alf M. Landon. Both said their meeting had no political significance.

Requa, California Republican national committeeman, stopped here on his way to Washington to attend a meeting of the G. O. P. national committee to select the party's 1936 convention city.

Aequa also called on Senator Arthur Capper, who has come out for Landon for President, and John D. M. Hamilton, general counsel for the G. O. P. committee.

Capper and Hamilton said "party politics" were discussed, but candidates were not mentioned.

ASK QUIZ INTO WPA POLITICS IN KNOX COUNTY

Galesburg, Ill., Nov. 29.—[Special.—Petitions urging Congressman J. Leroy Adair of Quincy and J. F. McElwee, district WPA director, to investigate charges that "inter-party politics of the grossest character are being played in WPA appointments in Knox county" were placed in circulation here today.

The petitions charge that a local Democratic faction has formed a coalition with the old Len Small group of the Republican party, and that many of the WPA jobs in Knox county have been given to the latter.

SUPREME COURT WILL SAVE U. S., JURIST HOLDS

Texas Democrat Trusts Highest Tribunal.

New Deal legislation will not destroy the country as long as the United States Supreme court exists, a distinguished assembly of lawyers and judges was told last night by Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson Jr. of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, whose jurisdiction is in Texas.

Judge Hutcheson and Chief Justice Clyde E. Stone of the Illinois Supreme court were the principal speakers at a dinner tendered to the Illinois Supreme court judges in the Hotel Stevens by the Illinois Bar association. The dinner followed a number of meetings by sections of the state bar association at which various subjects were considered for recommendation to the main body at a later meeting.

Power Is Aim of Politics.

Judge Hutcheson said that all efforts in politics are to the end of gaining power. Then the power is directed to the enacting and enforcing of laws which express the ideology of those "who have the government," the jurist said.

The oath taken by naturalized citizens, as well as by those elected to office, is not of allegiance to men or to the state, he pointed out, but "to support and defend the constitution against all enemies, foreign and domestic."

"The constitution affects all laws enacted, and the laws are constitutional or not as the Supreme court says, and it will be so as long as the people are not misguided into a change that will put into other hands the power of saying whether a law is the law.

Take It He's a Democrat.

"There is lots of talk these days that congress is passing laws to destroy us. I say give them rope and let them ride, and I say this as a southern Democrat, one who would vote the Democratic ticket if the devil headed it.

"If what congress is doing is with the consent of the governed, if it is within the charter of liberty, it will be so decided.

"If not, there sit in the seats of the mighty the nine good men and true to whom I'm willing to trust the justice of the courts."

Justice Stone said the most important duty of the bar today is to impress on citizens that an independent judiciary is most essential to the continuation of the freedom of this country.

Hits Heavy U. S. Spending.

Meanwhile at the section on taxation meeting H. S. Hicks of Rockford, section chairman, severely criticized the unparalleled spending of government money.

"The federal government is spending $28,000,000 a day and is borrowing 60 cents of every dollar it is spending," he said. "And it's spending the money for such senseless projects as raking leaves out of cemeteries. In three days it spends enough to build a concrete highway from New York to San Francisco.

"The only alternative to repudiation or inflation is immediate and drastic curtailment of expenditures—and a hundred years of paying and paying until it hurts."

Urges State Justice Bureau.

Discussion of the advisability of creating a state department of justice in Illinois as an aid to law enforcement took place yesterday in one of the section meetings. This group, discussing "Criminal Justice," also considered the possibility of creating a state police department with wider power than is now delegated to highway police, and amendments of the federal law to simplify the deportation of criminal aliens.

Prof. Earl H. De Long of the political science department of Northwestern university discussed the creation of state departments of justice, emphasizing the benefits these added arms of law enforcement would effect in the reduction and control of crime, and pointing to some possible drawbacks.

Urged By National Bar.

Last year the American Bar association, meeting as a body, recommended that the individual states organize such departments. Prof. DeLong emphasized the example set by the state of California which followed the recommendation and established a state department of justice, placing it under the jurisdiction of the attorney general. Prof. DeLong, however, questioned the advisability of heaping further responsibility on the shoulders of the attorney general.

Assistant Attorney General Emory Smith said he believed such a department would give an attorney general too much authority. Local police have resented the activities of the federal department of justice in their communities, he declared, adding that he believed the same jealousy over home rule might be encountered if a state department of justice were created.

Calls State Unit Logical.

Dean Albert J. Harno of the University of Illinois said the state is the logical unit of law enforcement and that while complaints of federal encroachment are heard, the strengthening of state laws might eliminate the cause for such complaints.

The repeal of the state capital stock tax law was urged in a report read to the taxation section by Attorney Floyd E. Britten. A mail vote is to be taken on the question.

A committee consisting of James P. Harrold, Owen Rall, Dean Harry A. Bigelow of the University of Chicago, Dean Webster H. Burke of Chicago-Kent College of Law, and former Judge Robert K. Welsh of Rockford, submitted a report to the section on admission to the legal profession. Their recommendations are for two instead of three examinations a year, that a committee on character and fitness be appointed for each of the eighteen judicial districts in the state instead of for the four Appellate court districts, and that the committee act before the applicant takes the bar examination.

SUES OPERA COMPANY FOR $10,000

Mrs. Daisy Maud Underwood of Kansas City, Indian opera singer, known as Princess Pakanli, who yesterday filed $10,000 suit against the Chicago City Opera company and its manager, Paul Longone, charging breach of contract.

ance would cost. He said he thought he could find a sponsor. He mentioned several people—Phillips, the Oklahoma oil man, and the mayor—what do you call it—the governor of Oklahoma, and the Indian tribes.

"Only two weeks ago the princess was in here with three prominent Chicago women—I can't tell you their names, but they will be called to testify at the trial—and said they thought they could find a sponsor. I advised them then that she should have more training first.

"As to her moving into the Congress, she told me she was broke. I told her I could get her a room there for $2 a day. That was all there was to that."

Longone was asked then about rumors which have been prevalent in musical circles that artists with more ambition than talent had been permitted to appear in operas upon making contributions toward the company's deficit. Those tales have been more prevalent since the resignation a week ago of Gennaro Papi, musical director of the company, although Papi has not substantiated them in any public statement.

The Answer Is: "LIES!"

"Lies, all lies," he asserted vehemently. "They are being circulated to ruin the opera. Bring me one person who can prove that she paid to sing and I will give you $1,000."

Reporters waiting to see Longone yesterday afternoon had as company three opera employés, apparently union stage hands or other technical help. That trio were heard to say that if they were not paid by 10 o'clock this morning, they would quit. Questioned about that, Longone answered more seriously.

"The pay rolls are not due until tomorrow night," he said. "They will be met as soon as we get the $15,000 from the city. We have an arrangement with the unions."

Peterson added that the city council had already voted the money. The opera this year, he said, has the smallest deficit in history, $40,000, of which $25,000 will be taken care of by guarantors and the remainder by the city grant.

Arvey Explains the Situation.

Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], president pro tem of the council, then took the stage to tell about the $15,000. For it the city is to get an hour's broadcast by stars of the opera on a national chain, for which the network time and the talent has been promised free, he said.

But, he added, the council has not technically approved the expenditure. It has authorized a transfer of funds, but will not vote on the actual appropriation until its next meeting, a week from Wednesday.

"I am having a conference tomorrow with Mr. Longone," said Ald. Arvey. "I know that Mayor Kelly will not approve the expenditure unless he is sure everything is O. K. with the company. We have an agreement with the unions that the money will not be turned over to the company until all wages are paid."

The Case of Miss Gerber.

Miss Mildred Gerber, a protégée of Ald. and Mrs. Arvey and others, sang in the opera Thursday night. In view of the rumors which Manager Longone denied, Ald. Arvey was asked if she had paid for her appearance.

"Tut, tut," chided the alderman. "You should know me better than that. What we did do was pay for some special advertisments and the people who had heard Miss Gerber sing responded so well that the opera had almost a sell-out."

SLAYER DENIES ANY REMORSE IN GEBHARDT CASE

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Occasionally faltering, her icy composure now and then shattered, Vera Stretz said today she felt no remorse for the slaying of Dr. Fritz Gebhardt, wealthy German industrialist, for whose death she is charged with first degree murder.

In her first public interview, given in a bare room in the women's prison, the blonde university graduate answered questions, alternately composed and burying her face in trembling hands.

"I can't help feeling that any decent girl would have done the same thing under the circumstances," she said.

Would she do it again?

A deep blush mantled her pale features. After a moment she dropped her face into clasped hands which trembled violently.

"Oh, please——," she half sobbed.

Again her composure broke when asked if she still loved Dr. Gebhardt, the father of two children and husband of a wife in Germany. She did not reply.

DILLINGER ALLY, TWICE PAROLED, GETS 15 YEARS

Sam Goldstein, 44 years old, one of the original members of the John Dillinger gang, was sentenced to 15 years in the Indiana penitentiary at Michigan City by Judge William J. Murray in the Lake county Criminal court yesterday at Crown Point. Goldstein and an accomplice, Thomas Gathright pleaded guilty of holding up a tavern in Hammond on Sept. 5 and received identical sentences.

Goldstein was serving a two to fourteen year sentence in the Michigan City penitentiary for assault with intent to kill a sherif when he met and became a friend of Dillinger. Both men were paroled on the same day, May 23, 1933. Goldstein was reported to have aided in planning the escape of other members of Dillinger's gang shortly afterward. Goldstein was arrested and was returned to prison as a parole violator. He was again paroled in September, 1934.

Boy 'Doing Well' After His Stabbed Heart Is Stitched

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Stanley Pankowski, 16 year old Wilmington boy, whose punctured heart cover was stitched last night, was reported "doing well" today. The police said they were told Pankowski placed the point of a pen knife against his chest and Frank Zaremba, another boy, stepped backward and struck the handle of the knife. Police said they believed the stabbing an accident.

SEARCY ASSAILS NEW DEAL RULE ON PENSION LAW

Warns of State's Loss of Sovereign Power.

At the close of this week's sessions of the Illinois general assembly, Senator Earl B. Searcy, minority leader gave out some comments bearing on the state's proposed social security program.

"Forecasts of recent weeks, regarding potential Illinois costs, surrender of state sovereignty, and the elimination generally of domestic state control, in the matter of social security, appear to have been pitifully conservative in the light of reported advice just received from the federal social security board at Washington," Mr. Searcy said.

"It appears now that Illinois, if she attempts to track with Washington in social security 'assistance,' will face the probability of an interminable number of special legislative sessions, all at the expense of our state's taxpayers, in the subservient effort to keep Illinois laws matched with federal patterns.

"Gov. Horner sent two official emissaries to Washington to ask the New Deal social security board about pending 'old age assistance' and other measures in the special session, which enters its sixth week of procrastination next Tuesday.

Must Pass Law First.

These emissaries, it is reported, have brought back, in effect, the following message:

"'The federal social security board cannot pass upon that phase [amount of state assistance to the aged and the accompanying state administrative setup] until the plan is officially submitted to it, and it cannot be officially submitted until the bill has been enacted into law.'

"The giver of this ultimatum, it is reported, is Frank Bane, secretary of the federal social security board in Washington. His tart pronouncement, coupled with the explicit provision in the federal law that his board shall have the right to approve any Illinois statute on the subject, before it is operative, obviously completes the process of abolishing Illinois' state lines, at least so far as social security measures go.

Calls It Disgraceful Sham.

"If Roosevelt and his New Deal manipulators were not trying to envelop the aged citizens of Illinois in a disgraceful sham, under the false guise of 'old age assistance' alias 'pensions'; . . . then some slight comfort might be found in federal burocracy's attempt to control Illinois lawmaking. But back of it all is the avaricious Rooseveltian determination to try to make people think they are enjoying benefits that do not exist.

"Just now our legislature is wrestling with an alleged 'old age pension' measure that won't be a pension bill, even if it is enacted.

"Then, if it is passed, the law—not the measure in the making—must go to Washington for approval. If it isn't approved, back it comes, and another special session ensues, with Illinois taxpayers paying the bill, not Washington. Meantime, the old folks wait. Even if eventually they get something, it won't be the 'pension' Roosevelt and his New Deal have fraudulently promised them. It will be, first, an enforced pauperization; then a scant dole."

2 PAROLED CRIME 'REPEATERS' GET HEAVY SENTENCE

Terms Expected to Keep Both in Cells for Life.

CRIMINAL COURT.
JOSEPH MALEC and ANTHONY SUGEL, robbery, sentenced to 20 years each under habitual criminal act and 1 year to life, to run consecutively; Allen Williams, confidence game, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge D. J. Normoyle.

Two paroled convicts, crime "repeaters" identified in 38 recent robberies, were sentenced to 20 years in prison under the habitual criminal act and to additional terms of one year to life for robbery by Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle of the Criminal court yesterday.

Judge Normoyle specified that the sentences are to run consecutively and prosecutors were hopeful that the combined terms would keep both men in prison for the remainder of their lives.

The two men are Joseph Malec, 30 years old, and Anthony Sugel, 26 years old. Both have lengthy police and prison records.

Paroled After Robberies.

The last entry on Malec's record shows that he was sentenced to prison on May 25, 1928, on four charges of robbery, and was paroled last Aug. 15. The latest entry on Sugel's record shows that he was sentenced on Aug. 8, 1925, for robbery, and was paroled on May 18 of last year.

Among the recent robberies in which the two were identified was that of the Windermere hotel, 1642 East 56th street, in which a score of persons were the victims, last Oct. 12. The robbers lined up Miss Terese B. Otten, cashier in a drug store in the hotel, and twenty customers and robbed them of their money and jewelry. Then they took the money from the store cash register and from the hotel vault and escaped. Their total loot was about $3,800 in money and jewelry.

Brother Gets Separate Trial.

Stanley Malec, a brother of Joseph, who was indicted as the alleged driver of the robbers' car, has demanded a jury trial, which is set for Dec. 9.

The men's arrest resulted from police work that drew the commendation of Judge Normoyle and Prosecutors Richard Austin and Frank Donoghue.

Several weeks ago the police found abandoned the automobile of Dr. Girard N. Krost, 6900 Paxton avenue. The car had been reported stolen last Aug. 27. A fingerprint was found on the rear vision mirror of the car. At the police bureau of identification the print was identified as that of Joseph Malec. He was arrested and the others were rounded up and later identified at showups.

A Hint to Parole Board.

"These sentences," said Austin and Donoghue as the men were led away, "should effectively rid society of two dangerous criminals. The parole board now has no excuse to turn them loose again."

Jackson D. Ryan, 37 years old, a paroled convict from the Wisconsin state prison in Waupun, who confessed to having robbed 40 taxicab drivers in recent months, was held to the grand jury in $75,000 bonds on 21 counts by Judge Joseph A. Graber in the Automobile court yesterday.

Alimony to Blind Man Lapses; Ex-Wife in Court

Mrs. Anne Sunde, 43 years old, owner of a dress shop at 1933 East 71st street, appeared yesterday before Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort on a rule to show why she should not be held in contempt of court for failing to pay part of $330 she is in arrears in alimony to her former husband, Ludwig, who is blind. Her attorney, Norman Becker, told Judge Desort that Mrs. Sunde was in financial difficulties. She paid $10 on the arrears and the case was continued to Jan. 29.

MEN PICKED AS BEST DRESSED IN U. S. DISPLEASED

Field, Astaire, Stewart, Edsel Ford on List.

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—It may flatter a woman to be chosen the best-dressed of her sex, but when you give a business man the title of "tailor's dummy," he's likely to get hot under the collar—no matter how perfect setting that collar is—or be called out of town by pressing business. Some of this year's victims, the ten men announced today by New York's leading tailors as the best-dressed in the United States, seem to feel that the unsought honor is more trouble than it's worth.

The list, which was drawn from a composite selection by recognized style authorities, indicates that the pace setters in sartorial elegance are the business leaders of the country. Of the ten, Hollywood and its movie colony contributes but one, Fred Astaire, the dancer-actor.

The Best Dressed.

Here is the list of men style leaders:

1. Edsel Ford, Detroit automobile manufacturer.
2. William Rhinelander Stewart Jr., New York real estate operator.
3. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle of New York and Philadelphia.
4. William Goadby Loew, New York broker.
5. Adolphus Busch II. of the St. Louis brewing family.
6. Marshall Field of Chicago.
7. Isaac Newton Perry, Chicago financier.
8. Richard K. Mellon of Pittsburgh, nephew of Andrew Mellon.
9. Walter D. Teague, New York industrial designer.
10. Fred Astaire, the dancer-actor.

Mr. Astaire's high rating is attributable to his recent pictures, especially "Top Hat," one tailor said.

"He has done more this year to encourage the wearing of tailcoats than anybody else," his tailor said.

Mr. Astaire, however, also is a careful dresser out of pictures. He has a yen for neckties, with hundreds of them in his wardrobe.

Why They Were Chosen.

Mr. Ford was cited as a perfectly dressed business executive, while Mr. Stewart was called, by one stylist, "the outstanding man in a dinner suit" in New York. Mr. Biddle has "a great variety of clothes for any occasion and knows how to wear them," and Mr. Loew was called the "Beau Brummell of Wall street."

The tailors said that Mr. Busch shows "great versatility in dress for business and social life." He wears a gray topper at steeplechase events.

Mr. Field is known for the "meticulous attention he pays to all the details of dress," while Mr. Perry is "sophisticated in his formal evening attire and in his outing attire."

Feigns Appendicitis in Jail; Kicks Nurse, Flees Hospital

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Toive Heino, 18, feigned appendicitis so realistically that he was taken from his jail cell to a hospital today, kicked a nurse in the shins, and escaped. The youth, booked as an automobile theif, convinced his guard that he needed an immediate operation. He was left unwatched at the hospital because he was "too sick to need a guard." As nurse Helen Hughes approached to prepare the patient for the operation, he leaped from the stretcher, kicked her, slapped her face, and jumped out a window.

CHINESE TROOPS DRILL FOR WAR WITH JAPANESE

Nanking Files Two Stiff Protests with Tokio.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Nov. 29.—A Chinese protest to Japan regarding the encroachments in north China by the Japanese army was followed today with the most extensive Chinese military and aviation demonstration ever staged in this country. The demonstration included sham battles, air defense maneuvers supported by ground activities, and drills on first aid to the population in dugouts and other emergency quarters.

The air demonstration extended from Nanking to Shanghai, a distance of 200 miles, and thence to Hangchow, 100 miles southwest of Shanghai. This is the triangular area likely to be affected in the event of war with Japan over the Japanese army's movement to separate north China from the central government and set up a Japanese "puppet régime."

The latest type of planes and air defense equipment, most of which were purchased from the United States or manufactured here of American materials, were used.

Two Protests to Japan.

Two sharp diplomatic protests were filed with Japan by China. One protested the occupation of Peiping and Tientsin railway stations by Japanese troops. The other protested against the machinations of Japanese army officers in the so-called autonomy movement.

The second protest said "disgruntled elements, acting in connivance with Japanese military officers," plotted the independence movement in the five northern provinces. The note also said the movement was "contrary to popular desires."

The protests aroused the animosities of Japanese militay leaders at Tientsin.

Defends Japan's Action.

Maj. Gen. Hayao Tada, commander of Japanese forces in North China, declared that China's object is to obtain help from the United States and Great Britain by "dragging in the nine power treaty and making Japan responsible, but a new era is dawning in North China and China's old tactics cannot prevent it."

[The nine power treaty was signed Feb. 4, 1922, by the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France, Italy, China, the Netherlands, Belgium, and Portugal. The signatories pledged to respect the sovereignty, independence, and administrative integrity of China, to provide the fullest opportunity for China to develop stable government, and to maintain the "open door."]

In addition to a direct protest to Japan, the Nanking government also notified all foreign diplomats in China and cabled Chinese diplomats abroad that the autonomous movement in north China is illegal and was instigated by the Japanese army.

Urge China to Resist.

China's sudden stiffening of her attitude toward Japan has caused representatives of foreign powers to make inquiry of the Nanking foreign office. Lifting of the press censorship, too, caused Nanking to be deluged with resolutions and telegrams demanding resistance to Japan and suppression of the autonomists.

It is hinted that Japan is now desirous of localizing the controversy. The Japanese are continuing mobilization of troops at the Great Wall passes and at Tientsin and Peiping. Chinese claim the Japanese are planning a gigantic air, land, and naval demonstration at Tientsin soon.

Japan Disowns Autonomy Move.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Japan officially has disavowed to Great Britain responsibility for the north China autonomy movement, it was learned tonight.

The vice minister in charge of the Japanese foreign office in Tokio told A. F. H. Wiggin, the British chargé d'affaires, that Japan considers the movement to be entirely Chinese and wholly spontaneous, authoritative sources said. Japan is watching the Chinese developments as an interested spectator, the vice minister stated.

Wiggin was said to have sought clarification of conflicting reports on the situation. It was understood the chargé d'affaires had not called the nine power treaty to Japan's attention pending further instructions.

In London the Japanese viewpoint was accepted as a polite diplomatic dodge, and it left the future course of British action unclarified.

Despite the response, informed sources said it was clear the Japanese are resorting to almost the exact tactics they used in presenting Manchukuo to the world as an independent state, over which they professed to have no jurisdiction.

Dr. Sze Calls on Hull.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—Dr. Alfred Sze, the Chinese ambassador, today informed Secretary of State Cordell Hull of developments in north China. Sze would not comment on his visit to the state department other than to say he conferred with Mr. Hull on direct instructions from his government.

Canadian Hunters Prepare to Slaughter 500 Buffaloes

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Huntsmen oiled rifles today for a buffalo hunt unequaled since pioneer guns swept the mighty bison from the North American plains a half century ago. Slaughter of 500 shaggy beasts from overstocked herds at Elk Island will begin next week. Projected slaughter of 1,000 buffalo at Wainwright was canceled after fire destroyed the abbatoir there. A packing company has contracted for the meat.

They have been kept in incubators and have gained two pounds since birth. LAUNCH RADICAL REFORM SCHEME IN NEW ZEALAND

New Chief Promises an "Ultra New Deal."

BY QUENTIN POPE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Nov. 30 [Saturday].—The coalition of moderate parties which has governed New Zealand for the last generation resigned today and Michael Joseph Savage, who promises a "new deal" to eclipse "new deals," became the first Labor prime minister in the history of the country.

The nation is recovering from a stunned surprise at its own vehement repudiation of the moderates at the polls, which gave Labor a 3 to 1 majority in the legislature.

Plans Radical Reforms.

Savage said he would not injure the interests of any one, but at the same time expressed determination to put a radical policy into effect. Analysis of this policy reveals he has committed himself to surprisingly little compared with the general party policy. In carrying out his program, leaders pointed out, he will have, if he desires, the aid of the moribund war control legislation which exists despite repeated pleas for its removal. These laws would give him the power of an economic dictatorship.

Savage said he will restore wage cuts, find jobs for the unemployed, and end exchange inflation by substituting prices guaranteed on the basis of an 8 year average. He foreshadowed pensions for all over 60 years old on the basis of the country's production capacity. He promised to end burocratic control, restoring the functions of parliament, to alter taxation, to start a national housing scheme, and restore 3 year parliaments.

Plans No Loans.

These things are not so drastic in a country which has lived on the edge of state socialism for 40 years. All of them will be done without loans, tax increases, or inflation, though the source of the money was not revealed.

Savage said he would take over the national reserve bank only "if necessary for the control of credit."

JAPAN'S CABINET ACCEPTS LARGEST MILITARY BUDGET

TOKIO, Nov. 30 [Saturday].—(AP)—The cabinet approved today the largest army and navy appropriations in the history of the Japanese empire, constituting 46.8 per cent of the total estimated expenditures for the coming fiscal year. The appropriations were approved after a 21 hour session. The action concluded a week of heated contest over the framing of the budget for the year beginning April 1, 1936.

Acceptance by the cabinet is generally regarded as meaning almost certain passage of the budget estimates by parliament at its session beginning Dec. 24.

The navy is to receive 552,000,000 yen [about $159,480,000], while the army gets 508,000,000 [about $146,870,000]. This compares, respectively, to 530,000,000 and 491,000,000 for the present budget. The total of the new budget is estimated at 2,271,000,000 yen [about $658,590,000]. The present budget totals 2,122,000,000 yen.

RUSSIA PROTESTS ARRIVAL OF JAP SHIPS AT BORDER

MOSCOW, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The soviet government protested today against the alleged appearance of Japanese vessels on the Amur, Usuri and Sungari rivers along the soviet-Manchukuo border.

The Moscow government maintained this was in violation of an agreement signed in 1934, which barred all except soviet and Manchukuan vessels from the frontier riverways.

An official statement said the Japanese government had promised to investigate the alleged treaty violation.

BRAZIL SEIZES 4 REVOLT LEADERS; 1,300 PUT IN JAIL

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Dispatches from Recife reported tonight the arrest of Lamartine Coutinho, alleged leader of the Recife branch of this week's abortive communistic revolt, in which at least 1,300 persons were seized.

The arrest of three extremist leaders also was reported by the governor of the State of Rio Grande Do Norte. The men were said to be Jose Macedo, Joao Baptista Galvao and Lauro Lago, described as key figures in northern government opposition circles.

President Getulio Vargas, who political observers thought had strengthened his position as a result of the crushing of the rebellion, received thousands of messages of support from organizations of all kinds throughout the nation, it was announced officially. A delegation of congressmen visited him, offering their congratulations.

The president gave great credit for the government's success to Gen. Joao Gomes Ribeiro, minister of war. Vargas cited Ribeiro's message to all army posts in which he said that "on traitors will fall the maledictions of all patriots and the hate of the army, which continues vigilant in the defense of the nation."

2 Reported Dead, 2 Hurt as Plane Crashes in China

SHANGHAI, Nov. 29.—(AP)—A trimotored airplane of the Eurasia Aviation corporation was reported today to have crashed, killing two occupants and injuring two more, in a forced landing between Lanchow and Sian, in northwest China. The two dead were believed to be the German crew while the injured were passengers.

GERMAN PASTORS REJECT ORDER TO OBEY NAZI CHIEF

Prussia Will Ban Synod; Funds Seized.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—Hans Kerrl, German minister of church affairs, today announced that he will issue a decree next week dissolving the brotherhood councils of the confessional [Protestant] church synod in Prussia.

This announcement followed Kerrl's failure to exact unquestioning obedience from confessional leaders.

"I will no longer tolerate the interference of the brotherhood councils in internal affairs of the Protestant church," he warned the leaders. "Not the confessional church, but I myself, am here to enforce order. My advice to you is to be calm, keep quiet and wait."

Quotes Hitler's Remark.

Kerrl quoted Reichsfuehrer Hitler's remark: "I can err, but even then you must support me." The minister added he, too, could also err, but that he could not allow others to do so or all would collapse.

The Rev. Dr. Mueller of Dahlem on behalf of the confessional leaders rejected Kerrl's reference to Hitler.

"We are in the church and on a different basis," he said. "We stand on the gospel which says, 'I am the truth.'"

"You are talking too long," Kerrl retorted. "It means nothing to me."

Whereupon the confessional leaders withdrew.

Funds Are Confiscated.

Subsequently they issued a statement that they will continue to hold their posts and preach the gospel despite the threat of dissolution. This was made difficult by the fact that Nazi authorities confiscated the funds of the confessional synod. The funds seized are those placed in the hands of trustees pending a solution of the dispute with the government's finance department.

Cardinal Bertram of Breslau came to Berlin today to consult with Papal Nuncio Orsengio concerning a protest to the government against the continued detention of Prelate Banasch of the bishop of Berlin's office, and Prelate Clemens, head of the Catholic Youth organization of the Rhineland.

Arrest Two Catholic Churchmen.

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Secret police descended on the Wuerzburg bishopric and arrested Vicar General Miltenberger and a cathedral priest, Dr. Harth, yesterday, it was revealed today. It is believed the arrests, which followed upon a search of the two men's lodgings, indicated a fresh attack on the Catholic clergy for alleged anti-Nazi activities.

NAZI CHIEF DENIES THREAT TO BURN OXFORD COLLEGE

Hanfstaengl on Stand in Libel Suit.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 29.—With a pained expression on his face, Dr. Ernst Hanfstaengl, chief of the Nazi foreign press bureau, told a British court under oath today that he never swore against Oxford professors and never uttered a threat attributed to him—"I will send some of our swine to burn down their Oxford."

The assertion that he did was made last year by William Ormonde Thompson, American lawyer, after a talk with Dr. Hanfstaengl and was reproduced by the London Daily Express from the American magazine Time. Dr. Hanfstaengl promptly sued the Daily Express for alleged libel.

Hanfstaengl Appears Sad.

There was infinite injury in Dr. Hanfstaengl's voice as he testified today before Justice Sir Rigby Swift and a packed courtroom to deny ever having made such a threat. There was sadness in his manner at the suggestion that he ever lost his temper or did such a "vulgar" thing as call communists "swine."

"What hurt me most," he said, "was the idea that somebody would say I would burn down the finest seat of learning in the Anglo-Saxon world. It is just like saying I would burn down Goethe's or Schiller's house.

"I did not roar at Thompson. I did ask him, 'what would they say if those communists burnt down their Oxford?'"

American Quotes Hitler's Aid.

Shortly before the case was adjourned until Monday Thompson went on the stand and declared under oath that Dr. Hanfstaengl had told him:

"Damn Oxford professors! I will send some of the swine over to them so they can burn down their Oxford."

[Dr. Hanfstaengl is a graduate of Harvard. He came to the United States in June, 1934, to attend a reunion of the class of 1909. On his arrival in New York he escaped a hostile demonstration by leaving the dock by tugboat instead of a cab.]

PRINCETON HEAD TO HELP CUBA SET ELECTION DATE

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, Nov. 29.—President Mendieta today threw the blame for postponement of the general elections scheduled for Dec. 15 on the political parties of the island and announced that Prof. Harold Willis Dodds, president of Princeton university, would come to Cuba to draw up an electoral formula to resolve the situation and permit the elections to be held.

"In the face of the attitude of the political parties, the government does not wish to impose a formula which might be interpreted as favoring any contendent," the president said, "and, therefore, is seeking impartial counsel to resolve the present problem."

CHINA CLIPPER MADE READY FOR RETURN FLIGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 29.—The China Clipper was being prepared for its 8,000 mile trip back to Alameda, Cal., today as the celebration of its arrival at 3:31 p. m. [1:31 a. m. central standard time] continued. The return voyage begins Dec. 2.

The giant flying boat of Pan-American Airways had alighted on Manila bay just about 4 minutes behind schedule—a delay caused by the many small boats on the bay—to complete the first trans-Pacific flight of air mail. The entire trip from Alameda, including stops at Honolulu, Midway, Wake, and Guam, took 6 days, about 16 days better than the best time a steamer has made.

About 1,400 pounds of mail was taken to the Manila postoffice from the plane. Capt. Edwin C. Musick personally delivered a letter from President Roosevelt to President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines.

HITLER EXPLAINS HIS 'POPULARITY' AS A DICTATOR

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler served terse notice on the world tonight that "the German people will furnish their own protection." In a brief allusion to international affairs during a speech before his biggest indoor audience, the fuehrer declared: "We will rely on our own power—not that of the league of nations."

Plainly in a happy mood, Hitler expounded his own philosophy of popular dictatorship before an overflow throng at the opening of the new Deutschland halle.

Answering his own question, "What make a dictator popular?" he asserted: "I became popular by opposing so-called popular opinion."

Hitler declared his 15 year struggle to power had made the Nazi movement strong and successful because "we had to swim upstream." Similarly, he asserted, the difficulties which Germany faces will serve only to make her stronger.

Hitler poked fun at his enemies, who, he said, first predicted his downfall within six weeks and who now are trying to guess what dark horse eventually will succeed him. He referred to them as "obscure Cæsars."

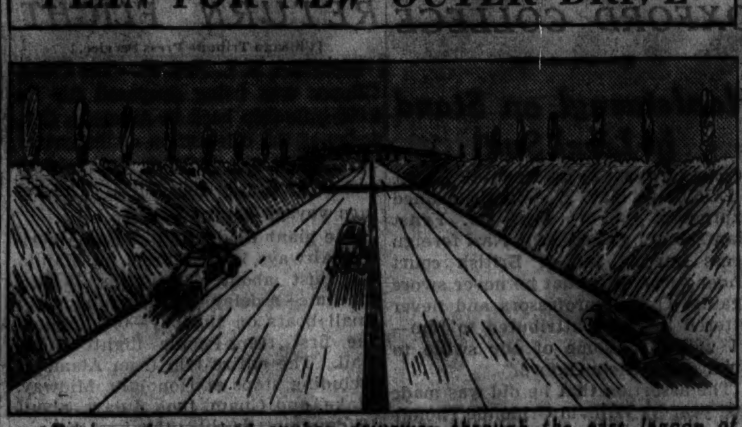
NEW OUTER DRIVE WILL BE BUILT NORTH OF RIVER

Will Speed Bridge Trafic to Lincoln Park.

PLAN FOR NEW OUTER DRIVE



Design of proposed sunken driveway through the east lagoon of Lincoln park, funds for which are sought by the Chicago park district. Construction work on the section of the new drive between Ohio street and North avenue is expected to start soon.

BY HAL FOUST.

With the completion of the outer link bridge assured by the granting of federal funds, Robert Dunham, president of the Chicago park district, announced yesterday that a new superhighway, an outer drive, is to be built to serve as a north side connection with the link bridge structure. He said he hoped that work on this new roadway would start next month and would be complete from Ohio street to North avenue by the time the bridge is open to trafic, in a year or eighteen months.

Moreover, Mr. Dunham made public plans for extending the superhighway north from North avenue as a depressed boulevard through Lincoln park to Diversey parkway and thence, with pavements at grade but segregated from cross trafic and pedestrians, to Byron street. This scheme north of North avenue, it was learned yesterday, was submitted as a federal Works Progress administration project but was not approved by federal authorities because it could not be completed by next spring.

Money Ready for 1½ Miles.

"We'll build from Ohio street to North avenue," said Mr. Dunham, "regardless of whether we get federal aid. It's a necessity to get any degree of efficiency from the new bridge. We'll have money available for the job through the park district's refinancing plan.

"We're prepared to build north of North avenue, through the park, if the next session of congress makes another unemployment relief appropriation. If the policy of allocating federal funds for public improvements is discontinued, we'll have to build through the park with park money as soon as funds are available."

The detailed specifications for the new roadway from Ohio street to North avenue will be announced within a few days. Small changes are still being made by the engineers.

Route Along Beach.

In general, however, the plan is simply for a new express pavement to be laid between Lake Shore drive and the lake. Through trafic would be removed from Lake Shore drive and from narrow Oak street.

The location and design of grade separations and pedestrian subways and bridges still are receiving the attention of the engineers. It is intended that the express pavement be free of cross trafic and of pedestrians.

More spectacular is the proposal for an express highway through the park, as suggested by Otto K. Jelinek, the park district's trafic engineer. A pavement would be laid in the narrow and shallow lagoon north of North avenue to create a depressed boulevard. The present outer drive would become a service drive for a parking area for a new beach extending from North avenue to Diversey parkway. The depressed roadway, with overhead bridges for cross trafic and for pedestrians, would return to surface level north of Diversey.

From Diversey to Byron.

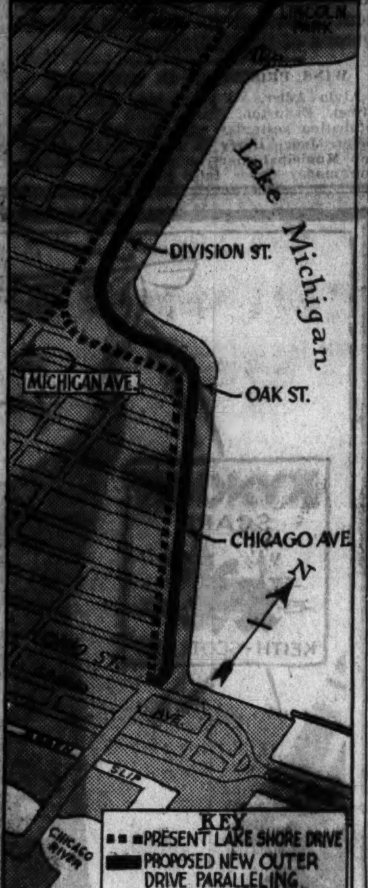
North of Diversey, a new pavement would be laid on the east side of present Lake Shore drive to Byron street. The superhighway would consist of the new pavement and the east half of the present pavement. Here again, grade separations and pedestrian subways and bridges would keep the express lanes free of cross trafic and walkers. The west half of the present pavement would become a local drive serving abutting property.

"It's imposible," said George Donoghue, general superintendent of the park district, "for the present pavements to carry any considerable volume of trafic to and from the north end of the outer link bridge.

Plan to End Irregular System.

"The development through the park is needed not only for the accommodation of through trafic but also to increase the area for general recreation facilities and to protect the general recreational activities from the automobile trafic that now wanders over the meandering, old driveways.

"Furthermore, we want to remove the present eccentric rush-hour trafic control as soon as we can substitute modern pavements; this eccentric control is merely a temporary expedient to move rush hour crowds.'"



Map showing the route of the proposed new north side outer drive which would carry trafic from the new bridge at the mouth of the Chicago river.

Gives Up Car Till Dec. 31 to Avoid $100 Penalty

Nicholas Panzica, 32 years old, 4026 Jackson boulevard, consented yesterday to have his car impounded until Dec. 31 and thus avoided a $100 fine in the South State Street court of Judge Eugene J. Holland. He was arrested on Monday at Leavitt and Harrison streets on a charge of passing to the left of a street car. Hale Lewis, 20 years old, 1215 East 62d street, charged with driving without state or city licenses, will avoid a $20 fine if he keeps his promise to destroy his cheap car before Dec. 7, Judge Holland ruled.

Youth Seized in Burglary Confesses Fifty Crimes

Capt. Thomas Duffy of the Sheffield avenue police said yesterday that Raymond Paris, 17 years old, 1205 North La Salle street, who was seized in a burglary Wednesday night, has confessed to more than 50 other burglaries. His loot in some of the burglaries was in excess of $1,000, Duffy said. Paris was arrested after he had broken into the apartment of Col. Henry A. Allen at 400 Briar place.

MARKET EXPERT AND 3 OTHERS GET U. S. PRISON

Edward B. Gable, 121 South Harvey avenue, Oak Park, a market research specialist, was found guilty yesterday in the federal court of violating the federal stolen property act. Judge Charles E. Woodward heard the case without jury and fixed Gable's punishment at five years in prison.

Mrs. Lydia Welker, 78 years old, a widow of Wyaconda, Mo., was the complainant against Gable and five other defendants. Three of these, Andrew Ritter, Curtis W. Coats and George M. Lindsay, have pleaded guilty. Ritter was sentenced to one year, Coats to five years and Lindsay to two years' imprisonment. Samuel Caplow was found not guilty and Mrs. Helen Stroh, the sixth defendant, was granted a separate trial.

According to Mrs. Welker's testimony, Coats and Ritter persuaded her to give them $7,000 in Liberty bonds in October, 1934, in exchange for worthless deeds to real estate.

The prosecution, conducted by Assistant District Attorney Martin J. Ward, was the first in Chicago under the new la wwhich makes it a federal offense to transport stolen securities across state lines.

MAYOR REOPENS CAFES CLOSED BY GAMBLING SQUAD

Mayor Kelly said yesterday that he is restoring food purveyor licenses to 15 restaurants and cafés which have been closed during the last three weeks by police gambling squads.

"I have decided that closing the restaurants is too drastic," the mayor said. "However, all of the owners will be called in by Police Commissioner Allman and informed that if they again permit pin games in their places of business they will again be closed, and next time they will stay closed."

Largest of the 15 places affected by the new order is Kitty Davis, Inc., a tavern at 245 South Wabash avenue, which will regain its restaurant and cigaret licenses. The liquor license, however, will not be restored unless the liquor control board orders such action, Mayor Kelly said. Daniel Davis, operator of the Kitty Davis, has started court action to gain restoration of the liquor license.

N. Y. POLICE CAPTURE 2 BANDITS; RECOVER $6,200 GEMS AND CASH

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—After robbing a night club entertainer and her companion of jewelry and money valued at more than $6,000, two holdup men were captured by police early today in a wild automobile chase, in which about 40 revolver shots were fired. Four bullets pierced the windshield of the police car, narrowly missing detectives.

The victims of the holdup were Frances Faye, night club entertainer, and Joseph Eichenbaum, a cigar manufacturer. Miss Faye was robbed of two diamond rings valued at $6,200 and Eichenbaum of $150 in cash. The loot was recovered.

Miss Faye was seated at the wheel talking with Eichenbaum, who stood on the sidewalk, when two masked men approached, one on either side of her car.

One of the men shoved his revolver against Miss Faye. The other prodded Eichenbaum. Miss Faye's hand was on the steering wheel and one of the robbers pulled the two rings from her hand. The other relieved Eichenbaum of his wallet. They ran to a sedan and drove away.

Miss Faye ran into a restaurant and notified two detectives, who leaped into a police car and gradually overhauled the fugitive car, capturing its occupants.

N. U. ELECTS FOUR LIFE MEMBERS TO TRUSTEE BOARD

William A. Dyche, Robert W. Campbell, Charles Hallett Thorne and John H. Hardin were elected to life membership on the board of trustees of Northwestern university at the board meeting Thursday night in the Palmer house, according to an announcement yesterday. Mark Cresap, president of the board, said it was the first time in the university's history that life trustees were elected.

Dyche has been a trustee since 1882 and was business manager of the university from 1903 to 1934. Campbell, an attorney, now residing in Pasadena, Cal. became a trustee in 1916 and was president of the board from 1923 to 1930. He was active in the campaign for the building of the university's downtown campus.

Thorne, who was president and chairman of the board of Montgomery Ward & Co. for many years, became a university trustee in 1927. Hardin is a former president of F. A. Hardy & Co., opticians, and is now a director of the First National bank. He was elected president of the board of trustees in 1932 but retired this year because of ill health.

NEW CALUMET SEWAGE PLANT OPENS TUESDAY

Ceremony to Start Modern $5,500,000 Works.

Plans for the opening next Tuesday of the new $5,502,000 Calumet sewage treatment plant at 126th street and Cottage Grove avenue were announced yesterday by Ross A. Woodhull, president of the sanitary district, which started a $120,000,000 building program in 1931. Since 1934 the work has been financed through the sale of bonds to the federal Public Works administration.

Mayor Kelly, leading Chicago engineers, and officials of engineering societies have been invited to attend the opening ceremony. Shortly after 2 o'clock Mr. Woodhull will open the valve admitting tons of sewage into the plant system and Joshua D'Esposito, resident engineer in charge of the district's PWA construction, will press a button to start the blowers in the sludge treatment tanks.

Tanks Ready to Operate.

J. M. Mercer, an engineer for the district, accompanied by a reporter, inspected the plant yesterday.

With the exception of the incinerator plant—which is the most unusual part of the project from an engineering standpoint—all was found to be in readiness for operation. L. B. Barker, the construction engineer, said the incinerator also would be completed within 60 days after settlement of a strike which has been caused by a jurisdictional dispute between the machinists' and carpenters' unions.

The Calumet plant will serve an area of 53 square miles south of 87th street with a population of 238,000. To carry sewage to the works from Harvey, Phoenix, Riverdale, and Dolton a new intercepting sewer was constructed at a cost of $1,030,312.

Channel Serves as Waterway.

Originally this area drained into Lake Michigan through the Calumet river, but the flow of the river was turned away from the lake by the opening of the Sag channel in 1922. Now the channel is being improved to serve as the connecting link between the Illinois waterway and Calumet harbor.

With the new plant in operation, sewage will be 90 per cent clean before it is released into the channel. At present it is 40 per cent "clean."

Coming in through three enormous tubes, sewage will be pumped into 22 open cement tanks, each 425 feet long and 17 feet deep. In the six hours the sewage is in these tanks, compressed air will be forced in, circulating the liquid with a rotary motion. The process reduces organic matter to a solid which may be settled or filtered out.

Flames Purify All Fumes.

From these tanks the sewage enters 15 final settling tanks, 91 feet square and 15 feet deep, where the solid sludge is drained into concentration tanks. Finally the sludge cake is dried in a newly developed drier and blown into a furnace where, in suspension, it is burned. All vapors arising from the drying process are passed through the high temperature flame in the furnace which destroys any odor.

"No offensive odors will come from the plant," Mr. Mercer said, "and when the sludge is burned there is nothing left to dispose of but ashes."

Effective and Economical.

This process, perfected by the engineers of the sanitary district after more than six years of research, is declared to be far in advance of any other employed elsewhere. It eliminates the expensive sand drying beds, which left a product that was transported to some uninhabited area, where it was piled up to remain indefinitly.

The new process also provides year round operation, whereas the sand drying method made it necessary to store the sludge accumulated during the winter. It is estimated that there will also be a substantial saving in operating costs.

FREE EX-CONVICT IN THEFT.

A charge of petty larceny against Joseph Murphy, 29 years old, 810 North Clark street, a former convict, who confessed that he stole three watches from hotel rooms, was dismissed by Judge Francis Borrelli yesterday on Murphy's promise to leave the city.

STATE STREET SHOPPERS SET 6 YEAR RECORD

Christmas Buyers Tie Up Trafic, Jam Walks.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

State street merchants agreed yesterday that the crowds of shoppers which surged along the street, tied up trafic and filled the stores was the largest day-after-Thanksgiving crowd experienced since 1929. The day after Thanksgiving traditionally begins the season of Christmas buying.

The head of one large department store declared that it was without doubt the greatest crowd in numbers the store ever held in any one day of its history. He could not predict what the buying volume would be, but explained he was convinced the toy business in dollar volume would be the largest in recent years. He estimated that 100,000 adults and children visited the toy floor of his store during the day.

A Happy, Buying Crowd.

"The crowds were happy, jovial, and apparently in a holiday mood," he said. "We believe it was a buying crowd. I attribute the phenomenal crowds to the fact that we carried a great deal of advertising in THE TRIBUNE and to our attractions in the toy department."

Waiting in line to get a place on an escalator was a familiar story in the various stores. One newly installed escalator carried more than 12,000 persons by actual count from the first to second floor between 9 o'clock and noon, one department store official said.

This official said that the crowd in his store was the largest day-after-Thanksgiving chrowd of any year that he could remember. He attributed it to "ideal weather, the fact that people have more money to spend, and that they are more conscious of Christmas this year.

"Last year we had a fine December's business, which was much larger in volume than the previous year's," he said. "This year undoubtedly will see the largest volume of Christmas buying in recent years. The unit sale is larger in money volume than that of last year.

Useful Presents in Vogue

In another department store a company official agreed that "this is a grand day, and there are more persons in the store than any day after Thanksgiving since 1929," but said he thought the unit purchase no higher in volume than last year's, and predicted that useful presents rather than luxuries will rule.

"We are having bigger crowds today than on any day after Thanksgiving since 1929," the advertising manager of another large department store said.

LIVERMORE BOY NEAR DEATH AS MOTHER IS HELD

Shot Son, 15, Because He Drank Too Much.

be by your side as soon as possible. All my love. Dad."

The elder Livermore had got word of the shooting at St. Louis while he was on the floor of the St. Louis Merchants' exchange. He made no comment but left immediately for Santa Barbara by plane. He now makes his home in New York with his third wife, the former Harriet Metz Noble of Omaha. She planned to accompany him west.

Doctor Tells of Shooting.

Undersherif Ross said he was notified of the shooting by Dr. Ussher, who had been summoned to the home by the guest, Neville. Ross said he went to the hospital, where he ascertained that the boy and his mother were intoxicated.

"From what I learned in talking to Neville," Ross said, "both mother and son became engaged in an altercation over his drinking. Mrs. Livermore told the boy she would rather see him dead than drink to excess.

"The boy then went to a closet, got a .22 rifle and handed it to her saying, 'Well, here you are.' Mrs. Livermore took the rifle and fired. The bullet lodged near the boy's spine."

Ross said young Livermore had been "more or less incorrigible," and that he recently left the Dean school in Montecito and enrolled in the exclusive Laguna Blanca school, a private institution.

Jesse's brother, Paul, 12, was in a guest cottage at the estate at the time of the shooting and did not witness it. The butler also told officers he was not near the portion of the house where it occurred. The guest, Neville, said he had been in the living room shortly before the shooting but left the room for a moment, dashing back after the shot had been fired.

In voluntary bankruptcy entered by the senior Livermore in New York more than a year ago it was disclosed he had set up $100,000 trust funds for each of his sons. Jesse Jr.'s trust fund is tied up in litigation over his custody.

Mrs. Livermore was the former Miss Dorothea Wendt of Brooklyn. She married Livermore in December, 1918. A Reno divorce ended this union in 1932. She then married Walter Longcope of New York, a former prohibition agent. After a divorce from Longcope last August she resumed the name of Livermore.

Father Famous as Speculator.

The elder Livermore has been called one of the famous figures in American speculation, attaining great prominence as a brilliant manipulator in Wall street's boom days. He is credited with having made and lost several fortunes running into millions of dollars.

He was known as "the boy plunger" when he entered Wall street at the age of 25 shortly after the turn of the century and took a leading rôle in the copper boom of 1905. He was said to have emerged from the 1907 panic with a fortune of 3 million dollars.

In later years steel and wheat drew his interest and shortly before 1920 he was credited with taking 10 million dollars from the Chicago wheat pit. He was suspended from trading in the Chicago grain market when he went into bankruptcy in New York. Action on his application for reinstatement, made last March, was indefinitly postponed. He subsequently withdrew the application and directors said his status would be reviewed only if he filed another application.

Although noted for his ability to switch from the "bull" to the "bear" side of the market in the ebb and flow of finance, Livermore was reported to have been hard hit in the 1929 stock market crash.

Little has been heard of him or his operations since then, except in December, 1933, when he was mysteriously missing for two days. He dropped from sight after leaving his Park avenue apartment in New York for the offices of his broker. Fears that he had been kidnaped were raised, but he returned home safely the next day.

Since entering bankruptcy Livermore has not been active in Wall street. However, his presence in the St. Louis exchange today indicated his interest in the markets.

Rarely in Pit Recently.

His name has been linked by rumor with sudden bursts of activity in the Chicago grain pit, but he has been seen there rarely in recent years. Traders said it would not be impossible for Livermore to conduct business on the Chicago exchange even though he is under suspension. Before he is reinstated he must give a satisfactory showing that he has made settlement with all his creditors.

Livermore was married three times. His first wife was Miss Netit Jordan of Indianapolis. They were married in 1900 and divorced in 1917. The following year he married Miss Wendt. He married his present wife in March, 1933.

Artists to Paint 2 Years in South Seas and Indies

Ruf was born in Omaha and studied at the Chicago Art institute. Feher came to Chicago from Budapest. They plan to spend six months on the island of Kuai in the Hawaiian group, then to visit Samoa, Australia, Tahiti, Bali, and the East Indies.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

'Possums Active

THE 'possums on both the Wheaton and Yorkville experimental farms apparently caught the idea of a big dinner on Thanksgiving day, judging from the way these animals have acted during the last few days. At Yorkville one fat old 'possum was apprehended while he was raiding the chicken coop near Clarence Thurow's house, and at Wheaton Rawlings picked up another of these night prowling animals that must have had his mind set on a chicken dinner.

Binks, the peppy little fox terrier on the Yorkville farm, gets the credit for saving a fine big rooster from becoming a 'possum dinner. About 9:30 in the evening Clarence noticed that Binks was creating quite a disturbance near the kitchen door. Then he heard the poultry making a noise when they should have been asleep. So Clarence picked up a flashlight and a club and hustled to the poultry house with Binks racing ahead in the darkness. When they opened the door of the building the flashlight showed a husky male 'possum with some rooster feathers in his mouth. Binks, always eager for a fight with anything from a skunk to a ground squirrel, rushed to the attack. He bit the would-be chicken thief on the neck and then the 'possum rolled over and played dead—a play that puzzled Binks no end. He didn't know about this trick. However, Clarence wasn't fooled by the typical 'possum strategy and he dispatched the animal with his club. Both Louis Thurow and Charley Sleezer have been losing chickens from their poultry houses due to the raids of the animal, so the hope is that the capture of this 'possum will put an end to the losses.

The boys were remarking yesterday that it looked now as if real winter had set in. A temperature of 20 degrees yesterday when they rolled out in the darkness to do chores . . . numb fingers when it came time to pick corn by hand . . . frozen fields . . . muskrats and 'possums in the traps that one of the boys is setting on the farm . . . the Herefords glad to get out of the driving wind and biting snow that whipped out of the north . . . thin ice on the pools . . . these and many other signs around the farm remind one that Jack Frost has a firm hand on the landscape. . . .

In addition to a war on 'possums here on the farm, Doetschman has had to go into action against the field mice. A pair of them raided Charley's desk in the information house, took a lot of papers, including the records on the rainfall at the farm for the last five months, and then tore up this material to make a nest in a drawer of the desk. Mouse traps are now set in the information house to catch these four footed marauders.

The sheepfold at the Wheaton farm is well occupied these days with lambs divided into two groups. It seemed warm and snug in this sheltered spot after being out in the biting wind, and I noticed that, besides lambs, there were a number of chickens enjoying the protection against the elements. Jimmie, one of the pet lambs, came up to greet me just as soon as I stepped into the sheepfold. This fellow still is so tame that at times he's a nuisance.

The Muscovy ducks have their old pal with them again. The English call duck that was raised with the ducks on the pond wasn't brought up to the barnyard with the rest of the Muscovys when the latter were moved, but literally out of the clear sky he appeared at the barnyard this week in order to join his friends. It's easy to identify this bird because it limps—due probably to the attack of a mud turtle some time during the summer.

'Federal Tax' Racketeer Gets Two Years in Cell

Samuel Crawford, 32 years old, colored, 521 East 46th street, who collected a "federal tax" from housewives by telling them their husbands had won money on horse races, was sentenced to a total of two years in the Bridewell on four charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. He was tried before Judge Harry H. Porter in the Evanston Municipal court yesterday.

BIRD BANDERS SWAP TALES OF MIGRATORY LIFE

Amateurs Trap for Science; Meet Here.

The Inland Bird Banding association held its annual meeting at the Chicago Academy of Sciences yesterday. Its members, bird lovers ranging in age from 18 to 70, being more interested in their hobby than in parliamentary formality, speedily got rid of the business at hand—they reelected all officers in one motion.

With that task out of the way they got busy with discussions of their favorite topics—the homing instincts of birds, the number of wild ducks and geese or other birds banded this fall, whether the lineage of any of the feathered emigrants was unusual, and what types of traps were being used.

The association, a central western organization, was formed in 1924 to assist in the work of banding which has been carried on by various groups in North America since 1902. The membership includes 2,000 amateur ornithologists, who coöperate with the United States biological survey. Officials said 25,000 birds are banded each year by the association in the Chicago-Milwaukee area.

How Banding Aids Study.

The banding is done to make possible the scientific study of the habits and travels of migratory birds. The members trap the birds, attach numbered bands and release them. Information concerning each banded bird is filed in Washington, and when the birds are captured again reports are filed and the data traced.

These amateurs are thus constantly amassing information about bird life; how long various kinds of birds live; what routes they travel in migration, how many miles they make in a day, whether they return to the same locality, and even their marital constancy.

Bird enthusiasts who have chosen banding as a hobby consider their choice one of real value to natural history. William I. Lyon of Waukegan, president of the organization, who has captured birds from the arctic circle and from the West Indies and Central America, said:

"My hobby is not a selfish one—like riding a horse, for example. I am contributing something to birdlore every time some new fact is proved.

"Just now we've all concluded that birds have a homing instinct. They return again and again to the same nesting place, and their winter home. Besides that, the birds I've banded get to know me. I find them returning many times to my feed traps."

Builds Sanctuary in Waukegan.

At his Waukegan home Mr. Lyon has developed a bird sanctuary where doves, pigeons, bluebirds, robins, thrushes, and almost every other winged specie find a welcome.

Edward R. Ford, 2013 Greenleaf avenue, secretary of the association, said:

"The best thing about our hobby is that it is an every day interest. We put on rough clothes, and regardless of the weather, get vigorous exercise daily checking our traps."

Vice presidents of the association are Clarence Bretsch of Gary, Ind.; E. S. Thomas of Columbus, O., and M. J. Magee of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., who also is treasurer.

Membership is available to all persons interested in the study and protection of birds.

WAITKUS, OCEAN FLYER, RETURNS HERE TOMORROW

Felix Waitkus, 28 years old, the pilot who flew the Atlantic last September in an attempt to reach Lithuania nonstop, will return to Chicago tomorrow. Some 5,000 Chicagoans of Lithuanian descent who financed the flight are expected to gather at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium to greet the young flyer.

900 DAIRY FARMERS REFUSE TO SIGN NEW CONTRACTS OF PMA

Up to last night 900 members had canceled their contracts with the Pure Milk association, coöperative bargaining agency for 18,000 dairy farmers in the Chicago milk producing territory, according to officials of the organization.

Today is the last of the fifteen day annual withdrawal period in which members have the privilege of canceling contracts. Approximately 500 members have not been delivering through the association since the milk strike about six weeks ago when dissatisfied farmers took steps to form a new coöperative.

BANDIT ADMITS KILLING FORMER WIFE IN CULVERT

Hidden by Sherif, He Tells of Crime.

Twin Falls, Idaho, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Two peace officers announced tonight that Douglas Van Vlack had admitted killing his pretty divorced wife, Mildred Hook, 22, whose body was found today in a culvert near here. She had been beaten and shot.

A coroner's jury already had named Van Vlack as the slayer and Prosecutor Edward Babcock announced he would charge the strapping former Washington university student with murder and demand the death penalty.

Oris Cryder, Twin Falls county deputy sherif, and A. C. Parker, Buhl, Idaho, chief of police, said Van Vlack had admitted he slew Miss Hook, whom he abducted from Tacoma, Wash., because officers were pressing closely on their trail after a gunfight Monday in which Fontaine Cooper, state highway patrolman, was slain. Deputy Sherif Henry C. Givens was wounded severely in the fight.

Returned from Hideout.

Sherif E. F. Prater returned Van Vlack to the county jail here tonight after having taken him to Burley, Idaho, this morning for safekeeping.

The girl was shot through the left eye, a wound identical to the one that cost the life of State Patrolman Fontaine Cooper in the encounter with Van Vlack.

Ralph E. Leighton, former chief of police, said he believed the assailant induced Miss Hook to crawl into the narrow tunnel, ostensibly for shelter and when her head was thrust from the end, her arms pinned to her sides, battered in her skull and shot her.

Father Loses Hope.

Miss Hook's father, Joseph Hook, 50 year old ex-cowboy, writer of mystery and crime fiction, was near collapse. Earlier today, however, he said he had "half given up hope of ever seeing her alive."

She was sought by Idaho officers as a material witness against Van Vlack.

Van Vlack's mother blamed his troubles upon his former wife. She said the young woman "kept telephoning him" after the divorce action was filed, "talking to him for hours."

Demands Jewish Workers Give Up Jobs to Aryans

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—"The basic principle which must be emphasized is that Jewish workers must make way for Aryans," the Nazi Social Policy, an organ of the social department of the German Labor Front, said today. The paper made this declaration in commenting on the judgment of a Berlin court ruling that the dismissal of a Jewish worker is an "unjustifiable hardship."

SIAMESE TWINS UNITED IN PLEA FOR CITIZENSHIP

Ottawa, Ill., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Difficulties confronting Lucio and Simplicio Godino, 27 year old Siamese twins of nearby Lostant, in surrendering their Filipino citizenship and becoming naturalized Americans, today developed fantastic complications.

The twins, who were brought to the United States in infancy and have made their living in vaudeville, wrote to the immigration bureau to learn how they could become citizens. Edward T. Ryan, La Salle county clerk, informed them they would be required to serve three years in the United States army in compliance with the immigration law.

Army service for the twins, who are joined at the hips, inspired a host of ludicrous conjectures. Suppose they landed in the cavalry, could both ride the same horse? What if they were assigned to sentry duty on different reliefs? If one became an officer and the other his aid, they couldn't stay the necessary paces apart. The whole idea left the Godinos and their spouses, for both are married, quite rueful.

DIVORCED WIFE OF N. Y. BANKER DIES FROM FALL

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Helen Moran Fahnestock, 34, divorced wife of Col. Snowden A. Fahnestock, the banker, died tonight at New York hospital of injuries she suffered Thanksgiving day when she jumped or fell from the third floor home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Spring Knapp.

Mrs. Fahnestock was a descendant of several prominent New York families. She was Helen Morgan Moran, the great-granddaughter of Matthew Moran, minister to Russia and founder of a New York banking house. She was a great-granddaughter of Dudley Selden, noted in the civil war. On her mother's side she was a great-great-granddaughter of Robert Adams of Philadelphia, founder of the Black Ball line of clippers. Her great-grandfather, Charles Moran, was one of the railroad builders of the country. She and Col. Fahnestock were married at Newport, June 15, 1925.

CONVICT HUSBAND FOR BEATING OF IN-LAWS IN HOME

Harold McCauley, 32 years old, 612 West 87th street, was found guilty by Judge Joseph Burke in the Criminal court yesterday of assault with intent to kill his wife's sister, Myrtle Brown, and her husband, Clarence, in the home where all three lived last Sept. 7. A motion for probation was continued until Dec. 13 when the victims testified as to McCauley's previous good conduct and officials of the Surface Lines promised that McCauley would retain his job as a street car conductor.

McCauley testified yesterday that he had been drinking on the day that he went home, seized a flatiron, and beat Mr. and Mrs. Brown so severely that at first it was feared they would die. He fled to Houma, La., where he was captured.

Seize Driver of Truck Hauling Brewers' Yeast

Thomas Bilotti, 32 years old, 2113 York place, Blue Island, was arrested by state police in Blue Island last night when found driving a truck loaded with brewers' yeast and unable to explain for what it was to be used. He said he was asked by a friend to drive the truck to Calumet City. Police said they are investigating to see if the yeast was intended for some illicit still.

WATCHMAN IS FREED FOR SECOND TIME IN SCAHILL KILLING

For the second time a coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide yesterday at an inquest into the death of Edward Scahill, 26 years old, 3908 Division street, who was shot and killed Nov. 11 by Felix Clossey, a private watchman. The jury found that Clossey fired in self-defense while Scahill was assaulting him at North avenue and Pulaski road.

A few hours after the shooting a coroner's jury brought in a justifiable homicide verdict and commended Clossey. Scahill's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Scahill, 5401 Blodgett avenue, Downers Grove, was dissatisfied with the verdict and asked Chief Deputy Coroner Victor Schlaeger to reopen the inquest. Schlaeger then filed a petition in accordance with her wishes and it was granted by Chief Justice Walter J. La Buy of the Circuit court.

Clossey repeated yesterday the story he had given at the previous inquest. He said a cab driver had summoned him to North avenue and Pulaski road where Scahill was struggling with another driver to whom he had allegedly announced: "This is a stickup." Clossey, an ex-soldier, who lost his left arm in the war, said Scahill, who was 6 feet 4 inches tall, wrenched off his artificial arm and he then fired, killing Scahill. The cab drivers corroborated Clossey's story. Scahill's relatives had asserted that he merely asked a cab driver to help him start his automobile.

CHARGES THEFT OF WIFE'S LOVE; SEEKS $100,000

Suit for $100,000, charging alienation of his wife's affections, was filed in the Superior court yesterday by Louis J. De Wolf, 824 Sunnyside avenue, against Henry E. Newell, 832 Argyle street, part owner of the Howard theater, 1621 Howard avenue. De Wolf, who is an official of the La Grou Motor Service company, 932 North Franklin street, alleged in the bill that his wife, Ella, had been given money and taken on trips through the United States and abroad by Newell.

Mrs. De Wolf's affections were allegedly stolen in the period from September, 1929, to last May, the bill said. Although a law which went into effect last July 1 prohibits the filing of such actions, suits can still be brought for acts occurring prior to that date.

Newell, at his home, denied the charges. He admitted knowing Mrs. De Wolf, but said he had not seen her for the last year. Newell was married three weeks ago.

VERDICT OF NATURAL DEATH.

James O'Hara, 65 years old, 6325 Kenwood avenue, died of heart disease Thursday night in a restaurant at 1376 East 63d street, a coroner's jury decided yesterday.

JUDGE ASSAILS PSYCHIATRIST'S STAF FOR DELAY

The staf of Dr. David B. Rotman, Municipal court psychiatrist, was criticized as slow by Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli in the Chicago avenue court yesterday.

Judge Borrelli's criticism came after he was told that the examination of two men sent to Dr. Rotman's office more than two weeks ago was still incomplete. The men are Walter Comeaux and Glenn Smellenberger, both of 27 West Superior street, charged with disorderly conduct. They have been locked up since their arrest.

"It is outrageous and unfair," Judge Borrelli said, "to keep these men in jail because of delay in their examination." He telephoned Dr. Rotman and was assured that the report of the examination will be in court today.

Dr. Rotman in a statement later attributed the delays to lack of coöperation on the part of complainants and to inadequate facilities for incarcerating separately those awaiting mental examinations.

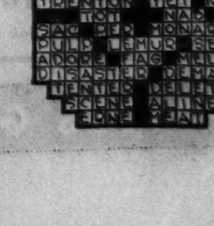
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



BOOKS

Publish Notes of Napoleon's Aid in Flight

De Caulaincourt Memoirs Notable Book.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"With Napoleon in Russia," from the memoirs of Gen. de Caulaincourt [Morrow, $3.75]. Published yesterday. December choice of the Book of the Month club.

"WITH NAPOLEON IN RUSSIA" is the most interesting contribution to Napoleana of our day. Rebecca West, reviewing the English edition of the memoirs, called it "Easily the most impressive closeup of Napoleon by a contemporary." One might think that by this time everything had been written about Napoleon and certainly that all contemporary pictures of him had been made public.

There has never been a character in history that has had so many books hung about his memory. Almost every one of his generals remembered him in detail and in print during the years after his spectacular career closed so thoroughly. And from the source material literally hundreds of biographers have told his life story with their own interpretations.

Alone with General on Flight to Paris.

But always the man who was with him alone on the swift flight from the Russian retreat to Paris kept silent. De Caulaincourt was with him constantly during the Russian campaign, literally at his side during battle [it was his business as master of the horse to ride immediately beside the emperor and to offer his horse if Napoleon's was wounded]; present in most of the councils during the campaign, and when Napoleon decided to rush back to Paris and leave the army to face the remainder of the Russian winter and the Russian forces as best they could, it was De Caulaincourt who raced in a rickety sleigh with him across hostile Europe to Paris.

During the long days they spent together Napoleon talked frankly to his aid about whatever came into his head—his wife and the prince of Rome, the Spanish campaign, his plans for a peaceful Europe [after thoroughly conquering it by force]; Talleyrand, many of his ministers, and his far-flung dynasty which he declared never supported him.

When Napoleon would lie down for an hour's rest while the horses were being changed De Caulaincourt would make notes of the day's conversation. All during the campaign he had made careful notes of the emperor's conversation which was not so fluent with him at that time because Napoleon was more often than not annoyed at De Caulaincourt's honest answers to his chief's questions.

De Caulaincourt Familiar with Russian Weather.

De Caulaincourt had been ambassador to Russia and knew not only the Czar Alexander and the Russian army and the Russian people but what proved even more of an enemy than czar, army, or civilian population—the Russian climate. Napoleon, misled by the mildness of the Russian fall, refused to believe that the Russian winter could be more savage than all the Cossack hordes on the Russian plains, and he delayed the departure from Moscow until death rode or walked beside every soldier in his army and stalked their generals.

The first two-thirds of the book supplement and amplify the source material already available about the Russian campaign. The last third is a unique contribution, because in it Napoleon's mental processes are recorded during what must certainly have been the most reflective period of his hitherto violently active life.

Two weeks of enforced inactivity, fleeing from a campaign which had ended in a shambles, must have turned Napoleon's mind inward as it had never been turned before. His conversations during those long hours show no loss of confidence in himself or even in his star.

Here Are Reasons for Delay in Publication.

De Caulaincourt says many times that the slightest good news entirely wiped out in Napoleon's mind the most depressing of bad news, and it is possible that the very fact of being on his way to Paris and away from Russia was enough to heighten Napoleon's spirits.

Every one will ask why are these important memoirs just being published? The reason is this. The notes were made during the campaign. De Caulaincourt began editing them in 1822. He died in 1827 leaving two copies. One without his corrections was sent to Paris, the other with his final corrections was kept at his château in Picardy. Fear of libel suits from those living who were mentioned in the memoirs kept them from the public at first. An alliance with the descendants of Marat [who was most thoroughly shown up in the memoirs] delayed their publication further.

It was not until 1913 that the family decided that they belonged to the public. A famous French publisher, Plon, contracted for their publication, De Caulaincourt's grandson was about to send the script to Paris when the war broke out. In 1917 the château was bombed by the Germans and the corrected MSS. lost, apparently, forever. After the war, work was started on the publication from the uncorrected MSS. in Paris. In August, 1933, the architect engaged to rebuild the château found a battered iron chest in a heap of débris and in it the original MSS. corrected in De Caulaincourt's writing.

The English edition was translated from this corrected version, which differs in practically no detail from the uncorrected copy. The editing of the French memoirs was done by Jean Hanoteau. George Libaire abridged and edited them for the American edition.

Tells of Flight with Napoleon

"Out From Shanghai" Tells of High Adventure at Sea

Sydney Parkman has added a new volume to his list of lively sea tales in his "Out from Shanghai" [Harper, $2.00], a stirring story of high adventure in oriental waters. This fast moving sea yarn is one of the best marine thrillers of the season. Well written and with real people involved in its murders, piracies, and all around deep water deviltry.

Poet Masefield Turns to Seas for New Novel

Presents a Stirring Story of Adventure.

John Masefield, England's sailor poet-laureate, again has turned to the sea for his latest novel, "Victorious Troy, or the Hurrying Angel" [Macmillan, $2.50], a stirring chronicle of sailing ship days. Two-thirds of this salty yarn are as lively a deep water tale as the most avid reader of sea adventure could ask for, with a brutal captain, a terrific south sea cyclone, a badly wrecked ship, and thrills aplenty.

The other third is nearly waterlogged with sailing ship technicalities, so minute and detailed that at times only an experienced old shellback could understand what it's all about.

But, overlooking these minor navigation difficulties, the reader sails along on sweeping adventure, told in clear cut, lovely prose, in company with a picturesque crew of British sea dogs.

The youthful hero, Dick Pomfret, senior apprentice, assumes command of the "Hurrying Angel" when the Old Man is crushed and battered and the other officers blown to death by the cyclone. How he saved the old windjammer by his skilful seamanship after the drunken captain had failed to snug down for the gale is a forceful tale of youthful heroism amid harrowing handicaps.

"Many seamen now living will remember cases in which sailing ships dismasted, or left without officers, were brought to port by 'boys,'" the author points out in a note. "I have talked with one of these boys and have seen the portrait of another. Their deeds are among the glories of their profession." A. C.

BEG YOUR PARDON

Last week we listed some lovely books just published by a new press organized by booksellers to give the public their favorite books in fine editions. By a too generous linotype the new publishers were called the Hermitage Press, instead of the Heritage Press. Maybe it's a sign you can give all of the books with enthusiasm to old Aunt Em as well as to all the rest of the family.

Army Surgeon Describes Long Service in India

"I'd Live It Again," by Lieut. Col. E. J. O'Meara [Lippincott, $2.50], is the provocative title of a lively life history of an army surgeon in India. The author lives over again with gusto his youthful days. He had a glorious time in India and not only remembers it vividly but has the ability to tell about it interestingly.

"Treasure Island" Sequel Is a Good Story of Adventure

Writing a sequel to a world famous masterpiece is a ticklish task, which the author of "Back to Treasure Island" [Vanguard, $2.00], frankly and modestly admits. But Harold Augustin Calahan has succeeded admirably in bringing back to life Jim Hawkins, Long John Silver, Black Dog, old Ben Gunn, and the rest of Stevenson's picturesque pirate crew, and has supplied them with a roistering lot of adventures in their second search for buried treasure.

"I have tried to write the story as Stevenson would have written it," the author says. "If there is merit in the book, it is Stevenson's, not mine. So if you have not grown too old or too modern to enjoy one of the greatest romances ever written, step again with me upon the old Hispaniola and sail 'Back to Treasure Island.'"

And don't hesitate to take this venturesome voyage if you think this is merely a juvenile. Like "Treasure Island" it was written for youth but should prove fascinating to any age. It's a rattling good yarn.

Reveal Some Information About New Barrie Play

A book note from Smith & Haas, New York publishers who will publish the play in book form, says "The wall of secrecy which has surrounded the new Barrie play has crumbled to the extent that it is now reported that Elizabeth Bergner's rôle in it will be that of the young David in the Bible story and that Augustus John will design the settings and costumes."

'The Politician' Studies Front Porch Variety

But This Book Explains Their Speeches.

"THE Politician — His Habits, Outcries, and Protective Coloring" [Stokes, $3.00], is dedicated by its author, J. H. Wallis, to Machiavelli, who would think it, although interesting, much too simple. Mr. Wallis' hero is the front porch politician. He is of the forum, the hustlings, the opery house, and the county fair. Machiavelli would would prefer the boys in the back room with whom in their natural estate the author has nothing to do. He does not get off the front porch.

Champ Clark was better than Woodrow Wilson in outcries and protective coloring, but Roger Sullivan and Charlie Murphy made Wilson what he never would have been without them, which was President of the United States. In the other party Boies Penrose did not care who wrote the nation's songs so long as he made its laws and Mr. Penrose's best remembered, if not longest, speech was: "Well, they were tired of us anyway," they being the people of the United States and us being the Republican boys who nominated Taft the second time.

The reader must not be beguiled by Mr. Wallis into thinking of his politician as containing the complete picture of democratic folkways and communal habits. Furthermore the politician is American and of the present day, which might lead to the conclusion that he is new and that democracy has discovered something. Such is not to be the inference. Within set limitations the author has filled a book. If the study is to go further there will have to be a shelf of them.

Mr. Wallis finds his text in the selected writings and occasional utterances of John F. Hylan, Calvin Coolidge, Thomas J. Heflin, Herbert Hoover, Royal S. Copeland, Huey Long, Hamilton Fish, Robert E. Wagner, Al Smith, William Borah, and many others. These are gentlemen of various sorts but as politicians they are found to have or have had much in common.

A successful politician is one who agrees with the largest number of people on the greatest variety of subjects having nothing whatever to do with any office for which he is or has been a candidate. When he says "My friends" he means that he wears their kind of clothes, eats their kind of food, reads their books, plays their games, shares their ideas, believes that horse chestnuts prevent rheumatism, and walks around ladders.

Agreeing with the most people may mean being born of their stock, to begin with, or, second best, admiring it and sharing its prejudices and loyalties. It is a very simple fact that in few American cities are any streets being renamed for Rochambeau, Galvez, or Col. Barre, whereas an eloquent regard for Leif Ericson, Christopher Columbus, Pulaski, Kosciusko, Von Steuben, Haym Salomon, or Crispus Attucks may not prove that the politician is a statesman but if he said "never heard of him" it would prove that the statesman was no politician and he wouldn't be a statesman.

Although Mr. Wallis' instances are for the most part taken from conspicuous public life the best classroom illustration is humbler. The candidate wishes to be county attorney of Throckmorton county, Tex., and he addresses his fellowman:

"As for myself I am an Arkansas Hill Billy, born and raised in the Ozark mountains; outran the dogs on Sunday morning to keep from having my face washed—did my sparking barefooted—never saw a train until I was 15, and was almost grown before I learned that Republicans walked on hind feet like people. Have farmed with a bull tongued plow—taught school—practiced law, and am a first class mechanic, having worked a right smart around a molasses mill. Came to Texas two years ago and married the finest little girl in Throckmorton county."

This candidate, Mr. Jeff Fowler by name, has succeeded, it will be observed, in making a transfer of the whole of Throckmorton county to himself. He has lifted the electorate right out of its own shirt and stuffed it down inside his. Starting with the initial disadvantage of being Arkansas born he has overcome it and swept to a triumphant agreement with everybody on everything not pertaining to the office of county attorney which in the larger view has nothing to do with the matter anyway.

This rule applies to Mr. Al S——h, Mr. H——t H——r, and F——n D——o R——t, as well as to the lesser practitioners. If one of them made the mistake of speaking critically or disparagingly of the habits, conventions, customs, or dogmas of any great section of the American people his competitors would hang him up as a smoked goose.

If F——n D——o R——t should take to wearing highland kilts, or begin eating with chop sticks Mr. Farley would at first remonstrate and then look for another candidate. The people may stand for the hog tax, but never for kilts and chop sticks. The politician does not wear them or use them. He wraps himself in the habiliments of the plain people and will if expedient eat peas with his knife.

Miss Rawlings Falls Short of First Success

But New Novel of Florida Is Worth Reading.

Marjorie Rawlings, whose first book, "South Moon Under," was concerned with the life of the Crackers or poor whites in Florida has followed it with another novel laid in the same country, "Golden Apples" [Scribners, $2.50]. It is written with the same sensitive portrayal of the colors, the sounds, the tempo of that to us strange and primitive land.

The two most lifelike and appealing characters in the tale are Crackers, Luke and Allie, orphan children of a Florida tenant farmer, and the first chapters describing their desperate struggle for existence and their devotion to each other are terribly poignant. With the entrance of the Englishman, who comes to claim the little home they have wrested from the hammock [wild growth of forest], the first stereotyped situations arise.

Richard Tordell is too much the regulation, cut and dried American notion of the Britisher in exile. He is so extremely typical that he doesn't ring true. Luke and Allie are real people, but he falls short.

The lady orange grower is interesting, if true. And perhaps she is. Anyway, the oranges are there, acres and acres of them, "golden apples" described so vividly you can almost smell them and pick them. The book is worth reading just for the passages that deal with their growth and culture.

The melodrama of the final chapters is a bit thick. Miss Rawlings has to kill off two of her characters to make a happy ending. "Golden Apples" reads easily, but it is not such high achievement as "South Moon Under."

Novel Heroine of 1850 Keeps Her Popularity

Reference by Chamberlain Boosts Sales.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Some books never die. In the course of his autobiographical volume, "Down the Years" [Cassell], Sir Austen Chamberlain mentions that he once asked the late Lord Balfour who was his favorite novel heroine.

Lord Balfour at once answered that although he could not recall her name he regarded the heroine of "The Initials," by the Baroness Tautphœus, as the most charming of all such characters.

Encouraged by this, Sir Austen went to his father, the great Joseph Chamberlain, and put to him the same question. Joseph Chamberlain, who remembered her name, voted also for the heroine of "The Initials."

Now this book was published in 1850; but since the publication of Sir Austen's book there has been a steady demand for "The Initials" in London and the provinces. It has never been dead, any more than two later novels by the same author, "Quits" and "At Odds" have been dead; but has quietly made friends among readers from year to year. But it has become, in the last few weeks, something of a small best-seller.

I wonder how many heroines of our new novels of 1935 will still be attracting readers eighty-five years hence?

Perhaps some of our heroes have a better chance? At least one of them, the George Sherston of Siegfried Sassoon's "Memoirs of a Fox-Hunting Man" and "Memoirs of an Infantry Officer," has his loyal admirers, for the sale of those two books is continuous and has already reached in England alone a figure to which many a popular novelist would joyously lift his eyes. Those who have this staunch love for simplicity and candor [coupled with a prose style of peculiar excellence] will be delighted to hear that Sherston's further adventures will be related in a book now in course of composition.

Mr. Sassoon, since his marriage, has lived exclusively in the country, in an immense house far from the madding crowd; and the new book, while still continuing from the point at which its predecessor stopped, will be definitly more personal and more introspective. It will not be published until next year.

Authors get younger and younger. I have already told how John Beavers, at the age of 23, is publishing his survey of contemporary civilization, "World Without Faith"; but even Mr. Beavers is outdone for precocity by J. R. Colville, the author of "Fools' Pleasure" [Methuen].

Mr. Colville has still two years to go at Cambridge university, which means that he cannot yet be 20; and his book is the account of a journey undertaken by three undergraduates through the Balkans to Turkey and Greece.

And Miss Romilly Cavan, who wrote a novel a year ago when she was 20 and called it "Heron," has attracted great attention this season with "Tomorrow Is Also a Day" [Dent], the work of her twenty-first year.

Even Beverley Nichols, who used to be the youngest writer named in "Who's Who," cannot beat these critics, travelers, and novelists for early maturity.

Complete Stravinsky Memoirs Will Be Published in U. S.

My mention of the Igor Stravinsky memoirs, published in French but not yet promised for publication here in translation, brought the reminder that the French edition covers Stravinsky's life only until 1920.

The second volume which brings the memoirs up to date reached New York on Nov. 22, and Simon & Schuster, who published "Diaghileff" [which prompted me to mention the Stravinsky memories], have not as yet decided whether they will publish the English translation this winter or next fall, or whether it will be called simply "My Life," by Igor Stravinsky, or bear the literal translation from the French, "The Chronicle of My Life." Anyway, it's coming some time.

These Maps Show Chief Attraction of Each Town

Putting a hobby to practical use, Ernest Dudley Chase, an associate of the Rust Craft Publishers, Inc., of Boston, has published half a dozen attractive maps which he made originally for his own amusement. Friends who saw the drawings suggested he put them on the market and this has been done. The maps cover the United States, Germany, France, the British Isles, Italy and Spain and Portugal. For each community worth visiting Mr. Chase has made a small but accurate sketch of its principal attraction. The result is a series of unusually interesting maps.

Alvah Bessie Describes Life in Small Town

Family Story Divided Into Three Periods.

"Dwell in the Wilderness," by Alvah C. Bessie. [Covici-Friede, $2.50.]

"Spring Goes On Forever," by Bess Streeter Aldrich. [Appleton-Century, $2.00].

"Valley People," by Frances Marion. [Reynal & Hitchcock, $2.00.]

LIFE in the small American town is grist for the mill of more than a few writers nowadays. Alvah C. Bessie's novel about two generations of one family is vaguely reminiscent of the work of Thomas Wolfe. While not done with Wolfe's tremendous sweep and surge and avalanche of words, it follows something of the plan of his books. It is divided into three sections: 1876-1916, 1917-1924, and 1924-1925. And it is written with the same intense sincerity and burning passion for the truth.

Mr. Bessie describes the married life of Eben and Amelia Morris and goes on to follow the destinies of their children, Martha, Dewey, Manley, and Roger. The portrait of the mother, Amelia, is marvelously done with a pen dipped in acid. That of the father, Eben, is likewise vivid and moving. The two practical, Babbitty boys, Manley and Roger, are just prosaic and banal enough to be recognized by any one who has ever attended a business convention. Dewey is the artist of the family and Martha is the independent-minded modern daughter.

Bess Streeter Aldrich has done another sweet, gentle, sentimental novel of pioneer days in "Spring Goes On Forever." The heroine is a pretty, blue eyed, docile German girl who journeys in a prairie schooner with her father and Brother Fritz to new lands in Nebraska, settled by the colony of Lutherans of which they are members.

Amelia has had to give up thoughts of marriage with an Illinois sweetheart to please her father, who demands that she marry inside the church, a fellow Lutheran and a German. But she never forgets her girlhood love, and the author balances the scale in the end by having a descendant of Amelia marry a descendant of Matthias.

In "Valley People" Frances Marion, one of the most successful of all women scenario writers, author of "The Big House," and "Min and Bill," and "The Foundling," turns to fiction in printed form and proves her skill once more. The locale of this book is an isolated valley in California. The life of the place and the varied stories of the people who dwell there are narrated as seen through the eyes of a person who returns after an absence of twenty-five years.

Miss Marion has the various characters tell their own tales in their own way after she has set the stage by way of explanation. E. D. W.

'Jungle Woman' Startles with Sex Emphasis

One of the startling travel books of the season is "Jungle Woman" [Appleton-Century] by Frances Yeager [who plays the title rôle] and Eli Colter [who pounded off on her typewriter the account of Mrs. Yeager's younger years in Sumatra]. But it is startling only in its frankness in discussing things usually not spoken of in mixed society even in these free-spoken days, and in its constant dragging into the foreground domestic intimacies belonging in the background.

Mrs. Yeager's far eastern life seems to have been one continual series of sex shocks, some credible and a few frankly incredible. One wonders who actually told the author the story she so painstakingly narrates of beautiful Malay Marie and her robust romance in the jungle with a Sumatra baboon. Mrs. Yeager spends much time in insisting that this erotic, Hollywoodlike love tale [which probably will bring chuckles to Frank Buck and other jungle animal experts] is not only possible, but declares that she knows of other equally fantastic monkeyshines where amorous female apes have carried men into the jungle.

Youths Paint a Vivid Picture of Old Mexico

Travel Story Has Quality of Wonder.

Old Mexico, lately new to American travelers, has become the heroine of many a book, but few so engaging as "Mexican Odyssey" [Willett-Clark, $2.50], by Heath Bowman and Stirling Dickinson. In a rattletrap car these two young Chicagoans surged over mountains and valleys, lapping up atmosphere, discomforts, thrills, and fiery Mexican food and drink. As far as they went nothing escaped them and they have set it down in words and pictures which nicely clothe their thoughts but allow their emotions to shine through.

Some writer on writing, I cannot for the life of me remember who, in summing up the qualities of successful literary expression makes what he calls "wonder" an essential ingredient. Somehow into this book has crept that quality, perhaps because the authors are young, taking life as they take a trip; perhaps because they are so entranced themselves that even the old are infected with their excitement.

Bowman is the writer, Dickinson the artist, they tell you, but there is a feeling that collaboration was close knit, each egging the other on, talking the other down. The block print illustrations are a good definition of Mexico colored by the words that surround them.

Like all young tourists these two are a little arrogant toward all other tourists. They imply that they are seeing not what others see, nor is their interpretation to be confused with that of the ordinary hurried traveler. Maybe that's what makes the book entertaining; the attitude is encountered so often, yet here it is again, all fresh and shining.

"Mexican Odyssey" is not a guidebook; it leaves out whole tracts of Mexico and gives little of the usual information that guides and travel books contain, but it does manage to capture the essence of a Mexico which has never changed, no matter how altered the surface.

In a foreword José Mojica says it is the best book about his country that he has read. Certainly it has a way with it and should prove charming to those who have experienced Mexico as well as to those who have merely seen or intend to see it. K. L. B.

Durant Starts Complete Story of Civilization

His First Volume Describes Role of Orient.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

"The Story of Civilization [Our Oriental Heritage]," by Will Durant. [Simon & Schuster, $5.00.]

WILL DURANT, who first popularized philosophy, has now undertaken to tell the story of mankind from the beginning of recorded history, 4,000 years ago, to the present day. He has achieved an introduction, the fruit of 20 years of study, which should become a classic in itself. His first volume, on the legacy which the east has left to the west, is to be followed by others at five year intervals.

"Our Oriental Heritage" begins with man as a savage and takes him through cannibalism and slavery to "the threefold drama of Plato, Cæsar, and Christ." It is factual, scholarly, and shot through with brilliant writing in which the imagination of the philosopher peoples the present deserts of the near east with ancient civilizations which, the reader suspects, were in some respects superior to our own.

Is it possible, he asks, that Egypt has presented the greatest civilization which has yet appeared upon our earth? Will Durant sums it all up from many viewpoints, peoples these drifting sands again with beauty and greatness, squalor and superstition, makes "history" a vital, living thing that reaches across the centuries to touch our own lives in innumerable ways.

Ventures Forecast of Japanese War.

His introductory volume, which is complete in itself, gives the human drama of the near east to the death of Alexander and takes the story of India, China, and Japan from the beginnings to our own day. He even ventures a forecast about Japan and China. The history of Japan, he says, is an unfinished drama in three acts. The third act, modern Japan, opened in 1853 with the American fleet. "By every historical precedent," he writes, "the next act will be war."

He advises a patient study of Japan so that the coming crisis will be better understood. China, he thinks, will survive many revolutions and many invasions. The civilization of the future, he says, faces into the Pacific.

About the only sense of reality that one gets out of the book is that which Whitehead, the English philosopher, describes as "the passing of nature." How the gods were born, how mortals came into the world, how men have risen to great heights and then fallen into oblivion, might lead one to the pessimism of Winwood Reade's martyrdom of man or to the materialistic view of Buckle's famous introduction to English history. Durant weaves many elements into his pictures of civilization, including labor, government, morality, religion, science, philosophy, letters, and art.

Holds Free Individual Is Mark of Civilization.

The growth of the institution of marriage, how virginity changed "from a fault to a virtue," are reminiscent of Nietzche's origins of morals. A little anthropology, Durant reminds, is a dangerous thing. He upholds the wisdom of conventional morals. As a philosopher he traces the ideas of religion, communism, liberty and human rights, commenting as he watches the march of time and the human parade.

The old belief that religion is universal he finds substantially correct. The moral function of religion, he finds, is to conserve established values rather than to create new ones. His meditation on communism and share the wealth programs is interesting.

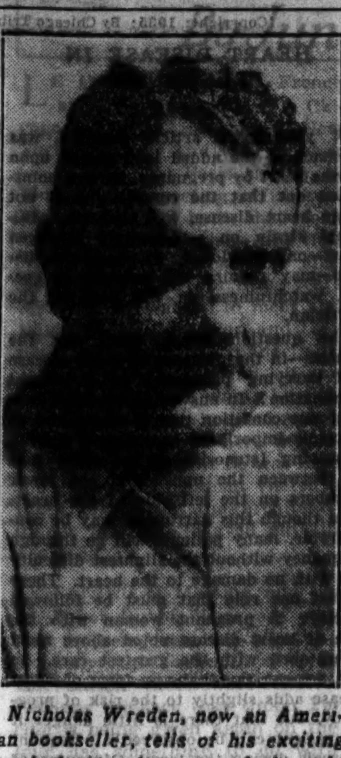
RUSSIAN'S STORY



Nicholas Wreden, now an American bookseller, tells of his exciting youth during the war and the subsequent revolution in the land of his birth in "The Unmaking of a Russian."

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

Rather out of the ordinary is "Death of First Mate" [Dutton, $2.00], by Charles Barry. The scene is set on a cargo ship which plies the Irish sea with coal from Newcastle and smuggled greyhounds from Ireland. Somehow the first mate whom nobody loves gets killed and his body is cached in a coal bunker and then the ructions begin. A nice young Irishman is the reluctant detective who doesn't want to believe he's right. But he is, up to a point, and his manners and methods are very aptly described. Like all well written and knowledgeable stories of a special milieu, "Death of a First Mate" has an interest outside the mere crime it describes and the reality unusual to tales of murder.

Light treatment of a serious subject is "Science Versus Crime" [Bobbs-Merrill, $2.50], by Henry Morton Robinson. He records the many scientific discoveries that in late years have made detection easy and leaves you floored by the things that scientists have done and are doing. He carries those first faint glimmers shed by Conan Doyle when Sherlock Holmes uses shreds of tobacco as an essential clew to the point where everything touched, used, traversed, feared by the criminal may be scientifically turned against him.

He makes credible the "wood expert" of the Lindbergh trial and gives fair warning that no poison exists that kills without trace, so subtle are the methods of the modern toxicologist. And while Mr. Robinson is amazing he is also amusing. With a light touch he masks profound erudition and turns into a series of small thrillers the deadly workings of inexorable proof.

Carolyn Wells apportions her leisure time to writing mystery stories and playing bridge, so it is natural that she should have the idea of combining the two avocations. Consequently she has invented a game called "G-Men" [Milton Bradley company], which is played with cards called Public Enemy, Master Mind, District Attorney and such instead of aces, deuces, and knaves.

Eyewitness Recalls Terror of Mex Revolt

Rosa King's Narrative an Amazing One.

"Tempest Over Mexico," by Rosa E. King. [Little-Brown, $3.00.]

"WELL, we knew we were reading history as we ran," Mrs. King writes on page 206 of "Tempest Over Mexico," the story of the Mexican revolution of 1910 and its subsequent political and social disruption. The author thus in a sentence in the middle of her record sums up the whole book . . . it is eyewitness history.

Mrs. King is one of the best known figures in the "foreign colony" in Mexico. She went to Cuernavaca in 1905 to open a tea shop. She was an English gentlewoman of distinguished heritage, widowed, with two children to support. She made her tea shop so successful that she was able after five years to buy the Bella Vista, the best hotel in the town, and to make it internationally known.

Distinguished visitors filled the lovely town, easily accessible from Mexico City, and the Bella Vista prospered like a yucca plant in the desert. Peace and prosperity were not just around the corner, but in the very patio of Bella Vista. Porfirio Diaz was president and his levees were even more magnificent than those of the ill fated Maximilian. Life in Mexico was luxurious for the rich. For the poor it grew more and more meager. Lands were stolen from the peons by the great haciendados . . . there arose an avenger, Zapata. Diaz was "dethroned." Madero became president. Peace with the simple folk regaining their rights seemed certain.

Madero played Zapata false, and the real warfare began then, with Zapata leading the counterrevolution. Warfare surged over Cuernavaca in an ever mounting fury, culminating in the evacuation of the town. Eight thousand refugees started from Cuernavaca. Only two thousand finally found their way into the hands of the Carranzistas, who were by that time in control of the largest forces and who wished to make a truce with Zapata.

Mrs. King, stalwart and courageous, was one of those two thousand. Her story of the flight, of the almost second by second meeting with death, of heroism of a band from whom hope had flown is one of the most impressive records one ever read of the persistence of the will to live.

Of all the revolutionaries, Zapata was, she says, the one most truly fired by the ideal of life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness for the Mexicans. Huerta, she convinces her readers, was a bully, a braggart, a drunkard, and ambitious only for personal power. Villa, a bandit who wanted only to destroy rather than build for his people.

Mrs. King tells dramatically how she was unintentionally the cause of the sacking of Cuernavaca by entertaining a beautiful woman who captivated Huerta and proved to be a spy for Villa.

What seems as amazing as the facts in Mrs. King's narrative is the tenacity with which she clung to her property, the acceptance of every terror except the idea of giving up her investment. She was a British citizen. She constantly evoked the protection of the British ambassador. She brought out a British flag at crucial moments. But it seems never to have been more than a passing idea with her that she could better have escaped to safety [even with only 8,000 pesos to her name] than try to rise again economically, like the phoenix, from the ashes of the revolution. But of such sturdy stuff are the real pioneers made. And her record is that of great moral and physical courage. F. B.

THE INSANE WORLD.

Mussolini may not be as crazy as he seems. He has indeed many symptoms of being a violent psychopathic case and in a world that contained more proof of its own sanity these symptoms might explain all of his behavior. Conditions, however, are more alarming than they would be if they were due to the aberrations of one wild man. One such disturber might be kept from doing harm. The seriousness of the threat against Europe's peace is found in the fact that there are a number of wild men whose conduct is only vaguely predictable.

When Mussolini says that the boycott will mean war if it is carried to the point of actually embarrassing or crippling Italy he is evidently relying upon what he thinks will be the actions of other men with irons in the fire. He apparently believes that if any one gives the apple cart a push it will upset and that in the scramble every one will be involved and all sorts of new combinations will be possible.

British statesmanship has been performing miracles, but each week demands more magic. British interests are much more involved, it would seem, in the Japanese maneuvers in northern China than they are in Africa. Europe has always been able to make some sort of an adjustment of conflicting colonial enterprises in Africa and it has been rather confidently expected that some way of satisfying the Italians would be found. The British have managed to keep their faces straight while they told the Italians that the traditional friendship between Italy and Great Britain was in no way disturbed by the little differences of opinion regarding Ethiopian rights. The Italian do not put much belief in that statement, but the British, going about to get the best they can out of the controversy, do not disguise the friendliness of their intent towards the Italian people and in endeavoring to starve out the Italian imperialistic adventure hope all will be understood in the best of spirit.

The persistence with which Japan proceeds in China reveals a determination which will be harder to check, if indeed it ever is. It will be remembered that the first difficulty the peacemakers at Versailles, if they are to be regarded as peacemakers, struck was when they undertook to keep Japan from grabbing the Shantung province of its late ally, China. That attempted grab at the close of the war to end wars and aggression opened the eyes of the United States to the real meaning of the Versailles deliberations and helped to defeat the treaty and the convenant in the United States senate. Japan was balked at that time, but the pressure was never taken off China. The condition to which the peace treaty reduced Europe enabled Japan to make its Asiatic mainland advance inexorable. Every time the picture showed how distracted Europe was, how strong the animosities remained, and how little stability there was in occidental arrangements, the Japanese were able to take advantage of the confusion and fears of the European powers. Each Japanese advance has been in itself proof that Europe was in a panic.

Mussolini's threats would be more indicative of a disordered mind if Japan were not demonstrating how unreliable the world's foundations are. The front which the league nations can make against Il Duce seems impressive, but proof is lacking that the arrangements would stand the test of a blowup releasing the ambitions of various nations which have been straining to get at each other ever since the world war ended. Revenge and greed are two powerful influences which might break down all the protective arrangements Great Britain seems to have in order. Mussolini apparently believes that one explosion would be enough to set off the whole works. It would seem impossible for the league of nations to yield in the face of the Italian threat, but equally impossible for the Italian dictator to pull in his horns and hope to save himself after failure. They are all out in front with their ultimatums irrevocably issued and the fellows who back down are licked.

Just where the United States is about to find itself in the threatened explosion is not as clear as prudent Americans would like to have it. The state department prospectus has been for a neutrality which would be foolproof, but that neutrality up to date has made its share of trouble and nobody can be at all certain that it is actually neutrality. It hasn't helped any that the United States has declared that Italy is at war when the Italians have not taken that position. It doesn't matter that the distinction between the invasion of Ethiopia and a war with Ethiopia is specious because there are legalistic distinctions which the United States has brushed aside. Seeming to go along, the United States in fact is out ahead of Great Britain in doing alone what the British have been more slowly doing in accord with other nations. It is a ridiculous development along this line that the British should be reported as wishing that America would not get so far out in front but would keep in step. Oil shipments are a case in point. We have seen before, notably in the case of Manchuria, that our state department can be deserted by the governments with which it supposed it was acting by common agreement and understanding.

A HINT TO THE SUFFERING PARENT.

Every year about this time this department publishes an editorial urging Chicagoans to visit the stock show. Our public is singularly responsive. Last year the attendance set a record. An editorial of about this length turned the trick, assisted by nothing more than three or four columns of Mr. James O'Donnell Bennett's descriptive writing and two or three dozen published pictures.

Well, it's still a good show. It's the best of the annual exhibitions which come to Chicago. A prize bull is more beautiful than an 8 cylinder anything and presents no menace to the pocketbook of the ordinary citizen living in a flat.

The stock show combines the best elements in a circus and a museum. The trouble with circuses is that so much is going on at the same time that interest is constantly shifting. The product is confusion and a headache. The stock show is more leisurely. If you find yourself becoming interested in Rambouillet sheep you can spend as much time with them as you choose. You can talk to the men who own and care for them. You can learn a lot and it stays with you.

You can learn a lot in museums, too, but it comes harder. For one thing, the curators are not always around to explain. For another, the objects under observation are dead. For still another, the casual comment is generally uninstructed and silly. You can spend a month at the Art institute and never hear criticism as pointed as you will hear a dozen times in one afternoon at the stock show. "A nice calf, but a bit wasty in the brisket." The art critics might borrow that line. It would accurately describe 62 per cent of the nudes.

There is a widespread belief to the effect that children must be taken to the circus. Many parents have suffered for that belief. As a matter of cold fact, a great many children are bored by the circus, but mighty few people, whether children or grownups, are bored by the stock show. Intelligent parents, whose lives are not dedicated to suffering, conduct themselves accordingly. They take Junior and Elizabeth to the stock show.

OKAY, SENATOR SEARCY!

When the bills now being pressed for passage in the general assembly are enacted there will occur a transfer of powers from Springfield to Washington. This was pointed out by Senator Searcy in a public statement upon the conclusion of his analysis of the bills. The original drafts were prepared under instructions from Washington. When the house undertook to amend one of the bills it was deemed wise to send a committee to Washington to see whether the modifications met with approval there. If the Illinois legislature does exactly what the Roosevelt administration asks, a monetary reward is offered to the state. If, however, the administration of the law at any time does not meet with approval at Washington, this reward is to be withdrawn.

The form of government under which we have lived all these years has been one in which there was a definite separation of powers between the federal and state governments. To the national government were given certain powers and these were not to be infringed upon by the states. To the states were given all others powers and these could not be infringed upon by the national government. This was an excellent system which permitted experimental legislation to be worked out in forty-eight different laboratories. Illinois could profit from the experience of New York, and Wisconsin from the experience of Michigan. In the matter of social security legislation there were exceptional advantages in our traditional system, because very little laboratory work had been done. There is no American experience establishing that any particular method is the best for dealing with the various subjects.

However, so eager was the Roosevelt administration for power that it rejected the advantages of experiment under a variety of conditions and set up what it regarded as a good enough system. Rewards are offered to state legislatures which will pass the Roosevelt laws and punishment is threatened to those which do not. Possibly there is no way out of it in old age pensions but for the legislature to comply with the Roosevelt orders. The promised reward may, as some contend, be a sufficient consideration. But Senator Searcy does well to keep constantly before the legislature the true nature of the bills. Perhaps the people will approve of the transfer of powers which is apparently about to take place. But perhaps they will not, remembering that the government to which our powers are being voted is the one which intimidated the Illinois legislature into passing the Hopkins 3 per cent sales tax.

MASARYK TO RETIRE.

[Detroit News.]

The rumor of the approaching resignation of Thomas Garrigue Masaryk, president of Czechoslovakia, has now been confirmed by himself, although he has set no date. He is 85 years old, and if any man has earned a rest he has.

In all but a military way, President Masaryk is the George Washington of the republic of Czechoslovakia. The situation of his people, desiring liberty but caught in the war as part of a greater state, barred military action. Masaryk's great deed was to publish to the world the story of Czechoslovakia's aspirations, and then, by personal contacts with the leading statesmen of the allies and the United States, to persuade them that the creation of a Czechoslovak republic was not only feasible but the only logical outcome of a war for democracy and for self-determination. He convinced President Wilson, Lloyd George, Clemenceau; even before the war was over the new state had been recognized by the greater powers at war with Austria-Hungary, and in October, 1918, while the conflict was still raging, it was proclaimed at Prague.

There was no other man to head the new state. Dr. Masaryk was elected president; reëlected for a seven year term in 1920; reëlected in 1927, and again in 1934. His record in office has been brilliant; with uproar and uncertainty all around, Czechoslovakia has held her course and increased in prosperity. Peace with her neighbors, friendship, and trade were the necessities of policy, and from them there has been no departure. Large minorities within the state had to be conciliated and, in a measure, welded together. A giant was needed for the work, and President Masaryk proved himself gigantic in every way.

THE BUREAU OF BOONDOGGLING down in Washington is having a terrible time thinking up jobs to get people on the pay rolls by next Monday. All right, I've thought up a new one for 'em. It's very important that a hen lay an egg with F. D. R. '36 on its shell as soon as possible. Let there be boondogglers, or rather hendogglers, appointed who would go around the country and try prenatal influence on the hens. These earnest workers could talk to the hens gently while they are on the nest and at the same time hold in front of the hens a board on which is written "F. D. R." The hens apparently fail to understand how an initial egg just at this time would influence voters all over the country. The hendogglers could explain what F. D. R. stood for and how intensely interested all the Democratic jobholders were in seeing F. D. R. retained in office. Let the hendogglers adopt a slogan, "Have a heart, hen! Make it an F. D. R '36 egg." Some hen would undoubtedly fall for this thing if given the right kind of sales talk, and, anyhow, it would put a lot more boondogglers to work.

YOU CAN TELL by their conversation without asking what party they belong to. One man says, "Well, now that we've brought back prosperity everybody had turkey for Thanksgiving day." And the other man said: "Precious few had turkey this last Thanksgiving. At our house we ate the canary." Now to which great political party did each man belong? A handsome plush lined doughnut will be given for the first correct answer.

WINTERSMOON.

The moorland purple in the dusk,
The castle turrets gleaming gold,
The road lies open to the brave,
And frosty white from cold.

The hauberked guards have sought the peace
Of apples browned beside the fire,
And the lusty voice of a roving bard
Leaning above his lyre.

The banners blow on the cold black walls
In the baleful eye of a wintersmoon.
A bittern cries; and next an owl;
At last a wakeful loon.

The earl dreams conquests in his tower,
But his only daughter, pale from sleep,
Lies on the breast of her evening prayer,
With a sweeter dream to keep.

Loon and bittern and restless owl
Are nearly under the castle wall.
The lyre and the minstrel's voice resound
A-down the gusty hall.

The guard is wrapt in a merry song
And the spicy, nut-brown warmth of ale,
As the bard sings on, in wilder strain,
With cheek grown strangely pale.

He sings them now of the fierce Deor,
Of forest and moor and wily chief,
Who in the court is stepping light
As the autumn falling leaf.

And he drops the harp for the battle horn,
And shrill and high the warrior's blast
Comes echoing back from court and hall
Where the moorland men are massed.

And one guard starts up with an oath,
And one guard sounds an alarum shout,
While from wall and tower and raftered hall
Resounds the battle rout.

Torch and lanthorn in the dark,
The bitter scrape of steel on steel . . .
The stone walls echo down the sound
Of many an armored heel.

And now above the banner's gold
The warrior's flaming pendants flare
Above the turret and the tower
And the ravage ended there.

The moorland glimmers ruddy red,
The castle windows are bright as noon.
The road gleams white against the moor
Under the wintersmoon.

The warrior chief with a lusty song
Is bringing home a captive bride—
Dowered well and beautiful—
Prize for a prince's pride.

No one dreams of conquests now.
Fallen turrets and crumbled keep Lie at the end of the moorland road
Where the earl sleeps long and deep.

HAVING HAD TURKEY for two days, men, you think that this being Saturday, the second day after Thanksgiving, you will see no more turkey for a year or at least not until Christmas. Tut, tut, poor, misguided dupes. Today you will not be given turkey, oh, no, but what you will get will be called Soufflé de Volaille à la Reine. How nice! But wait. Do you know what Soufflé de Volaille à la Reine is? No, you don't. But yesterday you had Hachis de Dindon and it wasn't until you were well entrapped into eating it that you discovered it was naught but turkey hash. Very well, this also is turkey hash.

HEART DISEASE IN PREGNANCY.

Part II.

IN yesterday's article mention was made of the added load placed upon the heart by pregnancy. It was pointed out that the condition does not cause heart disease, but that the additional strain on a delicately balanced heart—one previously damaged by disease—may require the exercise of special watchfulness on the part of the physician.

The question arises, what are the chances—in the presence of heart disease—of carrying pregnancy to a normal termination? In answering we must consider one condition that is recognized as of prime importance—namely: a definite narrowing [stenosis] of the valve that lies between the upper and the lower chambers on the left side of the heart. Even though this narrowing may be considerable, many patients will go through pregnancy without the slightest difficulty and with no damage to the heart. There is just one rule that must be followed strictly: A pregnant woman with the type of heart disease noted above must be watched with the greatest care. In fact, we can say that any form of heart disease adds slightly to the risk of pregnancy, but that there is little danger if the patient can be observed at frequent intervals during the term. Of course, if heart failure actually exists—with shortness of breath, exhaustion, edema, etc.—pregnancy should not be permitted to occur.

In a series of 7,670 maternity cases reported recently by Reis and Frankenthal, only 102 exhibited definite cardiac disease, although 765 showed various types of heart murmurs without heart disease. This is a rather striking observation, indicating that heart murmurs, in a high percentage of cases, may be divorced from true heart disease. Of the 102 cases with heart involvement rheumatism was the cause in the majority, and in 86 of the 102 the trouble lay in the valve separating the two chambers on the left side of the heart. It is significant, however, that narrowing of this valve occurred in only 11 of the 7,670 cases, and in only 6 of this large number were there signs of heart failure at the time of the onset of labor. Of these, all but 2 passed through the delivery period without complications.

In another interesting series reported by Fitzgerald, 126 cases of heart disease among pregnant women were found. Of this number none developed complications during labor, although one mother succumbed to an infection that long antedated her pregnancy.

By and large, we may say then that heart disease complicating pregnancy must not be neglected or forgotten; but at the same time it need not be feared provided the attending physician is alert to the situation and competent to manage it. The condition presents a most fascinating problem, but it is a challenge that modern medicine is able to meet, thanks to the pioneer work of the late Sir James Mackenzie. Prenatal care is extremely important and a proper dietary régime must be instituted and positive rules of rest and exercise strictly enforced.

There need be no question but that the normal, healthy heart will carry easily the extra load occasioned by pregnancy, and even a diseased heart, if the muscle is good, can carry more than a 50 per cent overload without showing signs of giving way [heart failure]. We must not be blind to the fact, however, that even though the mother can go through pregnancy without difficulty, some slight damage may have been inflicted, particularly if anemia has complicated the picture, which may mean that the heart muscle has been insufficiently nourished.

It would be a blessing if we could disabuse the minds of every one that a defect of a heart valve implies the probability of sudden death. Nothing is further from the truth. Sudden deaths from valvular disease are exceedingly rare. We do have heart deaths—plenty of them—but they occur as the result of degenerative conditions affecting the heart and its blood vessels in persons who have long since passed the child bearing period.

CANCER CELLS.

F. B. H. writes: I have been reading lately about a cancer treatment advocated by H. C. Connell, a Canadian physician. What is the present status of this method?

REPLY.

Dr. Connell claims that cancer cells may be acted upon by an enzyme that will dissolve or digest them. In a recent report W. E. Gye of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund of Great Britain states that enzyme solutions, called "ensols," prepared according to the Connell method, have been used on mouse tumors [cancers] without effect. In no case was the growth of the tumor checked or retarded. A considerable amount of carefully controled experimental work must be carried out before the value of Connell's theory can be determined.

"BABY FACE."

M. A. C. writes: I have what is called a "baby face." Though I am 19 years old, I look 13 or 14. My beard hasn't begun to grow. Can anything be done?

REPLY.

People vary greatly in their development from birth through adolescence. In many, maturity comes slowly. I would advise a complete physical examination. There are means of remedying your condition, but you should be under the guidance of a competent physician. Certain gland secretions may be of value.

DUE TO PARASITE.

Mrs. H. R. S. writes: I have been troubled with trichomonas for several months. It appears for a while and then disappears. Is there a permanent cure? What is the cause? Is it contagious?

REPLY.

Trichomonas is a parasite that inhabits the colon, often in large numbers. The condition is relatively simple to remedy. It can be spread from one person to another. Your physician can help you.

FACTS TOO OBSCURE.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—What action should be taken in regard to money left by will, belonging to an estate which a [1] counselor had asked for from a [2] client because he knew the client [3] had an account of doing business for the client? 4. This money was invested in a building where [5] he received the rents, but when the depression came [6] he lapsed in the interest, also did not pay the taxes, so the building went into foreclosure and a bank is the one that foreclosed. 7. Are the heirs closed out of this money? 8. Who is held responsible for this? 9. Client did not ask the counselor to invest it. 10. He asked for it for his own welfare. Have a note for some of the interest. S. M.

1. We assume that you mean an attorney.
2. We assume that the "client" was the testator.
3. We assume that you mean "had the money."
4. We assume that it was invested by the attorney with the consent of the client, the testator.
5 and 6. The attorney?
7. Yes, unless they redeem from the foreclosure.
8. The mere fact that the investment turned out badly would not make the attorney liable.
9. This would not be conclusive.
10. If you mean that the attorney borrowed the money, as distinguished from undertaking to invest it, he would be liable.

Your facts are too obscurely stated to form a basis for further advice.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PARTITION SUIT.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I would like to ask a few questions concerning a building which was left to us by our parents. 1. In the event of a mortgage foreclosure on a building where a receiver had been appointed by the court when one of the heirs started a partition suit, what becomes of the money the receiver has collected for rents on the building during the time he was in charge? 2. Is this money divided among the heirs, and if so, is it done without court proceedings on the part of the heirs? 3. Does foreclosure automatically close the partition suit and [4] does the heir who started the suit pay his attorney's fee, or is that taken out of the money that comes in for rents on the building? G. G.

1. Presumably it will be distributed between the co-owners after the partition sale.
2. The foreclosure and partition would be two court proceedings. We see no need for a third.
3. No.
4. The costs of the partition proceedings would be charged against the proceeds of the partition sale.

BANK STOCK.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In 1930 I sold ten shares of stock in a state bank in Illinois. About two years later the bank closed and a receiver was appointed. Last year all stockholders were sued and a judgment entered against them for stock liability. 1. Is a judgment against me legal inasmuch as I was never called to court and no return was made by the bailif? 2. Can I get the judgment vacated against me by proving in court that I was never called to court when the judgment was entered? 3. Am I responsible for stock liability when the bank was solvent at the time I sold the stock? M. S.

1. No, assuming that you mean that no summons was served on you.
2. No subpena is necessary in addition to the summons, if that is what you mean to ask.
3. The majority opinion is that you are, but we understand that cases are now pending before the Illinois Supreme court, raising various questions with reference to bank stockholders' liability. You might watch the newspapers for announcements.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY LLOYD FANGEL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON. — Great Britain's war office is giving immediate attention to the problem of recruitment for the territorial army, claiming that, with the exception of Holland and the Scandinavian countries, her home force is the smallest and weakest in Europe.

The matter is having the personal attention of Lieut. Gen. Sir Charles Bonham-Carter, director general of the territorial army—which is similar to the United States National Guard. He will place his proposals before Alfred Duff-Cooper, war secretary. It is anticipated that a vigorous national recruiting and propaganda campaign will be inaugurated under the auspices of the war office, probably some time early in the spring.

This course has become necessary because territorial recruiting—especially in London and some of the large provincial recruiting centers—has slumped. Latest figures show a shortage of about 2,000 officers and 35,000 of other ranks. There are only 7,000 officers to do the work of 9,000 and 131,000 men instead of the full strength of 165,500.

It is hoped that the decision to convert some of the line units into anti-aircraft batteries and searchlight units will, by extending the enlistment age in some cases beyond 35 for home service, give an impetus to recruiting.

"We want to enlist the support of every employer of labor," says the commandant of an artillery brigade, "and it is to be hoped that the government will see its way clear to restore the old scale of bounty."

It was reduced from $25 to $7.50, and it is felt that its restoration to the old figure would be of considerable influence.

Suggestions for a "hectic recruiting week" were made by Col. J. Trevor of the 7th City of London regiment, who said:

"Although the home force is 20 per cent under its normal strength, the public does not seem to realize that the territorial army is now the main defense of the country, as the regular army comprises only five divisions, which is purely an expeditionary force.

"The recruiting week could be launched by an inaugural luncheon to which all the principal employers of young men could be invited. The prime minister and other experts could then explain to the employers why they should urge their workers to join the territorials.

"A large number of men do not join because they feel that their wives or sweethearts would not approve. This is entirely wrong, as dances, concerts, and bridge tournaments are held throughout the year and women folk are always welcome at these affairs.

"It cannot be too strongly stressed that the territorial army is of supreme importance for the defense of this country."

CENSORSHIP.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—In TRIBUNE editorials on "Tobacco Road" the limits of jurisdiction and authority are interestingly defined, but the search for a principle to offer guidance in applying censorship is despairingly avoided.

"Sentiment, even as to serious moral issues, has a way of changing," says THE TRIBUNE on Nov. 25, and "the law of both England and America yields great authority to custom."

This almost means that there are no abiding principles to separate right from wrong and moral standards are determined by momentary whims.

Surely we can find an axiom or two. Intelligent censorship of the theater is based on the principle that most of us are weak and impressionable. If conduct that is cruel or dangerous to others is dressed up to look sprightly, exhilarating, or romantic we feel inclined to approve and imitate.

For example: If a tabloid or dialog presents in an entertaining light the indifference and discourtesies of a husband whose wife has lost the attractions of youth it is really making light of the commonest and saddest of human tragedies. The famous Sam and Kitty Morton act that played for twenty years is one of countless examples; the endless mother-in-law jokes are in this class. They teach us, insidiously, that lifelong cruelty to an aging wife and hatred of her relatives are engagingly comic adventures, to be indulged in with zest and joy.

This type of jocularity is a favorite at church entertainments. So, perhaps, it really is time to find a permanent principle for censorship.

The portrayal of drunkenness by John Barrymore in the "Dinner at Eight" film was solemnly denounced by pious societies. Yet his performance depicted the ugliness of intemperance as the climax of a wasted life. In the "Ruggles of Red Gap" film the liquor orgy is far more violent than Barrymore's, but it presents drunkenness as a cheery and commendable indulgence. Piety put its O. K. on Ruggles. "Tobacco Road" showed that morons are unpleasant people; apparenty this was wrong.

Then there is the eternal subject of nudity. The most logical plea against it is that susceptible husbands become estranged from their wives at the sight of fairer forms and undisciplined minds are inflamed to sexual frenzy. No one ever presented a case to prove it; but follow this to its logical conclusion. The most alluring detail about a feminine body is a pretty face. If husbands are to be saved from temptation and the undisciplined from sexual sins every pretty face must be covered with a cloth except when at home. The Turks thought up this one long ago and their system of taboos was certainly as sane as ours.

I had an old fashioned father, desperately religious but fond of port. He taught us kids that divine grace was a sufficient defense against any impulse to misuse the bounteous gifts of God; prohibition, he taught, was a blasphemous denial of the efficacy of heavenly grace. Crazy, perhaps, but no crazier than many others.

So why not one more editorial, to untie the tightest knot in the problem?

B. W. WILLIAMS.

ENDING THE MASSACRE.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—I congratulate you on the noble work of keeping the auto massacre before the people.

If the revenue from the many taxes on auto owners were used for the improvement of highways and in separating grades it would be much more than sufficient, but this fund is used by municipalities for general purposes other than for such improvements. It is evident a state law should compel a proportionate use for the betterment of auto trafic and stop much of this massacre. Politicians would not be interested in such an act, but it should be made an election issue.

WILLIAM A. WOOD.

A CERTAIN INCONSISTENCY.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Sunday afternoon Father Coughlin says "George Washington's principles are my principles."

Almost in the same breath he declares "this country should interfere with the affairs of the Mexican government."

What price consistency. G. C.

REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRATIC PANICS.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—Your correspondent, Arthur Thomson, asks, "If it is not true that whenever there was a Republican President, except Hoover, that jobs were plentiful, profits large and money going from one to another faster?"

The panic of 1837 came during the administration of President Martin Van Buren, a Democrat.

The panic of 1873 was during the Republication administrations of Ulysses S. Grant and Rutherford B. Hayes.

The panic of 1893 struck during the administration of President Grover Cleveland. It was this depression that gave rise to the popular belief that a Democratic administration always leads to hard times because this slogan was the theme song of the Republicans in their campaign of 1896. True, the score was 2 to 1 in their favor at the time, but let us look farther. The next three panics must be laid on the doorstep of the G. O. P.

The panic of 1907 when money practically disappeared from circulation was experienced during the Republican administration of President Theodore Roosevelt. The depression of 1921 was fortunately shortlived and the least severe of them all, but nevertheless it came during the term of the Republican President, Warren G. Harding.

We need no history books to tell of the Hoover crash of 1929, the sixth panic in the last century and the fourth Republican depression.

ARTHUR H. RENIER.

THE COST OF SOMETHING FOR NOTHING.

Oak Park, Ill., Nov. 27.—Concerning a number of heavy federal loans recently announced, it would be of interest to know what obligations are being assumed by Chicago or Cook county because of advances from the federal government for various projects and by whose authority these are incurred.

The voters would appreciate, I think, being fully informed as to the nature of these obligations and our representatives should go slow in accepting them until they are instructed to do so by a mandate from the people, who must ultimately pay the bill. These obligations can only be met by taxation or by bond issues and the latter must ultimately be redeemed from proceeds of taxation.

CHARLES RIDDELL.

A SHINING MARK.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—One thing is sure about Notre Dame football: No team possesses more intemperate enemies or, a possibly greater misfortune, more intemperate friends. Is that one of the penalties of being a shining mark?

Praise the Notre Dame team and a host of wild-eyed fanatics leaps into action shrieking everything from prejudice to popery. Point out an obvious weakness or failing and another host, equally fanatic, bellows accusations of everything from bigotry to British propaganda.

Why not arrange to have the next war to end war fought between the more feral friends and enemies of Notre Dame?

N. D. SYNTHETIC.

SAFETY ALSO BEGINS AT HOME.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—THE TRIBUNE states that President Roosevelt is going to start a campaign against auto accidents. Let me suggest as a starter that he take away the autos of his reckless sons who have been repeatedly arrested for speeding and accidents. That would maybe save a life or two. How can he expect the public to respect laws when he and his family persistently violate them? Or does he figure like the old kings that he is above all laws? E. M. MILLER.

CALL FOR SANDY.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Here is how to protect Chicago from the looters of the people's money: Elect a Scotchman for mayor, fill the council with them; also other offices in the city and county, and I'll wager that taxes would drop 50 per cent. A SCOTCHMAN.

Miss Denyse Root Bows

Presented by father yesterday at tea at Tavern.

Three Debuts Made at Teas Held in Town

Two Parties for Buds Take Place Today.

Miss Denyse Root, Miss Nancy Bastien and Miss Harriet Welling were presented to society yesterday. Miss Root bowed at a tea given by her father, John W. Root, at the Tavern. Miss Root, charming in a gown of powder blue taffeta, made very simply with a high neck and frog fastenings on the bodice, and her father received in the Edgar Miller room of the club. The debutante wore a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

Miss Root and her mother and grandmother, Mrs. Ellen Dudley Root and Mrs. Peter Dudley, who have been living abroad for several years, are at the Ambassador for the early winter, but will return to their home in France in February. Yesterday Mrs. Root was wearing a gunmetal lamé tunic blouse and a black skirt.

Assisting at the party were Miss Madelon Search, Miss Ann Lynch and Miss Patricia Forsyth Kelly.

Miss Nancy Bastien's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin E. Bastien, introduced her to their friends at a tea in the Bastien apartment at 900 North Michigan avenue. The debutante, who is tall and dark, looked stunning in a gown of blue green net over a slip of silver metal cloth. The dress was made with puffed sleeves and trimmed with a belt of silver leaves.

Mrs. Bastien wore dark green and orchids. Assisting were Miss Ruth Brown, Miss Elisabeth Dewes, Miss Mary Armstrong, Miss Elise Wetter of Memphis, Tenn.; Miss Nancy Angell of New York, Miss Dewes' house guest, and Miss Mary Wood of New York.

Miss Welling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Welling, was presented at a tea, also, in her parents' residence on Bellevue place. She and her assistants were among those who dined and danced at the Casino last night at a party Mr. and Mrs. Chauncy B. Borland and Miss Martha Borland gave for Miss Welling, Miss Barbara Stanley, and Miss Barbara Hutchins.

Three debutantes will share the social limelight today at two parties, a tea and a dinner-dance. The Misses Shirley and Loraine Logan, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Logan, will be presented at a tea from 4 until 7 o'clock in their parents' residence, 2344 Lincoln Park West, and Miss Elisabeth Dewes, youngest daughter of Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes, will bow at a dinner-dance tonight at the Casino.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Granger Logan will receive with their son and daughter-in-law and their granddaughters this afternoon at one end of the Logans' spacious drawing room, and nine of the debutantes' contemporaries will assist at the tea tables. They include Miss Mary Marshall Price of New York, who is Miss Shirley's roommate at Sarah Lawrence college, and the Misses Pauline Palmer, Mary Wood, Frances Glore, Elisabeth Dewes, Shirley Garnett, Valeria Harris, Barbara Stanley, and Marion Johnson.

Both Miss Logans attended the Fermata school at Aiken, S. C., and Miss Loraine now is in her freshman year at Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Logan will give a ball for them on Dec. 30 at the Blackstone, and among others who will entertain for these popular sisters is Mrs. Orville J. Taylor, who will give a luncheon for them on Dec. 24.

Miss Dewes, who is one of the most attractive of the season's debutantes, attended Dobbs Ferry and Bryn Mawr. An older sister, Miss Dorothy Dewes, was presented to society at a similar party at the Casino four years ago. Among the guests dining and dancing tonight will be the debutante's house guest, Miss Angell of New York, who attended Bryn Mawr with Miss Dewes.

Another luncheon to which the debutantes will receive invitations shortly is one at which Mrs. Eugene Cary Jr. will be hostess on Dec. 21 at the Woman's Athletic club. Mrs. Cary is entertaining for Miss Ruth Adams, daughter of Mrs. Lawrence Adams of California, who will be spending the Christmas holidays with Mrs. Elizabeth Shay Ricker. Miss Adams formerly lived in Chicago.

Wool Skirts Popular with Outdoor Fans

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Time out from the pursuit of the proper Christmas gift to tell about the newest winter sports outfits. Yesterday we described the excitement of trousers topped with jackets, all kinds of accessories in the shape of gloves that are really mittens minus the string that goes around the neck and keeps them in a duet [and that, by the way, isn't such a bad idea even though you are grown up] and the shoes and extra ideas about jackets and sweaters for tops.

For the out of doors enthusiast who groans over the idea of trousers when she skates or walks to the rink there are skirts tailored in slick smooth straight lines with a kick pleat in front and back or with just one pleat in front. These are worn with a sweater with a high round neck and over the sweater one of the grandest short belted jackets that ever made the spectators take another good deep breath.

These sweaters are made from real honest to goodness Hudson bay blankets, those gorgeous striped affairs, with a snowwhite background and wide stripes of scarlet, jade green, yellow, and black. They have pockets, a strap on each sleeve cuff to button snugly, keeping out the weather and a wideish belt to keep you snug at the waistline.

With a sweater, a slim smart black wool skirt, and a stunning jacket and some carefully selected accessories to match any of the stripes in the coat, you'll have an outfit hard to beat and keep. While you're doing other things you had better keep it under lock and key so your kid sister won't appropriate such spectacular glory for her own purposes.

And while you're shopping around for woolies to keep you snug and cozy during the coldest spells, look at the new scarlet or black wool panties, quite the rage among the young moderns who decide color completely transforms such utilitarian objects into something very smart and exciting.

The rather terrifying thought that we are getting to be a crowd of sissies arises and we wonder what the flapper would think of us with galoshes that fit and look better than shoes with woolen socks, without a thread of silk in them, and now these all wool and screaming shades of high colored wool lingerie.

Miss Alice du Pont Bride of J. P. Mills, Poloist and Broker

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Miss Alice F. du Pont, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Felix du Pont, became the bride of James P. Mills, broker and polo player, in the Cathedral church of St. John late today. Du Pont is vice president of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.

Mills, a member of the executive committee of the United States Polo association, is associated with the firm of Charles F. Barney, Philadelphia brokers. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Mills of Radnor, Pa., New York, and South Carolina, and a grandson of Samuel Wayne Mills, commandant of West Point in 1895.

Miss du Pont, who became a licensed airplane pilot at 17 and is a hunting and trapshooting enthusiast, wore a gown of white satin with a long train.

New Nijinska Ballet Based on Fairy Tale

Irina Baranova Superb in 'Hundred Kisses.'

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The Ballet Russe introduced Bronislava Nijinska's "One Hundred Kisses" to Chicago last night. It was the seventh and last of the ballets new to the city this year.

This sister of the almost legendary Nijinsky has created a gay choreographic pattern to match the settings of Jean Hugo and the music of Frederic d'Erlanger. "One Hundred Kisses" is based on a fairy tale of Hans Andersen, and the men and women responsible for planning and producing the work have been successful in keeping more or less within the spirit of the old tale.

The ballet is very new; only a few months have elapsed since its first production. Although it is perhaps the youngest work in the company's répertoire, it is by no means the most advanced. It does not pretend to be the same sort of peep into the future as "Choriartium."

The angry beauty of Irina Baranova fits her admirably for the rôle of the princess in "One Hundred Kisses." She is another of those precocious ballerinas who knew half the stages of the world before she had passed the prep school age. She is said to be eighteen, and the year of her birth is given as 1919, two bits of information that do not seem to fit together.

Her dancing and miming were superb, from the moment of her reginal entrance to her despairing collapse at the cruelly barred gate. She is a confident mistress of classic dancing at its best, which means classic dancing touched with the magic of new music, new ideas, new worlds.

David Lichine played the lithe princeling. They say that, besides being a virtuoso dancer, he is developing into a choreographer of promise.

For today and tomorrow the Ballet Russe offers several works which, while known to Chicago, have not been danced during this visit. Among them are "Petrouchka" and "Le Beau Danube." Tomorrow night the ballet leaves the city.

OBERNDORFER LECTURE

Anne Faulkner Oberndorfer's lecture on the instruments of the orchestra last night turned out to be as informal as any one could ask. There was gayety mixed with the very real erudition of this likable woman. She had wisely neglected to go over every detail of the program with the musicians whom she had brought to Orchestra hall to play illustrative excerpts; the results were hilarious in several instances.

Mrs. Oberndorfer is the author of that valuable little book called "What We Hear in Music." It has opened the gates to great music for many a student. On the lecture platform she has the same easy friendliness and well concealed scholarship that make the book so good.

SYMPHONY CONCERT

The Chicago Symphony orchestra's Friday afternoon concert featured Ruth Posselt, the young American violinist who made her bow here the preceding evening. Her vehicle was the Tschaikowsky concerto.

This fair New Englander plays the violin in such a calm, competent way that you imagine she has chosen music as a medium more or less by chance, and could make an equal success in any one of half a dozen other callings. He approach is definitly intellectual rather than emotional. She has found that music is an excellent implement for plumbing certain spiritual deeps, and has quietly mastered the art without any fuss or excitement.

Her tone was clean and sensuously beautiful, especially in the long breathed phrases of the first movement. She had a very good grasp of the architectural planning of the music, and drew its designs vigorously and intelligibly.

Dr. Stock and the orchestra played two modern works and a standard symphony in the first half. The spray-laden "Portsmouth Point" overture is an attempt by a living Englishman to translate into music the feel of the great world that the more sensitive and sentimental of us are apt to experience in a port town. "Types" is a clever French suite by Ferroud in which qualities more important than cleverness will, I hope, appear on repeated hearing. The work was first performed here Thursday night.

One minute after the conclusion of the Ferroud suite the stupendous phrase that opens the Brahms third symphony brushed all of its inadequacies aside. From then on to the intermission, conductor and orchestra busied themselves with the congenial tasks that the four movements of the work impose on them.

The Chicago City Opera company announces the following changes in cast in today's and tomorrow's operas:

Janet Fairbank will sing Flora in "La Traviata" this afternoon and Frasquita in "Carmen" tomorrow night. Norman Cordon will take the part of the Bonze in "Butterfly" tonight. Coe Glade will sing Carmen.

Front Views and Profiles

LE CORBUSIER, the French architect who lectured in Chicago this week, returned to New York Thursday and will go back to Paris shortly.

Meeting— Ballet— Gobblers— Variation.

A meeting of interest to both that took place here was that between him and Leonide Massine. For three years Massine has wanted to meet and talk with Le Corbusier, and they never quite made connections. Massine owns an island off the coast of Sicily and wants Le Corbusier to design a house for him. They talked it over here in Chicago. The last night he was here the visiting Frenchman visited a night club after the architects' dinner for him. Stayed out till 4 o'clock.

* *

SPEAKING of Massine, and the Ballet Russe, there are only two mothers traveling with the company this season, whereas last season there were twelve. Perhaps the fact that Union Pacific is being given again on the tour has something to do with it. Last year all twelve mothers, regardless of age or shape or size, were bundled into burlap, and lay down on the stage as rails in "Union Pacific." You may remember the scene. The two who are sticking it out this year are Tamara Toumanova's and Baronova's mothers. . . . Toumanova, by the way, makes the sign of the cross as she prepares to dance on the stage in her most difficult dance in Choreartium. Above her dressing room mirror hangs a holy picture with the words "O St. George, protect the path and life of T. T." . . . A Russian stage carpenter who knew no English a year ago asserts he is getting along beautifully now. He knows four English expressions—allo, goo-by, sank you, and okayski.

THEN there was the woman who approached a guard at the Art institute and said she couldn't find a picture in this year's show she had heard much discussed. When the guard asked her the name she thought for a moment, then answered:

Good Morning!

Charlie Chan sings a little song for you in this one. And he is very much the proud and indulgent — though never hoodwinked—papa of the enthusiastic puppylike son of a university educated son whom you met briefly once before. Otherwise his slick sleuth activities run true to their form in other Charlie Chan releases.

"Charlie Chan in Shanghai" is a good little picture that keeps you guessing.

You're never certain as to who's innocent or who's guilty. You think you know—then you change your mind back and forth till the end of the picture, when, quite likely, you'll exclaim:

"That's what I thought all the time!"

Which statement makes you at least a part time liar.

Charlie arrives in Shanghai apparently bent on taking that vacation he never succeeds in landing. You learn, shortly, that he's been summoned there on business concerning an international dope ring. . . . The dignitary who has sought his aid is murdered at the banquet given in the great detective's honor—and from then on the film concentrates on the hunt for and the final detection of the criminals.

The piece is smoothly acted and directed. Comedy is introduced by the earnest antics of the aforementioned son, who thinks his daddy is both the cake and the frosting, and seeks frenziedly to emulate and aid his august parent. Also, incidentally, carry on a romance with a Chinese charmer whom he's recently met and whose home is in Shanghai. Chan has to sit on little Lee for using the telephone so much, but in the main he's glad to have the youngster around.

Keye Luke plays Chan Jr. amusingly. Irene Hervey is appealing in a minor rôle.

Mr. Oland portrays the detective with his usual oily, twinkling effectiveness. The men in the supporting cast are excellent. Two of them prove ace deceivers. I won't name them as that would let cats out of the bags, but you'll know whom I've referred to when the picture concludes.

See you tomorrow.

Movies Costing 5 Millions Go to Convention

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—The copies of newly made films to be taken by Ernest Lubitsch, producer in chief, to the Paramount convention in Chicago next week represent $5,000,000 invested.

Some one sent three Shirley Temple dolls to the Dionne quintuplets and enclosed Shirley's card with them. The first Shirley or her mother knew about it was when they received a telegram from a Canadian newspaper man stating the gifts were welcome, but why weren't any dolls sent for Ceceile or Yvonne as well as their sisters. So Mrs. Temple hurriedly sent two more dolls, and this time the card of congratulation from Shirley was authentic.

Evelyn Venable Mohr and her cameraman husband have named their baby daughter Dolores Venable Mohr, and Miss Venable already has had the baby's horoscope cast, saying "it indicates she was born under favorable signs, so I shan't oppose her in things when she grows up."

When H. G. Wells, the British author, arrived to spend two weeks in Hollywood as Charlie Chaplin's house guest, Charlie's fiancée [or, as many say, his wife, by an asserted secret ceremony] used the old Chaplin technique and tried to steer Mr. Wells right past the reporters and cameramen into Charlie's waiting auto. Mr. Wells demurred at being rude to the representatives of the press and told Miss Goddard he preferred to pose and answer their questions.

So many movie people had received commissions as honorary Kentucky colonels that Joan Crawford wasn't much interested when offered one of Gov. Laffoon's testimonials. She said she wanted to be "a general or nothing." So this week Joan received a gold sealed certificate making her a general on the governor's staf.

W. B. Simpsons Guests of His Parents Here

Family Gives Dinners for Visitors from East.

BY JUDITH CASS.

AMONG the many visitors in the city over this week-end, made long and gay by being started on Thanksgiving, are Mr. and Mrs. William B. Simpson of Glencove, Long Island, N. Y., who are spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson, at 1200 Lake Shore drive.

With the other members of the family the youngest of the Simpsons' sons and his wife, the former Beatrice de Menocal of Boston, dined on Thanksgiving with the junior James Simpsons at their home in Milburn. Tonight John McLaren Simpson and his wife, the former Constance Hasler, are giving a dinner party at their home at Shoracres for the visitors.

Many of the members of the Ballet Russe, including the orchestra conductors, Antal Dorati and Efrem Kurtz, and their attractive wives, had Thanksgiving dinner with various Chicagoans, and at the performance Thursday night they all were talking about the Thanksgiving feasts they had enjoyed in American homes. The members of the ballet have been entertained as much as performances and rehersals would permit during the week they have been here, although everything that has been given for them has been informal.

Will Be Guests at Tavern Breakfast.

Tomorrow Leonide Massine, David Lichine, and Irina Baronova will be especial guests at the Tavern club's tally-ho breakfast, preceding the matinée at the Auditorium theater. Every one of the thousands who are filling the great theater for every performance of the ballet is glad that the company is to have another engagement here this season, a week in March, for apparently Chicagoans never get enough of Col. De Basil's Ballet Russe's particular brand of dancing.

Yesterday afternoon Miss Maroschka Anisfeld entertained a few friends at tea in the Carl street studio of her father, Boris Anisfeld, for Mlle. Tamara Toumanova, the toast of the town and the recipient of gorgeous roses every time she appears on the stage of the Auditorium. Mlle. Toumanova is accompanied by her mother everywhere she goes. All the other very young ballerinas are chaperoned strictly, too, so Chicago's "stage door Johnnies" find it very difficult to be as dashing cavaliers to the lovely young dancers as they may like to be.

Which reminds us of the supper party planned by some young bachelors last year which was supposed, by the hosts, to be a very cosmopolitan affair with the ladies' slippers used as champagne glasses, but which turned out to be a very quiet, almost dull, party with the ballerinas and their chaperons drinking milk and orange juice.

Marquis de Veyrac Leaves Next Week.

The Marquis de Veyrac, who during the six months he has been in Chicago has become one of society's most popular and most entertained extra man, is leaving next week for Winnipeg, also the destination of the Ballet Russe next week. He will be

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

To keep that fresh, clear skin try a new cleansing cream, one that is removed with water and that is amazingly efficient for women with oily or drab skins. It's excellent too for those who must batle blackheads.

Ours is a suspicious nature where new creams with new tricks are concerned. If we believed everything we were told we couldn't ask you to believe us.

But there is a new cream on the market that has a trick we like. We think it would be a grand cream for the oily skinned woman who is always looking for an efficient cleanser, for the woman with a drab skin that never looks quite clarified, and for the youngster whose skin is inclined to pick up blackheads. It's pure white, it is not liquefying, and it is removed with water instead of with tissues. And does it make the grime pour out of those pores!

It takes heavy makeup off miraculously, so you can imagine what it does for the woman who, though having no theatrical makeup complications, must struggle to keep her skin clean. The skin feels slick after it, too; just a trifle stimulated. And you can take it from us that it's clean.

There isn't anything particularly unusual to the eye about it. You like the texture of it in your fingers, and you like the way you can smooth it quickly over your face. Leave it on for just a moment, or longer if you like. Then, either with your hands or with a piece of cotton, wipe it off with plain cold water. Put on your makeup and go your way knowing that your face is clean and that your skin looks good.

The dry skinned woman who uses it at night can remove it with warm water and pat in tissue cream. During the day cold water is used. In addition to its efficiency as a cleanser you'll approve of the fresh, greaseless feeling your skin has when you use this cleansing cream that's soluble in water. Somehow or other the faintest suggestion of grease isn't pleasant. With this, your skin will feel as fresh after the cream-water session as if you'd used a tonic.

We rather wish this had a nicer fragrance, but then we're probably overfussy on this score. You may like it; we didn't. But you will like its other virtues, particularly its clarifying action.

The Briar Pipe

By Stuart Palmer

SYNOPSIS.

Violet Feverel is killed, apparently by having been thrown from her horse, Siwash. She was taking an early morning's ride in New York's Central park. Miss Hildegarde Withers, teacher and student of criminology, happens on the scene of the tragedy, where she meets her friend, Inspector Piper. Dr. Bloom, medical examiner, finds no wounds on the body, though murder is suspected. After the body is removed Miss Withers finds a briar pipe on the spot where the dead girl had lain. Mrs. Maude Thwaite and her husband, Rufus, are owners of the stable where Siwash is kept, and Latigo Wells, manager. Maude Thwaite desired to own Siwash. At Violet Feverel's apartment Miss Withers and Piper overtake Violet's young half-sister, Barbara Foley, about to elope with Eddie Fry, Violet's boy friend and a race track gambler. Barbara tells them that Violet was divorced from Don Gregg and had had him put in alimony jail. Thomas, who with his wife, Mattie, are old retainers of Don's father, Pat Gregg, comes in search of Violet. Old Mr. Gregg thinks he is going to die. Thomas hints at foul play. Miss Withers and Piper accompany Thomas to the Gregg country home. Pat Gregg is seriously ill. Dr. Peterson, who is called, says it's apoplexy. Gregg had no use for his daughter-in-law Miss Withers explores the house. Back in town Miss Withers and Piper call at the alimony jail, but Don Gregg had been released on a fake writ before his wife's death. Then they call at the morgue. Dr. Bloom's autopsy reveals Violet Feverel was killed by a bebe bullet which hit her throat.

INSTALMENT XVIII.
REMARKABLE MARKSMANSHIP.

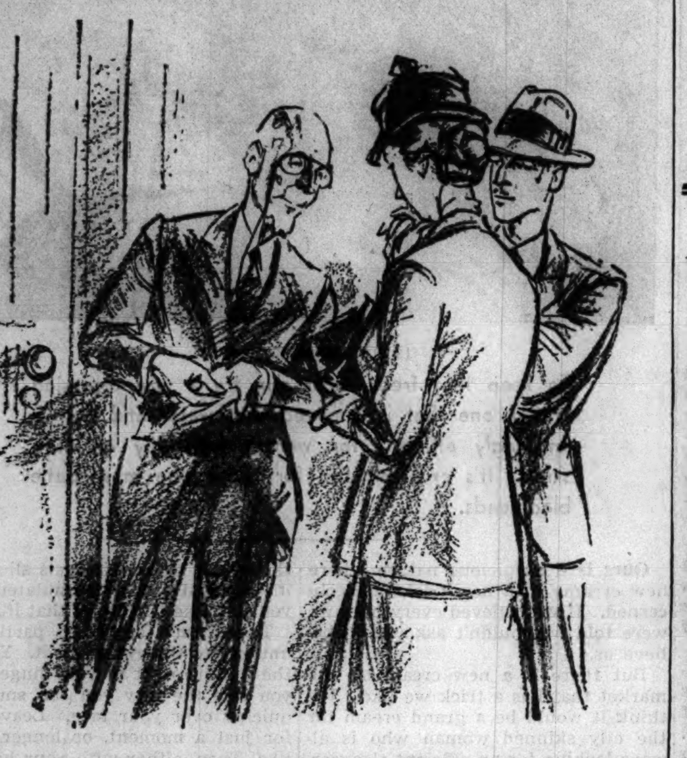
The doctor nodded. "Just an old-fashioned, ordinary BB shot, made to be fired from a kid's air rifle."

"But the wound—there wasn't a wound on her!" Miss Withers cut in, incredulously.

"I didn't say there wasn't a wound, I said none was apparent," Dr. Bloom explained. "With a missile so small there's often no exterior bleeding, and the wound was no larger than a pin prick. But that's how the job was done, and death was almost immediate. Exact time of death—well, it must have been about three quarters of an hour before I first examined the body, say approximately quarter of six this morning."

Miss Withers was dubiously shaking her head. "It doesn't ring true," she insisted. "How could the murderer be sure he'd hit a vital spot with a toy weapon like that?"

Bloom was moved to laughter, stroking his wispy beard. "Vital spot? Dear lady, it's worse than that. I'll guarantee that there is no other spot on the body where Violet Feverel could have been shot with a BB, and killed. Or even badly injured, except in the eye. No ma'am, that BB had to strike her throat just as it did in order to harm her. The killer played a long outside chance. . . ."



"That would mean that the shot was fired while she was mounted."

"And had hell's own luck behind him," Piper observed.

Miss Withers remembered something else. "Doctor, did you happen to notice that the dead girl had something gripped in her hand?"

Bloom nodded. "You have sharp eyes!" Yes, there were a few reddish hairs, horse hairs I'd say offhand. Looks like she felt herself falling and grabbed at the horse's mane to stick on."

"That would mean that the shot was fired while she was mounted," Miss Withers said thoughtfully. "Which makes the marksmanship all the more remarkable, doesn't it? All the same. . . ." She subsided.

The school teacher was somewhat annoyed at the inspector's jubilance as they came out of the morgue. "I see it all now," he somewhat optimistically announced. "Violet Feverel was in the habit of taking out her horse at that hour. Gregg knew it. And since all riders in the park take the same general route along the bridle path, he knew where to lie in wait for her. Somewhere he got hold of an air gun and as she rode up toward the viaduct he rose out of the bushes which cover the slope and—bingo! Then Gregg does a quiet sneak——"

"You're referring to young Don Gregg, I presume?"

"Who else? Naturally he had a grudge against the woman who had kept him in alimony jail for months. His first thought on getting out was to pop her off. He shot from the bushes, and was out of sight before she hit the ground. . . ."

Miss Withers shook her head. "No, Oscar. The killer came down and stood beside the dying woman."

"Huh?" Piper was incredulous. "Then—there were footprints?"

She shook her head. "By the time I got there the path surrounding the dead girl was pretty well trampled by the flat feet of your radio officers."

"Then how in the dickens. . . ."

But she didn't want to tell him, not yet. The briar pipe which reposed in her handbag was her ace in the hole, to be displayed at the proper time and place.

"Guesswork, Oscar," she said. "Where are you off to?"

"I'm going to take this taxicab to the nearest east side subway station," explained the inspector wearily. "Then I am going to take a subway train down to headquarters. I am gong to light a cigar, put my feet on the desk, and then send out a dragnet for Mr. Don Gregg that will bring him in if he's halfway to China!" He grinned. "Is that okay with you?"

"Godspeed," said Miss Hildegarde Withers. But she climbed swiftly into their waiting taxi. "You won't mind walking to the subway, Oscar?" she called out through the top of the door as she rolled away. "You see, I have an appointment with the only witness to this murder."

* * * *

Somehow the excessive quiet of Sunday afternoon in Manhattan did not extend to the dark and aromatic confines of Thwaite's Academy of Horsemanship. In their box stalls the boarded horses moved restlessly, neglecting the hay which hung over the sides of their deep mangers.

Came the voice of Maude Thwaite. "Bring Siwash out, Highpockets!"

The colored boy quavered uncertainly. "I dunno, Miss' Thwaite. . . ."

"Bring him out, I say!"

"Now, Maude. . . ." began the little veterinary surgeon, placatingly.

"Hurry up!" commanded the woman, her voice harsh as broken glass. And Highpockets led the big red horse out of his box stall.

"Put that twist on his nose!" snapped Mrs. Thwaite. Highpockets protested again. "I can't do that, Miss' Thwaite. This Siwash horse and me—we're pretty good pals."

"Don't be a fool! Do as I say!"

Shaking his head, Highpockets slipped a curious instrument over Siwash's nose. It consisted of a short loop of rope, run through a hole in the end of a stick of wood.

Still Mrs. Thwaite was not satisfied. "Around his upper lip, you fool. And twist it so he can't break away!"

Shaking his head again, the colored boy tightened the twist. Siwash bobbed his head, and his ears swung back against his neck. . . .

"Latigo, get the strap!" commanded Mrs. Thwaite.

But Latigo Wells shook his head. "I ain't paid to do that," he objected. "Besides, I—I got work to do in the front office." He stalked forward, down the runway.

Once in the office, Latigo threw himself down in the swivel chair. From the top of the desk he took his guitar, and struck a very sour chord.

"Damn that old hefer to hell!" he prayed, fervently. "For pure unadulterated meanness. . . ."

Highpockets didn't want to wield the strap. "You don't understand," he was half-sobbing, "this big red horse, he's just like a brother to me. . . ."

"Hold him, then!" said Maude Thwaite through clenched teeth. "I've got to be the only man in this place, as usual!" And she thrust the rope twist back into the hands of the colored boy. Then she took up the strap which he had thrown aside, and with front teeth biting into her upper lip until she could almost taste her own blood, Maude Thwaite swung it across the rump of the red horse.

Siwash reared against the twist, and vented—from injured pride rather than from the pain—a shrill and almost human scream.

In the front office Latigo Wells gritted his teeth and then swung loudly into an ancient ballad of the range. . . .

He broke off suddenly, glad of any interruption, and went to the front door. Back at the rear of the stable, Maude Thwaite swung the strap again, with all her strength.

back in Chicago, however, after a week or ten days to be here until after Christmas, when he will go to California and then on to Honolulu.

He is going to the Hawaiian Islands to arrange for lighting the pineapple plantations, although just why they are to be lighted he does not know. He thinks lights are to be installed so that workers can labor at night during hot weather instead of during the day.

The marquis is planning to make Chicago his headquarters for several years, although he will return to Paris each year for several months.

Oxford Debates Call U. S. Nationalistic.

America, next to Germany, is the most nationalistic nation in the world, and it is second to none in hospitality, Arthur Greenwood and Richard Kay-Shuttleworth of Oxford university told members of the English-Speaking Union who attended the tea given for them yesterday at the Casino.

Both young men are calling their Chicago stay a breathing space in the debating tour which is taking them all over the country, but Donald P. Welles, president of the union, prevailed on them to speak briefly.

The Samuel N. Rinakers, with whom they are staying in Lake Forest, are taking them to the Mark Twain centennial luncheon today at the Palmer house, since both are admirers of Twain.

"Wear sports clothes and get your skates sharpened" is the advice engraved on the invitations Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Peale Bent, have sent out for Tuesday, Dec. 10. Dinner at the Casino at 7 o'clock "promptly" will be followed by ice skating at the Stadium.

The novel party is for four of the season's debutantes, the Misses Clarice Hamill, Katherine McClennan, Cornelia Ranney, and Nancy Ryerson.

Debutante Parties for Kelly Sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kelly are making plans to welcome home their daughters, Miss Marjorie and Miss Patricia, on Dec. 19. Both are to be presented to society at a tea at home on the first day of 1936.

Miss Marjorie, whom illness prevented from being a debutante last year, is a student at the University of Southern California, and Miss "Patty" is a student at Sarah Lawrence. The latter is in Baltimore this week-end where she went to assist at the debut tea of Miss Adelaide Matthai at the Kennell club on Thanksgiving day. Miss Matthai and Miss Kelly were classmates at Westover.

During the holidays Mr. and Mrs. T. Lloyd Kelly will entertain at dinner and the Princeton Triangle show for the Misses Kelly and their debutante cousin, Miss Nancy Bastien. Miss Virginia Winston will give a luncheon for the Kellys' daughters on Monday, Dec. 30, and Mrs. Edward Graff will entertain for Miss Marjorie and Miss Patty during the week between Christmas and New Year's.

The other Miss Patricia Kelly who is a debutante this year and who uses her middle name, Forsyth, to distinguish her from Miss Patty Kelly, and her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. George Arthur Kelly of Lake Shore drive, have cards out for a tea-dance on Dec. 23 at the Arts club. This will be Miss Kelly's formal presentation to society.

Wells-Hyde Wedding to Take Place Today.

At 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in St. Chrysostom's church Miss Margaret Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Wells, will become the bride of James Nevins Hyde, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cheney Hyde of New York. The Rev. Dudley S. Stark will read the ceremony, and a small reception for relatives and close friends will follow in the apartment of the bride's parents, at 1530 North State parkway.

Young Mr. Hyde has brought several young men from the east to attend him as ushers and best man, and many of the bride's relatives have come from out of town for the ceremony. These latter guests will be entertained at luncheon today by Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland.

Mr. Hyde and his bride will make their home in New York after a brief wedding trip in Virginia.

Mrs. John Storrs will speak on "Our Daily Literature" at the weekly conference of the Alliance Française at noon today. Luncheon will follow.

Margaret Etter Creche Dinner Dance Tonight.

The Bal Tabarin in the Hotel Sherman will be gay tonight for the dinner-dance of the Margaret Etter creche on North Marshfield avenue. The party, always a gay and successful one, will be gayer and more successful than ever this year because the organization is celebrating its golden anniversary.

Among those entertaining at cocktail parties before the benefit are Mrs. Louis C. Buss, Mrs. Donald F. Bowey, Mrs. John B. Barnes, Mrs. William M. Dewey, Mrs. J. Clarke Dean, Mrs. Raymond Daniels, Mrs. John Dingle, Mrs. Walter Aagard Jr., Mrs. W. E. Macfarlane, Mrs. Eugene Richey, Mrs. Fred Spinney, Mrs. John D. Nadherny, co-chairman with Mrs. Buss; Mrs. John S. Nash, Mrs. Weymouth Kirkland, and Charles Thompson Jr.

Miss Jean Risser, who is living at the Drake this winter, is in charge of a group of young women who will sell flowers.

Many friends of Hull house, of the late Miss Jane Addams, of Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, and of Mrs. Nancy Cox-McCormack will be going to Hull house this afternoon after 4 o'clock to meet Mrs. Cox-McCormack and to see her recently completed bas-relief of Miss Addams.

Mrs. William J. Chalmers and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe are busy these days planning the annual Christmas sale of toys and gifts made by the little patients at the Country Home for Convalescent Children at West Chicago. The sale will be held next Wednesday in the Avenue of Palms at the Drake and Mrs. Chalmers and Mrs. Schweppe and some others who share their interest in the home will be on hand all day to act as saleswomen.

The children make all sorts of things, wooden toys, hooked rugs, dolls, and various other novelties suitable as gifts for adults as well as children.

Mrs. George D. McLaughlin will give a tea next Wednesday at her home in Ritchie court for the board of the Crib society, of which she is president. Plans will be discussed for the private showing of the Colleen Moore doll house at the Fair store to benefit St. Vincent's orphanage. The showing will be on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 8, from noon until 6 o'clock.

Cresaps to Entertain N. U. Officials at Twain Dinner

Mark Winfield Cresap, president of the board of trustees of Northwestern university, and Mrs. Cresap will be host and hostess at a dinner at the Indian Hill Country club tonight for the trustees and the deans of the university. The occasion is to celebrate the centennial of Mark Twain's birthday.

Celebrity Breakfast.

The northern Illinois branch of the League of American Penwomen will hold a celebrity breakfast at noon today at the Blackstone. Carman K. Learn, Canadian baritone, will sing. Among the guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison, Mary Hastings Bradley, Lane K. Newberry, Homer Guck, Lucy Martin, Ulrich R. Beusch, the Swiss consul, and Albin Polasek, sculptor.

Suggestion for Personal Gift

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

A lovely Christmas gift is suggested by today's pattern, in a youthful type of house dress. It is slimming to the heavier figure. It doesn't take a long time to make, and printed percales are especially nice for it. For a slightly dressier model printed rayons are smart.

The pattern, No. 2761, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2¾ yards of 39 inch material, with 1¼ yards of neck binding, and ¼ yard of 35 inch contrasting for the sleeve bands.

Castor and Pollux.

BY NANCY CABOT.

A most erudite young woman made this unusual pieced block and instead of calling it "the heavenly twins," since that evidently was what she determined to name the pattern, she called it "Castor and Pollux," its correct astronomical appellation. The pattern is simple, containing only three patches from which pieces for the entire block are cut. It may be made in celestial colors—two shades of blue and white, or in patriotic shades of red, white, and blue.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY MARY MEADE.

"Years ago," writes Mrs. D. J. of Nebraska, "I saw a recipe for a spice cake made without butter, eggs, or milk. Can you help me find it?" Is this the cake, Mrs. J?.

Butterless, Eggless, Milkless Cake.

2 cups water
2 pounds brown sugar
¾ cup clarified bacon drippings or chicken fat
1 pound seeded raisins, chopped
4 cups sifted flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Boil the water for three minutes with the brown sugar, meat drippings, and chopped raisins. Remove from heat and cool. Stir quickly into the sirup the sifted flour and spices. Turn the batter, which is rather stiff, into a tube pan, lined with oiled paper, and bake at 325 degrees F. for 1½ hours.

"Are foods canned in enamel lined cans better than those in ordinary tins?" queries Mrs. O. P. of Milwaukee. Enamel is used for lining tin cans by a number of manufacturers for certain of their food products, but not because it improves the actual keeping qualities of the food. Rather, its use prevents fading or bleaching of certain foods that lose color in ordinary containers, and occasionally helps to preserve their original flavor.

Beets and red fruits, for example, almost always are put up in enamel lined cans to preserve their attractive colors, as are corn, crabs, lobster, and shrimp. Because discoloration on the inside of the container is likely to trouble the housewife, these same cans also are used for a great many other foods which don't lose color themselves, but do tend to discolor the container. Lima beans, onions, peas, olives, orange juice, tomato juice, pickles, squash, and clams are among the latter class.

Mrs. O. asks a second question, also about canning. "The size—whether No. 1 or No. 2—is not marked on some canned foods, and I have difficulty estimating how much they contain. Can you give me the size numbers in relation to the weight of the cans, rather than according to cupfuls as it usually is given?"

Since the net weight always will be found on the label of every can of food, perhaps this reversal of the can size outline will help Mrs. O. in estimating quantities.

Weight of can.	Can Number.	Ave. Cupfuls.
11 oz.	No. 1	1⅓
20 oz.	No. 2	2½
28 oz.	No. 2½	3½
33 oz.	No. 3	4
6 lb. 10 oz.	No. 10	13

"My husband always is talking about graham 'gems' for breakfast. I judge that these are some sort of quick bread, but I never have eaten them and can't find a recipe by that name," reports Mrs. A. T. P. of Chicago. When Mrs. P. learns that muffins sometimes are called "gems" in this part of the country, we doubt that she'll need a recipe. But, just to be on the safe side, we'll print this one for graham muffins [graham gems to her husband, and to many of the rest of us]:

Graham Muffins.

1¼ cups white flour
¾ cup graham flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup milk
4 tablespoons melted shortening

Sift the dry ingredients together. Beat the egg until foamy, combine with milk and melted fat. Immediately combine the two mixtures and beat just until the dry ingredients are dampened, leaving the batter quite lumpy. Pour into greased muffin pans and bake 20 minutes at 450 degrees F.

According to CULBERTSON

BRIDGE TOURNAMENTS.

Tournament bridge differs from the common variety only in the intensity of each and every hand. Whether one is declarer in a grand slam contract or defender against a miserable two club bid, there can be no letup in concentration without the risk of catastrophe. In an evening's rubber bridge play every one allows himself a few moments of relaxation on uninteresting hands, but the haunting fear that an insignificant 50 or 100 points may turn the tide of battle in a match game keeps the players at fever pitch.

Consequently, it follows that, at the end of a grueling tournament, most of the contestants think longingly of a rest cure. But the fact that, when the next tournament comes along, all the old familiar faces are back again is ample testimony that the thrill and excitement of tournament play offer lavish compensation.

Too Much Haste.

Haste in cashing an ace cost the defenders a game, incidentally clearing the way for good play on the part of the declarer. The hand was:

South, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

NORTH
♥ K Q 6
♦ 10 8
♣ K 6 5 2

WEST
♠ 8 7
♥ 10 7
♦ A K J 9 5 3

EAST
♠ 5 3
♥ A J 9 5 2
♦ Q 6 4 2
♣ Q J

SOUTH
♠ A Q 10 9 2
♥ 8 4 3
♦ 7
♣ A 9 7 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	3♠	Pass
4♠ [final bid]

West opened the diamond king and, on seeing his partner's deuce, made a good shift to the heart ten. East unwisely took dummy's queen with his ace and returned a diamond, which declarer ruffed. Two rounds of trumps, followed by the ace and king of clubs, the king of hearts, and then a small club to West, cooked the defenders' goose. West had nothing but diamonds left, and thus declarer was able to ruff in the dummy and discard his third heart.

A moment's thought by East at the second trick would have set the contract. The pattern of the dummy rather suggests the possibility of an elimination play and, in any event, with as poor a club suit as dummy shows, discards by declarer appear remote. East should have given a high signal on the first lead of hearts, but should have withheld the ace.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Can a revoke be made by the leader to a trick?

Answer: Yes. For certain irregularities a player may be required to lead a specified suit. Failure to do so when able constitutes a revoke. Such a revoke is established as soon as partner plays to the trick.

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—New York's White Russians gathered tonight for a brilliant ceremony, honoring a group of Cossacks.

A grand duchess and an unemployed taxicab driver who once commanded a cavalry regiment in Russia participated in the tribute to Serge Jaroff and his 36 members of the Don Cossack Russian male chorus.

It was the group's 3,000th concert since it was organized in a prison camp near Constantinople by Jaroff.

The Cossacks sang to the Grand Duchess Marie, first cousin of the late Czar Nicholas, and then knelt before her on the stage of Carnegie hall.

She then summoned Col. Fedorovitch Abramov, the elected ataman or leader of about 300 Don Cossacks in the United States, who now is a taxicab driver here, jobless.

They presented Jaroff with a silver plaque as a testimonial of the admiration of New York's 6,000 White Russians.

Science Teachers Hear Pleas to Use Talkies and Radio in Schools

The use of radio and talking motion pictures in public schools to increase the effectiveness of teaching was urged yesterday at the 35th annual convention of the Central Association of Science and Mathematics Teachers in the Palmer house. About 600 delegates from the central states attended.

Dr. Harvey B. Lemon of the physics department of the University of Chicago showed and described talkies prepared by the University of Chicago.

Girl of Twenty Asks Analysis of 3 Admirers

Wonders Which One Will Make Best Husband.

BY HUGO WESTERBERG.

UNA MERKEL.

A young woman of twenty sends in the pictures of three handsome lads and wonders which one will bring her the most happiness. Her own picture shows an interesting face with irregular features but with the glow of health, and the air of a vigorous spirit. There is no doubt in her mind that she can take her choice and the feeling is neither vain nor frivolous.

The old observation that the plainest looking girls get the best looking men is apparently supported by this case, only the wording is not just right. Beauty is health of body and mind and with health there can be no ugliness. The sense of beauty is an individual reaction and what appeals to one person may be rejected by another.

This young woman has dark eyebrows and a go-getting salesman's mouth. The boys were all her opposites in their features, but otherwise differed from each other. The probability is strong that any one of them could make her happy in marriage from the point of view of natural characteristics, and, that being the case, other factors involved would be decisive.

Una Merkel's features express sadness and gayety and all the degrees between. Her nose is heavy in the lower part and fundamentally a pessimistic inclination is indicated. The direct, fearless eyes will lessen the effect thereof, and the long upper lip will do it still more by providing a definite goal for her efforts in thoughts and actions.

Her pointed chin denotes a realistic sense of futility in following up purely self-seeking impulses and gives to her personality a flexibility that invites protective attention from admiring males. Her somewhat backward sloping forehead signifies an ability to see the relative importance of her various experiences and to relegate impending emotional conflicts to their proper place and time.

This actress' preference would be a man with a high-ridged nose, indicating pride and desire for power. He should have a broad chin, which means a willingness to be responsible for others who need a helping hand. He should have the optimistic attitude that is signified by a narrow nose in a front view.

Perfume Testing Cabinet Allows Consideration of Single Scent

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Here's a development in perfume history which should prove a blessing to women. A perfume cabinet it is in which you may test scents without the confusion of surrounding or other remembered odors. You probably have had it happen to you, too, that after a perfume purchase you got home, sniffed again, and found yourself somewhat disconcerted over the odor. It wasn't what your nose told you back in the shop. Maybe you don't even like it once it's home. It is difficult to choose a perfume out of a whole welter of scents waved and swayed under your nostrils and after your coat has been showered from an atomizer and the whole surrounding atmosphere is redolent of scent.

So, in a New York shop, a cabinet, resembling a telephone booth, into which you may step, push a button, and sweep the air clean for a fresh air test, and then press another button, any one of six from which you may choose, emitting six different odors, seems in the nature of a step onward, scent-ifically speaking. You can go back after each separate perfume test, start the air all fresh again, and try your next perfume. Finally, you can stand there and turn the fresh air on yourself, step forth without scent following you as you leave the booth.

In other words, the time is here, girls, when you may become your own specialized perfume tester.

Dr. Joseph Jastrow, psychologist, says that the delicate endings of the olfactory nerve are easily blunted by fatigue or constant stimulation. Hence the necessity of supplying a movement of pure air between successive odors. One odor must leave the small chamber, which is high up in the nostril above the respiratory chamber, before the next can reach it to advantage, since odors readily mix. The perfume cabinet referred to is a smart looking contraption installed in one of the stores. It isn't, so far as I know, widely available yet, but, as said, it marks an interesting development and may change the face of perfume history.

The Essence of Family Life Can Be Preserved

Today It Stands or Falls by Parents' Attitudes.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

I will admit that times change—that families aren't so large—that family homesteads are more scarce—that "Gramma" doesn't any longer sit cozily in a corner with a cap on [though many grandmothers in the old days were lively souls in lively bodies who'd scorn to wear one]—that lots of uncles and aunts don't cluster round the clan's harth—and that life grows more complex and moves faster.

But I won't agree to what so many thinkers and lecturers on the "changing family" urge; namely, that we must expect the school, the camp, the recreation center, and community activities to take over the part that was played in a child's life by the old fashioned family.

Those are all important and constructive factors in modern living, but they need not loom so large for everybody.

If we who are fathers and mothers want to, we can preserve the essence of family life, even if we can't duplicate it as it existed in the good old past that is so often described. Even that brave band made up of mothers who go out every day to earn their children's and their own living manage it.

And most of us can, if we want to badly enough, see that our home has in it one person, at least, close to a child, who always has time for him. One person who isn't always rushing to or from work, or a bridge club, or a meeting, or a party, or the shops. One person whose time isn't filled or efficiently scheduled.

To be sure it means giving up—or personal sacrifice, if you want to call it that. Many mothers today work who don't have to, follow careers at the cost of their families, or allow themselves to be caught in a net of hectic and unimportant detail which leaves only fringes of time for their children and for those things which spell home in the true sense of the word.

Too Many Wives Neglect Homes in Mania for Cards

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The bridge club is beginning again to present itself as disturber of domestic peace. About this time of year reports roll in from husbands who'd prefer a dinner on the table to a bridge prize in the hand. And that's no foolin'.

As a working person myself I'm with the man who complains of the cold dinner table reception. I think a woman has no more right to make a habit of letting the meal go for the sake of bridge prizes than a husband would have did he take chances with his job dashing out to an afternoon poker game.

However, more bitter complaints come from the fireside loving mate whose wife leaves home for the evening bridge game and comes in late, disturbing the sleep of those who can take their diversions with less hilarity. The nice, sane wife who loves her bridge and indulges in it evenings, doesn't enter into our argument at all. She can take her game and leave it without rancor intruding into the household.

It's the women who try to imitate the late hour poker playing men who cause the family rumpus. The woman, indeed, about whom one might say if she weren't up to this mischief that she'd be up to something else. Anyway, she is a woman with a misguided sense of responsibility toward home, husband, and youngsters.

Naturally, it will happen and be sweetly forgiven if occasionally a wife stays until a late afternoon hour by accident, or even by calculation. The occasional offender isn't considered one at all. It's the demon card pusher who let's everything go except her game that the quarrels are about. We'll have to page Mr. Culbertson and see if he can't regulate into his rules a clause covering this domestic angle, maybe curtailing the game somehow!

ROSS POUNDS GARCIA FOR 10 ROUND DECISION

JARS FILIPINO IN 9TH; DOESN'T LOSE A ROUND

Miller Victor Over Christy.

BY FRENCH LANE.

A rugged, hard punching Filipino, Cerfino Garcia from Los Angeles, forced Welterweight Champion Barney Ross of Chicago into the greatest effort he ever put forth before a home town crowd at the Chicago Stadium last night, but at the end of ten rounds Barney had the tough fellow from the Pacific coast soundly whipped.

Barney won the unanimous decision of the referee and two judges, but only because he turned puncher instead of boxer, for this one encounter at least.

In the critical stages, when it appeared as if Garcia, who once upon a time knocked Ross down twice in one round, was going to knock the champ's block off, Ross waded in with punches that were even more terrific than those Garcia was endeavoring to land.

Nails Garcia in Ninth

The advantages Ross gained in these skirmishes, in which scientific boxing was tossed to the winds and supplanted by good old fashioned wallops that traveled from the hips upward, put the 147 pound champion far in front and in one of them—it happened in the ninth—Barney was well along the way toward scoring a knockout.

He had slowed up Garcia with fierce body blows when they came together in this head-on collision in which Barney rapidly landed four solid lefts to the face. Then he aimed again and tossed a left hook squarely to Garcia's jaw.

Garcia, glassy-eyed for an instant, went back on his heels and staggered. He continued to reel until he fell into the ropes. Before Ross could reach him and send over a finishing blow Garcia got his bearings. Then he absorbed more of the punishment meted out by Ross, who by this time was swinging both rights and lefts to the face. The dazed Garcia at last fell into a clinch and would not be pried out of it until the bell ended the round.

Barney Has to Take It.

That was the nearest thing to a knockdown or knockout. There was wild excitement among the spectators in every session, for the slugging was so furious that it didn't seem possible that either could stay on his feet.

And don't think Barney wasn't forced to take it on some occasions. He appeared badly stunned toward the end of the seventh round when Garcia zoomed a right uppercut smack dab onto the point of the champ's chin. Barney wasn't stunned for long, though, and before the round was over he again was swarming over the game, alert Filipino.

Ross waged his great battle before a crowd of 9,154 customers, but there were a great many others there who did not pay.

The gross receipts were $21,541 and the net receipts were $17,951. Barney received a flat guarantee of $12,500 for his 30 minutes of toil.

Ross Tears Into Garcia.

Ross went after Garcia from the beginning and won the first round handily. He did not take the short end of it in any round.

The second, in which Garcia carried out a successful body attack, might have been even. The fourth also was so close that it was an even proposition. Garcia missed with several terrific punches in that session but did land a few telling wallops, enough at least to offset the numerous lefts and occasional rights Barney was throwing.

That was the last round in which Garcia showed to the same spectacular advantage the champion did. The score sheets of the officials best reveal the superiority Ross displayed. These score sheets were as follows:

	Ross.	Garcia.
Referee Thomas	58	42
Judge Battye	57	43
Judge Klein	59	41

Christy Quits Ring.

Freddie Miller of Cincinnati, king of the featherweights, won all the way from Jimmy Christy of Chicago in what Christy announced last night was the last fight of his career.

He wasn't beaten so badly that it caused him to make this decision. Before the bout he made the announcement. From now on instead of Jimmy Christy, the fighter, it will be Jimmy Christy, the artist. He has been an art student for several years.

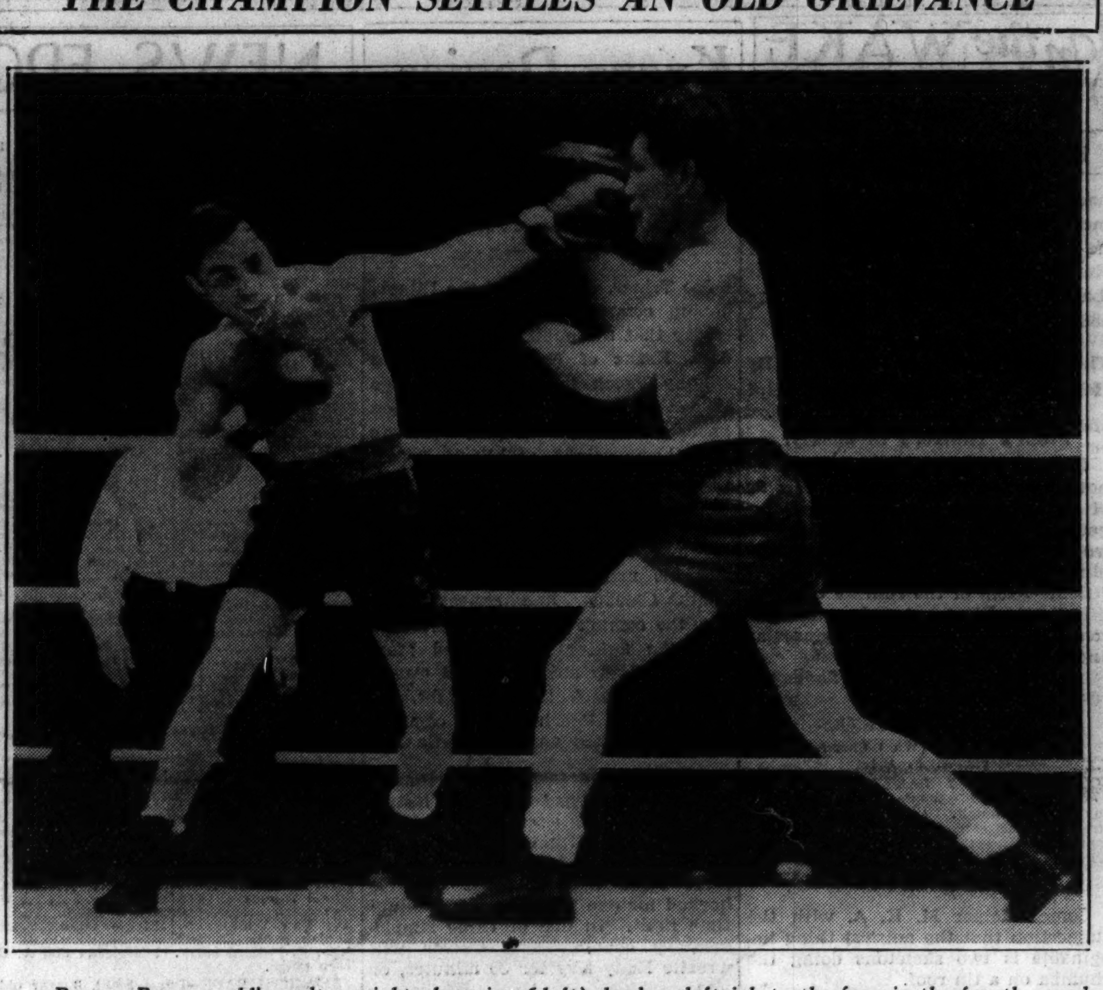
The only knockdown came in the seventh and Christy was the victim. He was fighting his best round of the encounter when Miller landed a left to the stomach. Jimmy was knocked flat, but was up before the referee could start counting.

In the opening bout Virgil Beml of Chicago, 140 pounds, defeated Harold Brown of Chicago, 142½ pounds, in six rounds.

Pat Murphy, Danville, Ill., 150 pounder, and Bob Lamont of Chicago, who weighed 149¾, fought eight rounds to a draw.

Eddie Cool of Philadelphia, 136¼ pounds, and Geno Salvatore of La Salle, Ill., 136½, also fought an eight round draw.

THE CHAMPION SETTLES AN OLD GRIEVANCE



Barney Ross, world's welterweight champion (left), lands a left jab to the face in the fourth round as he outpointed Ceferino Garcia at the Chicago Stadium last night. Garcia floored Ross twice in a previous fight and did a lot of crowing about it, despite the fact that Barney won. Last night Barney got even.

Prep football's biggest battle—the annual interleague game for Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit—will be waged this afternoon at Soldiers' field between Lindblom, champion of the City league, and Leo, Catholic league title holder.

According to officials of the benefit fund, of which Mayor Kelly is founder and chairman, the young men will have a bit of an audience. Barnet Hodes, corporation counsel and secretary of the board controling the fund, said there will be 75,000 in the stands of the lake front stadium for the kickoff, which is scheduled for 1:30 p. m.

This number will include not only the students of both leagues, who are being admitted for 25 cents, but several thousand adult fans who have come to realize that this battle between the best of the city's 43 high school elevens brings out competition worthy of college teams.

1,000 Musicians to Play.

Nothing has been omitted from the plans for the game in the direction of investing it with a collegiate atmosphere. One item, and an important one, will be the parade of 1,000 bandsmen from the member schools of each league. They will assemble at the north end of the stadium at 1 p. m., and will proceed from there under the direction of Glenn Bainum, who was in charge of the huge band at THE TRIBUNE'S All-Star game last August.

The partisan angle also has been arranged for, with Lindblom supporters being seated in the west stands, while Catholic leaguers will occupy the east side to cheer Leo on. For those unable to attend, the game will be broadcast over station W-G-N by Bob Elson.

Both elevens concluded training yesterday with light workouts, and both coaches, Elbert Langsford Moore of Lindblom and A. L. [Whitey] Cronin of Leo, announced their charges are in top condition. For Mr. Moore, a mathematics professor when he isn't teaching football, today's little problem will be the business of keeping the interleague championship against the team from which his boys took the title last year. For Mr. Cronin, a lawyer by profession, the game will be a case as important as he has ever sought to win.

Both Are Undefeated.

The records of both teams bear out the fact that each is a true champion, neither having been defeated, although each has been tied once, Leo being held to 0 to 0 by Loyola, while Lindblom played a scoreless deadlock with Wendell Phillips.

Both teams are constructed around a pair of young men, who, in their way, have been Berwangers to each of their elevens. One is Capt. Ted Hennis of Lindblom, a 170 pound half back whose second quarter dash in last year's game placed the ball in position for the one touchdown of the day. Last Saturday, he gave Lindblom its opportunity for a second interleague title by scoring the only touchdown in the City league final against Parker, and then adding the extra point.

Leo's hopes are built around Hal Bowen, one of the best triple threat operators in Catholic league history. With him in the Catholic leaguers' back field will be three other seniors, like Bowen, seeking revenge for last year's defeat. They are Jim Scahill, right half; Bud Mulcahy, quarter back, and Art Heil, full back. The Leo forward wall, one of the heaviest lines in high school football, includes Tom Brennan, left end; Tom Gallagher, left tackle; Tom Woods, left guard; Bruno [Pat] Andruska, center; Bunny Veeneman, right tackle, and Gene Cramer, right end.

Le Voir Named Minnesota's Most Valuable Player

GOPHER CHOICE

VERNAL LE VOIR.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Vernal Babe Le Voir, one of the Minnesota players who performed through three seasons of Big Ten football without experiencing defeat, was a most valuable player this year in every sense of the word. And so his nomination today as Minnesota's most valuable player was no surprise.

Le Voir is the fifth Western conference player to be placed in the running for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S silver football trophy to be awarded the athlete adjudged most valuable in the Big Ten. His selection also earns him a white gold football.

Handy Man for 2 Years.

Le Voir started the 1935 season as a quarter back and full back. In addition to alternating with Capt. Glenn Seidel at quarter back in the North Dakota Aggie game, he took a turn at relief for Sheldon Beise at full back, just as he had been doing the last two years. But this year his dual play was expected to be a regular assignment, especially with the absence of Stan Kostka, who alternated with Beise last year.

As a result, Le Voir was all prepared to end his collegiate career as a "handy Andy," though possibly never appearing in the starting lineup. Then fortune took a hand and applied a clincher on this most valuable business.

Before the Nebraska game, Julie Alfonse was declared ineligible. That forced a hurried realignment in the back field. And naturally enough, Le Voir was the man nominated to fill in at right half back. He played there in the Nebraska game and turned in a brilliant performance, playing all but a few minutes. And he started at that position against against Tulane.

Fills In for Seidel.

But before that game had run its course, Capt. Glenn Seidel suffered a broken collarbone. Again Le Voir filled in. He stepped right back into the quarter back position, but this time the transition was less difficult because of his previous experience there.

And it was at quarter back that he remained, carrying through the rest of the season with little relief, and never going out because of injury. He was one of the hard rocks of the Four Western Pro Elevens Study Chances for Title

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Twenty-four hours of reflection on the chaos wrought by Thursday's competition in the tense championship struggle yesterday left the four western division members of the National Professional league inspired with thoughts of victory. Each has a mathematical chance of winning the title.

This enthusiasm is based on possibilities alone. Football teams, when computing their chances, seldom consider probabilities. They concern themselves only with what might happen. It is more heartening.

Detroit Needs Victory.

Detroit's chances of finishing in undisputed possession of first place depend upon its defeating Brooklyn tomorrow while the Cardinals are splitting their two games with the Bears tomorrow and next Sunday at Wrigley field. A Green Bay victory over Philadelphia in the Packers' only remaining game a week from tomorrow will not affect this possibility. The standing in this event would be:

	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Detroit	7	3	2	.700
Green Bay	8	4	0	.667
Cardinals	7	4	1	.636
Bears	6	5	1	.545

Green Bay's hopes of gaining the title, which apparently slipped away when it lost to the Cardinals, 9 to 7, Thursday, are based on a triumph over Philadelphia, Brooklyn repeating an earlier victory over Detroit and the Cardinals and Bears breaking even. This would produce the following result:

	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Green Bay	8	4	0	.667
Cardinals	7	4	1	.636
Detroit	6	4	2	.600
Bears	6	5	1	.545

Bears' Chances Slim.

The Bears' hopes seemingly are the slimmest of all. Their chances depend upon Brooklyn beating Detroit, Philadelphia whipping the Packers, and they themselves sweeping the Cardinal series. This would bring about the following final alignment:

	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Bears	7	4	1	.636
Detroit	6	4	2	.600
Green Bay	7	5	0	.583
Cardinals	6	5	1	.545

Double victory for the Cardinals over the Bears would give them an undisputed western championship, despite victories by Detroit and Green Bay in their remaining games. The final standings then would read:

	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Cardinals	8	3	1	.727
Detroit	7	3	2	.700
Green Bay	8	4	0	.667
Bears	5	6	1	.455

The Cardinals are the only team which can suffer defeat and still retain a mathematical chance of finishing on top. This possibility is based on their splitting with the Bears while Detroit and Green Bay are losing, in which case the standing would be:

	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Cardinals	7	4	1	.636
Detroit	6	4	2	.600
Green Bay	7	5	0	.583
Bears	6	5	1	.555

This appears all very complicated to the lay mind, but to the contestants in the closest race in National league history their respective possibilities are very simple. Even the rapid calculators in the dressing rooms, however, become confused over the half dozen situations which might leave two teams tied for the lead and necessitate a playoff for the right to meet the eastern division winner for the league championship.

Giants Near Title.

The Giants appear to have the western division title won, although Brooklyn, their nearest rival, still has an opportunity to tie for the lead and force a play off. The Dodgers, to accomplish this, must whip Detroit tomorrow and Boston the following week, while the Giants are losing to Philadelphia tomorrow and Pittsburgh next Sunday.

The Bears and Cardinals resumed drill yesterday for their game tomorrow, the Cardinals drilling Hal Pangle to replace the two injured quarter backs, Phil Sarboe and Paul Pardonner, and seeking relief for him, while the Bears marshaled a crippled squad to straighten out difficulties in the line which helped to lighten Detroit's march to victory Thursday.

ARMY OR NAVY? 75,000 TO LEARN ANSWER TODAY

Cadets Count on Weight Edge at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Football's annual service classic, featuring this year a forecasted bitter struggle between Army's first string power and Navy's numerous reserve troops, will be presented on Franklin field tomorrow for the entertainment of 75,000.

Whatever edge there was for this 36th renewal rested with Army today, as both squads put the finishing touches on their training—Navy in a secret session at Temple stadium, and Army on a field near the West Point quarters at Green Hill farms.

Army Seeks Vengeance.

Although Navy outclasses Army in the matter of reserves, the West Point back field, headed by flashy Monk Meyer, and the weight edge of the rugged Army line, makes the Cadets a slight favorite to revenge themselves for the 3 to 0 setback of a year ago.

There is no one Navy ball carrier who can compare with Buzz Borries, Army's 1934 nemesis. The Annapolis squad is three deep in every position, while Army, according to Coach Gar Davidson, has no more than 19 first class players.

Among these, however, is the ace back field combination of Meyer, Ed Grove, Bill Groh, and Clinton True, who will start. Navy's ball carrying brigade, is headed by the star half backs, John Schmidt and Tom King, whose starting mates are Dick Pratt and Frank Case. In this respect, Army holds an edge, but Navy's coach, Tom Hamilton, can send two other quartets onto the field at any time.

Cadets Are Heavier.

In the line the Cadets outweigh their rivals by eight pounds to the man.

With the windup of training today, both coaches remained silent on predictions, but both forecast one of the closest games in the series, which now stands at 18 victories to 13 for Army with three tied.

The "big names," which annually are on the list of those present, began to pour in with the other spectators. Heading the service delegations were Secretary of the Navy Swanson, Assistant Secretary of War Woodring, former Navy Secretary Adams, and leading officers of both army and navy.

Capitol Scalpers Will Sell You a Pair for $25

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—As football fans scoured the city today for tickets for the Army-Navy game at Philadelphia tomorrow, it was disclosed again that the best way to obtain them was by paying "scalper" prices about the capitol and office buildings.

It was thought last year that the practice of capitol employés of disposing of these tickets had been broken up, but a visit to "the hill" today showed the amateur scalpers again active.

The reported price was $25 for two tickets.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

Dear Wake: In 1879 the Allen academy, a private school, was located on 22d between State and Wabash. Among the pupils were Harlow Higginbotham; Henry X. Straus, later head of Kuh, Nathan & Fischer; Benny Bensinger, who became head of Brunswick-Balke-Collander; Milt Florsheim, head of Florsheim shoe concern; Jennie Kahn [the only girl student I remember], who married Dr. E. J. Kuh, and many others who became known in commercial and civic fields.

Prof. Allen was a pious Christian who carried his religion into the schoolroom to the extent at least of opening school with prayer and a reading from the New Testament, although most of his pupils attended Dr. Hirsh's synagogue.

In those days 22d street was the southern boundary of the business district. A few blocks away on Wabash, Michigan, and Prairie were residences of many wealthy Chicagoans.

A single leaf of a quarto Bible, charred around its edges, was all that was left of the immense stock of the Western News company, on the west side of State north of Washington, after the Chicago fire of 1871. This contained the first chapter of the lamentations of Jeremiah which begins with these words: "How doth the city sit solitary that was full of people! How is she become as a widow! She that was great among the nations and princess among the provinces, how is she become tributary! She weepeth sore in the night and her tears are on her cheeks: among all her lovers she hath none to comfort her."

Yale Meets Princeton Today; Refuses to Concede Victory

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Yale's football team, completing an indifferent season, meets the undefeated Tigers from Princeton in the bowl tomorrow but there is nothing in its bearing or in that of its followers that would indicate the Blue is a lamb being led to slaughter.

On the contrary, the thousands who swarmed the streets of New Haven tonight appear to believe the Bull Dogs have it in them to repeat last year's 7 to 0 upset and some 50,000 will move into the bowl tomorrow to watch them attempt it.

A demonstration of the Yale mood was furnished by the junior varsity this afternoon when it beat Princeton, 13 to 0. Yale is willing to believe Princeton is bringing a great team, but it refuses to accept the rôle of victim that generally has been assigned to it.

Tigers Visit Field.

The Princeton team paid a visit to the scene of action but didn't change into playing togs. It went to the bowl for a few minutes before leaving for Cheshire where it had a light workout.

Yale's varsity watched the first half of the scrub game, and then went into the bowl for a workout that included kicking and passing and was held in strict privacy.

Both teams are in fairly good shape physically. The men at Princeton who were bothered with colds this week are all with the squad and all ready for play.

Gamblers Revise Odds.

Downtown the confidence that Yale still is in the game despite the talk to the contrary, made itself felt in the betting. Earlier in the week odds of 4 to 1, ridiculous in any Yale-Princeton game, were being quoted, but these shortened tonight and, although Princeton will be a decided favorite when it takes the field, there is a growing feeling that a real game is in prospect. Mike May Be Back in Lineup Against Princeton Today

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—One Play Mike Mesko, the hamburger hurling guard of Rahway, N. J., whose Horatian gesture in Dartmouth's defense won him national notoriety during the Princeton-Dartmouth football game last Saturday, will occupy a seat of honor in the Yale bowl when Princeton and Yale meet tomorrow. Whether he will remain in that seat is not quite certain.

Last week at Palmer stadium, One Play had no seat-of-honor, nor did he hesitate to leave what he did have when Dartmouth's line sagged on the six yard line and Princeton stampeded toward the goal. It was on the next play that Mike rushed onto the gridiron, lined up with the Green forwards and threw his brawn into the fray.

Mike explained it was no love of alma mater that fired his fighting dander, but a combination of circumstances. One was the action of certain distillates on his metabolism and the other was a cultivated and implacable aversion to Princeton football teams.

Hearing of this aversion, a contingent from the Yale club of New York decided it ought to be fostered and encouraged. Consequently a group headed by Thomas Prosser, a loyal Yale alumnus, set about to raise a fund to take "One Play" Mike to New Haven for the Princeton game.

Meanwhile, word from the Yale campus brought the news that the Yale Record, the undergraduate humorous weekly, had wholeheartedly indorsed the Mesko movement. An elaborate program was in preparation tonight and all the details were not known. It was definitly established, however, that Mesko and his sponsors would be met at the New Haven railway station and escorted to the bowl by a brass band.

Not the least among the honors planned for One Play Mike, according to tonight's rumor, will be a solemn presentation ceremony between the halves in which Mesko will receive a large blocked varsity "D."

C. Y. O. FINALISTS RESUME DRILL FOR TITLE BOUTS

Boxers Come In Heavy After Holiday.

Trainers yesterday weighed the 32 boys who will compete in the finals of the annual Catholic Youth organization amateur boxing tournament at the Chicago Stadium Wednesday and then ordered most of them into the practice ring for their first boxing since emerging victorious in the semi-final round. With the exception of one or two, the boxers were overweight after the Thanksgiving holiday Thursday and hard work and strict adherence to the training program is needed to put them into tiptop condition.

Not a single member of the select group was balky, however, and each jumped to the task with a willingness that bodes no good for his opponent next week.

Sixteen Bouts on Card.

Tony Carlucci, experienced Mercy mission boxer, who meets Tony Motisi of Guardian Angel for the featherweight crown, and Johnny Bittner, St. Paul representative, who is matched for flyweight honors with Sammy Zaczek, set an example for the others. They tore into each other in their drill as if the title itself was at stake.

As these survivors of more than 2,000 who entered the tournament several weeks ago prepared for the finals, officials announced the order in which the bouts will be held Wednesday. There will be 16 matches, eight in class A and eight in class B.

Young Meets Tazioli.

The class B boxers will fight first. The show will open at 8:15 p. m. with a welterweight bout between Cornelius Young, St. Cecilia, and Joe Tazioli, St. James, Highwood. After the lightweight match involving Bob Chan, St. Maria Incoronata, and Agis Bray, Corpus Christi, lightweight rivals, ending the class B competition there will be an intermission during which a pageant will be presented.

Then the first pair of class A fighters will enter the ring from opposite lanes under the glare of spotlights. These will be Hiner Thomas, Corpus Christi and Mike Krizmas, St. Patrick's, South Chicago. The last match on the program will bring together Eddie Garvey, St. Lucy's and Chester Rutecki, St. Michael's, South Chicago. The pairings and the order in which the matches will be presented follow:

Class B.

147 POUNDS—Cornelius Young, St. Cecilia vs. Joe Tazioli, St. James [Highwood].

CHICAGO TENNIS ASSOCIATION TO ELECT OFFICERS

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Chicago Tennis association will be held Tuesday evening at the Hamilton club.

The nomination committee of C. C. Johnson, chairman, J. Sampson, and J. M. Juran, has nominated the following: Frank D. Fulton, president; William N. Strack, first vice president; Fred Wagner, second vice president; Art Kaiser, treasurer, and Bernice [Jackie] Ayer, secretary.

Kranz Denies Being Knocked Out at Miami

Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois boxing commission, announced yesterday that the published report that Jack Kranz of Gary, runnerup to Johnny Pacek in the 1933 Chicago Golden Gloves tournament, had been knocked out by Joe Knight, a leading light heavyweight, at Miami Beach, Fla., Monday, is erroneous. He explained another fighter used Kranz's name against Knight.

Triner revealed this after Kranz and his manager, Jack O'Keefe of South Chicago, had appeared before the commission bearing evidence that the fighter had worked Monday in a Gary steel mill and wasn't at Miami Beach Monday night.

The Miami Beach athletic commission has started an investigation.

Promoter Joe Coffey has arranged two bouts to head his light heavyweight wrestling show at White City Monday. Bert Rubi will clash with Turp Grimes and Zack Malkov will meet Jack Gacek. Each bout is booked for one fall with a 60 minute time limit. In one of three supplementary events Toots Culver will wrestle Rudy Kay for 30 minutes, or less.

Jimmy Webb, St. Louis middleweight, who has won two contests here, will face Toots Bernstein of Milwaukee in a five rounder at Marigold Gardens Monday. Billy Miller, also of Milwaukee, and Milt Aron of the north side are paired for eight rounds at 147 pounds in the windup. Johnny Erjavec, Duluth heavyweight, signed to appear in another eight round bout on the card, may have to be removed because of Promoter Irving Schoenwald's inability to obtain a suitable foe. Walter Matthys and Charley Mack will be featherweight combatants at four rounds.

M'AVOY DEFEATS M'COY EASILY IN U. S. DEBUT

British Champion Shows Skill in Garden.

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Jock McAvoy, British middle and light heavyweight champion, began his first American campaign tonight with a ten round victory over Al McCoy, Boston French-Canadian, in Madison Square Garden. McAvoy weighed 168¼, and McCoy 170½.

A disappointing crowd of not more than 5,000 paid only $11,360 to see the Briton in his debut. The victory puts McAvoy in line for a shot at John Henry Lewis' light heavyweight crown.

Jock Wins Six Rounds.

The Associated Press score card gave McAvoy six rounds. Three went to McCoy and one was called even.

The aggressor from the start, the trim, black haired Englishman gave McCoy, the sentimental as well as the betting favorite, the boxing lesson of his life. He kept the Bostonian away with his left and used his right to land two-thirds of all the punches the fight produced.

McAvoy's cleverness was a more telling factor in his victory than his punching ability. McCoy, known throughout the east as a rugged puncher, was so bottled up that most of his punches fell harmlessly on McAvoy's arms or shoulders.

Marek Whips Dudas.

Max Marek, Chicago heavyweight, outpointed Steve Dudas, Edgewater, N. J., heavyweight contender, in a savage six rounder. Marek had Dudas reeling with a right to the head in the first round.

Dudas came back to win the third with a flurry of sharp lefts and rights, but the westerner shaded him in all the other rounds. Marek weighed 181½ and Dudas 193.

Floored six times in the first two rounds with sledge hammer rights to the head, young Bob Pastor of New York, formerly of the Golden Gloves, staged a stirring finish to earn a draw with Eddie Simms, a slugger from Cleveland, in another six rounder. Simms weighed 194½ and Pastor 185½.

Eastern Turf Season Will Close Today

Bowie, Md., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Bright Light won the feature of the Bowie program this afternoon, the John Seymour purse, from which Bright Plumage, the Endurance handicap winner, was scratched. Bright Plumage is strictly a nonmudder and heavy footing prevailed.

Bright Light, from the Shandon farm, won easily by four lengths after being backed to odds-on favoritism at $3.10 for $2. The race was not much of a contest, Wha Hae setting the pace for six or seven furlongs. Bright Light went up when Johnny Gilbert pleased, took the lead, and won with speed in reserve. It was an Indian file finish with Wha Hae five lengths before Indomitable and the latter's stablemate, Sweet as Sugar, eight lengths farther back in fourth and last position. The time was 1:50 2-5 over a heavy track.

The eastern racing season will end here tomorrow, when seven races will be run, featured by the $5,000 Bryan and O'Hara Memorial handicap for which nine have been nominated. The mile and three-sixteenths test will be notable for the return to competition of Walter M. Jeffords' Firethorn, beaten favorite in the Riggs handicap, but before that the victor in the Lawrence Realization and Jocky Club gold cup.

Whether he can successfully negotiate the off track which is expected to prevail, under top weight of 126 pounds, is what a great many would like to know today. The filly Judy O'Grady, a stablemate, also is named, but will have only 105 pounds to carry. Both are 3 year olds trained by Preston M. Burch.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN MEETS S. M. U.; TITLE AT STAKE

Thousands Unable to Get Tickets for Game.

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Playing for the highest stakes in southwest football history, a Southwestern conference championship and a Rose Bowl bid, undefeated Texas Christian and Southern Methodist today wound up preparations for their struggle here tomorrow.

While Southern Methodist took a short gallop through formations on its campus at Dallas and T. C. U. drilled briefly at its stadium here, Fort Worth went wild over the game.

The last of the 30,500 tickets were gone. Fans thumbed bankrolls and pleaded for choice tickets at $40 and $50 each. Federal agents took the trail of scalpers. Hotel reservations were exhausted as alumni of T. C. U. poured into the city for their homecoming, an occasion on which Texas Christian never has lost to Southern Methodist.

Second Largest Crowd.

The crowd will be the second largest in the southwest's history. Forty-two thousand paid to see Texas university and Texas A. and M. several years ago in a Thanksgiving game. Thousands who have sought tickets for tomorrow's game were disappointed.

Never before has a southwestern game attracted the array of eastern and midwest sports writers and coaches, who will be here to get first hand knowledge of a type of football that is rapidly becoming recognized as the most potent sectionally in the land. Perfect weather is forecast.

S. M. U. Coach Gloomy.

"It's going to be a rough, tough fight," was the prediction of Coach L. D. Meyer of Texas Christian. He said his team, however, hoped to win.

Coach Matty Bell of S. M. U. was gloomy due to injuries to his players, but critics hailed Bell as a coach who can "fire up a one legged man to play 60 minutes."

Tiny Thornhill, Stanford coach, has asked Ben Winkleman, Fort Worth high school coach, to scout the game.

SOUTHERN METHODIST.		TEXAS CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY.

Le Voir Picked as Minnesota's Most Valuable

Gopher roster, and it was well that he proved so durable. Another stroke of the misfortune which swept aside Alfonse, then Seidel, perhaps would have been tragic, if that stroke had swept aside Le Voir, too. He was the man the Gophers could spare the least.

The quarter back's rôle under Coach Bernie Bierman calls for little in the way of ball carrying. Bierman wants his quarter backs to concentrate on blocking and signal calling. But even so, Le Voir was seventh in the Big Ten scoring list. It all was because of the educated toe with which he sent the ball between the uprights. He scored only one touchdown in Big Ten competition, that on a forward pass against Michigan. But he accounted for 13 points after touchdowns in Western conference play, and added three more in nonconference games.

Makes the Most On Chances.

Le Voir made the most of his few opportunities as a ball carrier. He carried the ball from scrimmage only 26 times in the five conference and three non-conference games, but he picked up 101 yards for a gain of 3.83 yards per effort.

Especially since he became full time quarter back, Le Voir has been indispensable defensively. He stood out as a pass grabber, and he shared with Beise the distinction of being the finest blocker on the squad. His field generalship likewise was of the highest order. He was the best defender against forward passes that Minnesota boasted this year, and he also was one of the best men in backing up the line.

Le Voir is a home town product, one of three regular Minneapolis performers in the Minnesota back field this year. He is a graduate of Marshall High school, where he established a remarkable record. Although he weighed only 154 pounds in high school—when he played full back for Minnesota this fall he weighed only 172 pounds—he was all-city Minneapolis full back. He also was a star performer in baseball and basketball and played hocky well.

At Minnesota Le Voir is a star infielder in baseball. He was one of the leading hitters on the Minnesota championship nine last summer, making him a member of three championship teams in slightly over a year. Le Voir was born May 27, 1913, at Bovey, Minn., and is of French extraction.

THIRD AMERICAN OLYMPIC CHIEF SPURNS BOYCOTT

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 29.—(AP)—William May Garland, eldest of America's three representatives in the International Olympic federation, joined Brig. Gen. Charles H. Sherrill tonight in condemning any American boycott of Germany's 1936 Olympic games. His statement broke the deadlock existing among the American officials. The third member, Commander Ernest Lee Jahncke, recently recommended non-participation.

"To refuse to join with the nations which sacrificed a great deal to help our celebration of the games in 1932," said Mr. Garland, "would reflect on no one as much as the United States."

Sees Un-Olympic Atmosphere.

Garland's stand also opposed that of Zack Farmer, general manager of the organizing committee of the 1932 Olympic meet here. As president of the committee, Garland was Farmer's immediate superior. Farmer charged that there was an "un-Olympic atmosphere surrounding the present setup in Berlin."

"Chancellor Hitler can no more make a political speech than could have President Hoover at Los Angeles," Garland said. "Those who have prophesied an avalanche of Nazi propaganda at the games simply display their ignorance of the conditions under which the games are held.

Upholds Latour's Stand.

"As Count Baillet Latour, president of the International Olympic federation, pointed out only a few days ago, 'If, as charged—and I deny it—Germans are barred from trying for the Olympic team because of religion or race—that fact might be grounds for disqualification of the German team but not for moving the games from Berlin.'"

U. OF C. FOOTBALL NUMERALS GIVEN TO 25 FRESHMEN

Award of "1940" numerals to 25 University of Chicago freshmen football players was announced yesterday by T. N. Metcalf, athletic director at the Midway. Numeral sweaters will be conferred formally during the annual football dinner to be given by the Chicago Alumni club at the Sherman hotel, Thursday evening.

This year's frosh, who have been throwing their opponents' plays against the varsity with considerable success all fall, are regarded as the most promising lot to arrive at the Midway in several seasons. Casters Given Chance to Try Aim at U. of C.

BY BOB BECKER.

Chicago fishermen will indulge in winter casting practice tomorrow at the University of Chicago fieldhouse, where the Illinois Casting club will be host to all casters who wish to practice for the competition to be held Dec. 8. THE TRIBUNE is awarding silver trophies to the winners in the bait and fly casting contests on that day.

The competition will be held at the fieldhouse, according to arrangements announced yesterday by J. M. Sutton, president of the Illinois Casting club. All fishermen who would like to compete should see Mr. Sutton, 1537 East 67th place, or the club secretary, Eugene Frank, Piccadilly hotel. Any one wishing to practice tomorrow may do so between 10 a. m. and 3 p. m.

10 Pound Casting Lines.

In the competition on Dec. 8, concessions will be made to the fishermen who are competing in their first tournament, in that regulation 10 pound casting lines will be used.

With ice fishing not yet under way, and with the waterfowl season closed, sportsmen who want to maintain contacts with either the sport of fishing or shooting must naturally turn to indoor casting or skeet shooting, unless they can hit for the southern end of the state to get in a few days of quail hunting.

Indications are that there will be more skeet shooters at the traps this winter than last season. This sport has been growing at a rapid pace and hundreds of sportsmen who never fire a shotgun after the close of the bird seasons, now go regularly to the skeet traps. Clubs west and northwest of the city offer shooters plenty of chances to try their skill at the flying clay pigeons.

Shooting in Lincoln Park.

Shooters who live on the north side can get acquainted with skeet and obtain instruction on how to break the clay pigeons that are thrown at different angles from the skeet traps by visiting the Lincoln Park Gun club located on the lake near the drive. The club welcomes the opportunity to help beginners. There are many public skeet clubs in the suburbs. The names and locations of these clubs can be obtained by writing to this department.

$1,000 BRIBE TALK A HOAX, SAY OFFICIALS

New York, Nov. 29.—Fordham university athletic authorities today described as a hoax the published report that Joe Maniaci, captain and half back, and Amerino Sarno, star tackle, were offered bribes of $1,000 each to throw the football game with New York university yesterday.

Fordham won, 21 to 0, with Maniaci its star. Sarno was put out of the game in the first half after precipitating a fist fight with Perry Geffen, New York university tackle.

According to Fordham officials, a reporter who had heard a rumor of the "bribe" approached Maniaci and asked him about it. The officials said Maniaci jokingly told the reporter it was true, and the report spread. Fordham officials denied that New York university supporters had anything to do with the matter.

NEW POLO TEAMS CLASH TONIGHT AT RIDING CLUB

THE MAYOR WISHES 'EM LUCK

Use World's Fair Trafic System for Prep Game

A mass transportation system originally developed for A Century of Progress will accommodate spectators at the championship football game between Lindblom and St. Leo High schools at Soldiers' field this afternoon. In addition, there will be more than ample free parking space.

Street cars of the Cermak road and Roosevelt road lines will run into the Burnham park terminals. There are free transfers with the elevated service; the Roosevelt road station is recommended. Buses may be taken from Jackson boulevard and Michigan avenue; they are marked "No. 26, Aquarium." Buses No. 3 or 6 may be taken to the gates from the south side.

The World's Fair grounds adjacent to the stadium will be open to parking. Parking also will be permitted east of Field museum and south of the stadium.

At the close of the game, if conditions warrant, the outer drive will be closed to north bound trafic at 23d street, and south bound trafic will be prohibited from entering Grant park from Michigan avenue. This will convert all pavements radiating from the stadium into one way routes for the football fans.

CLASSIC LEAGUE BOWLS TONIGHT ON WEST SIDE

The Classic league will bowl at the Lorraine arcade, 810 North Cicero avenue, tonight at 8 o'clock. YALE EDUCATOR RECOGNIZES PRO FOOTBALL'S GAIN

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 29.—(AP)—President James Rowland Angell of Yale today suggested the possibility that professional football may supplant the college game as a crowd drawing sport, much as "paid" baseball replaced college baseball.

But Yale, Princeton, and Harvard, asserted Dr. Angell in an article written for the official Princeton-Yale football program, never will yield to the "hired man" policy in college athletics.

He said he had evidence which led him to think college football has become in many instances big business.

He said that if college football was going "frankly professional," then it would have to compete with the commercial game, with consequences which might well affect the exchequer of the college athletic association.

Discussing three proposals offered as solutions to the "commercial" problem—endowments, the return to informal games of the pre-Victorian era, and the simplifying of the present program—he recommended the last. This would adopt a "less expensive program of intercollegiate sports" and "perhaps discontinue some of them as financial responsibilities of the college itself, or allow the students to carry them on unaided, if they so desire."

MIDWEST TEAMS BEATEN IN FIELD HOCKY TOURNEY

Cleveland, O., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—The Midwest first team and reserves were beaten today in the national women's field hocky tournament. The first squad lost to the Southeast reserves, 3 to 1, while the Midwest reserves were defeated by the Northeast reserves, 5 to 1.

Irma Graham of Chicago scored the Midwest's only goal against the Southeast reserves. The winners' goals were made by June Cross, Virginia Allen and Dorothy Morton, all of Philadelphia. In another game the Northeast team defeated the Great Lakes reserves, 14 to 0.

PLAY SEMI-FINAL GAME.

Our Lady of Grace, undefeated C. Y. O. and Midwest league football champions, will play in the semi-final match of the Cook county league play-offs against the Frank Ringa Boosters tomorrow at Lane Tech field.

Harvard Shows Profit on Sports for Last Year

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 29.—(AP)—A profit of $2,306.18, the first excess of income over expenses since 1932, was made by the Harvard Athletic association during the year ending last June 30, the annual report of Henry L. Shattuck, treasurer of Harvard college, revealed tonight.

This excess contrasts with a deficit of $32,881.87 for the preceding year and $57,064.78 for the year ended June 30, 1933. The last profit was for the year ended June 30, 1932, when it amounted to $36,729.36.

Receipts for the 1934-35 academic year were $541,500.05, as compared with $600,594.89 the preceding year.

Treasurer Shattuck said the varsity football team again was the only sport to show a profit. The net receipts of Harvard's 1934 team were $291,465.32 and its expenses $75,738.01. The 1933 varsity football team had net receipts of $265,498.39 and expenses of $65,144.82.

The losses suffered by the other 1934-'35 major teams were: Baseball, $8,138.59; crew, $17,831.40; track, $13,201.07, and hocky, $5,267.97.

STANFORD WILL PICK ROSE BOWL FOE ON MONDAY

Pasadena, Cal., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Stanford's Rose Bowl opponent for the annual New Year's day intersectional football game probably will be chosen Monday, Al Masters, graduate manager, said on arrival here today to set up a ticket office.

"I am returning to Palo Alto Saturday night," Masters said, "and there probably will be no announcement to be made until I return here on Monday."

He declined to affirm or deny reports that Notre Dame and Louisiana State were being considered as members of the thinly spread list of eligible teams. Each of these teams has suffered a defeat this season and Notre Dame was held to a tie besides.

In the meantime the majority of the western football followers continued to express partiality in the victor of the game tomorrow at Fort Worth between two undefeated elevens, Southern Methodist and Texas Christian.

Calls Schools in East Blind to Subsidization

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Charging that a number of institutions are "blind," Dr. Wilson Farrand, secretary of Princeton university, today gave his report on the suzsidization of athletes at the convention of the Middle Atlantic States' Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

"While we have no evidence on which we could act in any specific case, the indications of extensive subsidizing of athletes in a number of institutions are so clear that it is difficult to see how an efficient administration san be so blind in what is going on," Dr. Farrand said.

The Middle Atlantic association, which in September, 1933, decided to refuse a place on the accredited list to any college which gave scholarships to athletes, accepts the signed statement of the president of a college as proof high school athletic stars are not subsidized. Dr. Farrand declared "it is not feasible to enforce the standards which have been set up."

Five colleges have been added to the accredited list, the commission reported. They include Duquesne university, Pittsburgh; Houghton college, Houghton, N. Y.; Misercordia college, Dallas, Pa.; Mount Mercy college, Pittsburgh, and St. Peter's college, Jersey City.

BIG 10 OFFICIALS TO DISCUSS NEW BASKET RULES

New basketball rules will be discussed by 35 coaches and officials of the Western conference tomorrow tomorrow morning in the Sherman hotel.

Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of the Big Ten, will lead the discussion, during which the schedule of games for the season will be outlined.

Nelson Norgren, basketball coach at the University of Chicago, will address the meeting.

HAWKS RETURN TO DRILL FOR CANADIEN GAME

Meet Montreal Six at the Stadium Tomorrow.

The Chicago Blackhawks, whose winning streak was halted on a two game road trip to Montreal and New York, returned to Chicago yesterday afternoon. Manager Clem Loughlin will hold a two hour practice today in preparation for the Blackhawks-Montreal Canadiens game at the Stadium tomorrow night.

Loughlin and the team were not downcast over their defeats by the Maroons and Rangers. Loughlin pointed out it was considerable achievement to split with the world's champion Maroons and a high scoring team like the Rangers. The Blackhawks defeated both clubs in their first games this season.

The peculiarities of figuring the league's standings have placed the Blackhawks in second place in the United States division. Figured on a percentage basis, however, the Hawks would be leading the league.

Mantha Real Veteran.

Johnny Gottselig, who crashed with Hooley Smith in last Sunday's game, is still in the hospital. Dr. Meacham, the club physician, stated Gottselig probably would not be ready for another week.

Sylvio Mantha of Montreal Canadiens, one of the two playing managers in professional hocky, will lead his flying Frenchmen against the Hawks. Mantha is one of the veterans of the National Hocky league. He is starting his 12th season in big time.

He Has Changed.

A native of Montreal, Mantha stands 5 feet 10 inches, weighs 180 pounds, and was born April 14, 1903. Time was when Sylvio would not step back from any player in the league. He met the opposition squarely, with the result that injuries played a big part in his early professional career.

Experience, however, has taught him the wily tricks of the defense man. Today the outburst of Gallic temperament which sent him to the penalty box for 108 minutes in 1929-'30 are gone and Mantha prospers by adroit stick handling.

U. S. CATHOLICS COLLEGIATE GAME PLANNED IN WEST

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Far western football, with its Rose Bowl and East-West classics, will add a new postseason game to its schedule, either next month or early in January. It is billed as "the Catholic national collegiate championship."

Holy Cross, undefeated and favored to beat Boston college tomorrow, will be the first eastern representative in the annual San Francisco game if it accepts an invitation already tendered.

Sponsors of the game, the local organization of the Knights of Columbus, hope to induce St. Mary's college to represent the west.

Five dates, Dec. 22, Christmas day, Jan. 5, 11, and 12, were submitted for approval by Holy Cross. St. Mary's still has three hard home games against Washington State tomorrow; University of Oregon, Dec. 8, and the University of California at Los Angeles, Dec. 14.

Rosenbloom Whips Lewis in Nontitle Battle

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, playboy of the ring and former light heavyweight champion, scored a ten round decision over John Henry Lewis, Phoenix, Ariz., Negro and present title holder, tonight. Lewis, whose crown was not at stage, weighed 178, eight less than Rosenbloom.

LORENZ DEFENDS 'MERCY KILLING' TO CHECK PAIN

Surgeon Tells Duty of Doctor to Patient.

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Dr. Adolf Lorenz, internationally famous for his bloodless surgery, placed himself in the ranks of the advocates of "mercy killings" today, but in the same breath he asked:

"Why all this fuss? I can't understand it. It seems to be a mode or fashion of late to talk about 'mercy killings.' Why, they always have been and always will be done. You'd think it was something new, the fuss everybody's making about it."

The noted Viennese surgeon said he probably had hastened the death of two of his family when he instructed the physicians attending them not to spare the morphine in saving them from pain.

Suffering from Cancer.

One was the first wife of his son, Dr. Albert Lorenz of Vienna. She was 30 and a victim of cancer. She died twelve years ago. The other was his uncle, Abbot Gregor of the St. Paul monastery in Carinthia, who died of cancer of his bladder twenty years ago.

"My uncle was suffering terribly, and there was no cure," Dr. Lorenz said. "I wrote to the physicians, 'Please don't spare the morphine.' I did the same in the case of Elizabeth, my daughter-in-law.

"I'd want the same myself," he went on. "If I had an incurable disease, if I was beyond all hope and was in pain, I would direct my son to see that the pain was stopped."

Duty to Stop Pain.

Dr. Lorenz is 81, but is in perfect health and continues his practice, which he divides between here and Europe.

"The duty of a doctor," he said, "is to spare his patient pain and suffering. That always has been his duty. Every physician remembers that and will go on killing the pains until the pains are really effaced, not considering the possibility of whether or not it will be shortening a worthless and doomed life.

"It is a question that doesn't involve direct or intentional killing. Ethics? That's just a part of the fuss. In a short time the public will forget all about it, the physician will remember his duty and go right on sparing the pains, whether or not he intentionally or unintentionally shortens lives."

JURIES UNABLE TO SET BLAME IN 3 RACKET KILLINGS

Verdicts of murder by persons unknown were returned yesterday by coroner's juries at inquests into the deaths of three ex-convicts who were slain on Nov. 14 and 15 in what is believed to have been an outbreak of a battle for control of the illicit alcohol racket.

Frank Stypulowski, 25 years old, was shot to death as he sat in his automobile with Marie Kotowski, 21 years old, on Nov. 14 in Paulina street near North avenue. Frank Schaffer, who was shot and wounded the following night, has been charged with the murder of Stypulowski, but refused to testify at the inquest. He will be arraigned in the Felony court on Dec. 10.

Joseph Scaffido, 28 years old, of Milwaukee, and Angelo Kleronomos, 24 years old, 1313 South 58th court, Cicero, were slain Nov. 15 as they sat in an automobile in front of 2121 Custer street.

The inquests were held in the county morgue. At another inquest held there yesterday the coroner's jury brought in a verdict of murder by persons unknown in the death of Samuel Incandella, 31 years old, owner of a macaroni factory at 3825 Chicago avenue. Incandella was killed by a gunman in his office on Nov. 19.

INQUIRY OPENED IN 2 NORTH SIDE MALARIA DEATHS

Inquests into two malaria deaths on the near north side were opened yesterday as police investigated the possibility that a narcotic addict who was a malaria carrier might be spreading the disease by lending his hypodermic needle to other users of dope. Both inquests, held in an undertaking establishment at 2701 North Clark street, were continued to 1 p. m. Dec. 19 in the county morgue.

The dead were Miss Georgia Bickel, 22 years old, 73 West Chicago avenue, who died early yesterday in the North Chicago hospital, and Ernest Lans, 52 years old, a janitor, of 1315 North La Salle street, who died the previous night in the same hospital.

Deputy Coroner Louis J. Nadherny questioned relatives of both victims, who said they did not know of any acquaintance between the dead man and girl.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The dulcet flow of Fred Waring's program was unexpectedly interrupted last Tuesday by the comical [and pathetic] antics of a young lady who calls herself Snoonie. Snoonie appeared as a girl who just had to see Mr. Waring to tell him that he was her ideal. After several rebuffs she broke in on the program and Waring acted as her straight man during an amusing bit of dialog.

Unfortunately it wound up in a spasm of excessive lachrymosity—suggestive of Eddie Cantor at his drippingest. Her whimpering and whining made listeners positively uncomfortable. On a program whose effect in the main is soporific this is unfortunate.

Snoonie's real name is Barbara Blair. On the vaudeville stage she acted as a stooge for Herman Timberg. Three years ago she went on the air with Solly Ward, Dutch dialectician. She used a routine similar to the one she had employed with Timberg. A lawsuit followed and the radio show ended disastrously.

But Waring, casting about for some one to replace Stoopnagle and Bud, thinks he has it in Snoonie. It's a good idea, no doubt, to have some one break in on this too smoothly flowing show. Whether Snoonie has a sufficient variety of talents to do the job right remains to be seen. Whimsy alone will not do it. Whimsy is all right when you can take it or leave it—as in a book. As a steady radio diet—well, we have our doubts.

Stork notes: It's a boy at the Vinton Haworths. Born Thanksgiving morning at Woodlawn hospital. Name, Vinton Jr. Vinton is Jack Arnold to Myrt and Marge fans. Also a boy at the Larry Wellingtons. Larry, formerly at WLS, is now with the Westerners on the Show Boat hour. Clara, Lu, 'n' Em will begin broadcasting from the home of Clara [Louise Starkey] in Evanston tomorrow. Her baby is expected in January.

When Milton Charles, CBS organist, burst into the wedding march from "Lohengrin" while accompanying Jack Brooks, tenor, during the broadcast of the Old Settin' room on Thanksgiving day studio associates made some inquiries. It turned out that Brooks had married Helen Kepler of the CBS music library staf Wednesday evening. Howard Neumiller, pianist, served as best man.

Lennie Hayton may be out of radio for some time. Fred Astaire has invited him to handle the orchestra on his next picture. . . . Bob Burns, the Ozark comedian, who will join Bing Crosby's new show, looks like the biggest radio find of the year.

COL. A. C. GILLEM, ARMY VETERAN, DIES AT AGE OF 70

Funeral services for Col. Alvan C. Gillem, retired army officer, of 5485 Hyde Park boulevard, who died in the Edward Hines Jr. hospital early yesterday, will be held from the chapel at 201 Lake street, Maywood, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Col. Gillem, who was 70 years old, was born in Nashville, Tenn., the son of Gen. Alvan Gillem, civil war veteran and one time military governor of Tennessee. He served in the army for 39 years, a large part of the time as an officer of the cavalry. He saw active service in the Philippines and in Mexico during the pursuit of Villa. During the world war he helped train troops for service overseas. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Jane M. Gillem, and four children by previous marriages, Lieut. Col. Alvan Gillem, Washington, D. C.; Jenks Gillem, Birmingham, Ala.; Mrs. Carolyn Daly, Fort Riley, Kas., and Anne Gillem, Chicago.

King Jefferson, 60 years old, colored, 5640 South Wabash avenue, who attempted to commit suicide by shooting himself in the chest Thursday after he was discovered to have worked as a janitor at police headquarters during the day and as a watchman at the main postoffice at night, was reported in a serious condition at the County hospital last night. He was pensioned by the city at $50 a month two years ago and soon was to apply for a federal pension. The discovery of his two positions made him ineligible for the latter pension.

Frank J. Dahm, a custodian employed by the National Safety Deposit company, 38 South Dearborn street, died yesterday of peritonitis in St. Joseph's hospital. He was 62 years old and had been a Chicago resident for 44 years. He was born in Belleville, Ill. Surviving are a son, Frank Jr., a radio script writer, and a daughter, Irene, 2000 Lincoln Park West, an employé of radio station W-G-N, with whom Mr. Dahm made his home. CHARLES APPEL, FATHER OF LILA LEE, DIES AT 63

Ex-Owner of N. Side Turner Hall.

CHARLES APPEL.

Charles Louis Appel, father of Lila Lee, the movie actress, and one time owner of the North Side Turner Hall, 820 North Clark street, died yesterday in Elyria, O., at the home of another daughter, Mrs. Leonard Tufford. He was 63 years old.

Appel was indicted in 1923 on charges of having embezzled $250,000 from friends. At that time he was visiting with his wife and actress daughter in Los Angeles and never returned to Chicago. He was believed to have taken refuge in Dresden, Germany, for several years and then lived in New York, going to Elyria to live with Mrs. Tufford two years ago.

Leader of German Groups.

Appel was born in Coblin, Germany, in 1872. After coming to Chicago as a young man he became a leader among German-Americans here. He was appointed a member of the Chicago public library board by a former Republican mayor in 1922.

Known as a genial host at the North Side Turner hall, Appel was regarded as "little Santa Claus" in the old county jail. Many free meals were sent from his kitchens to prisoners in the jail, which was near the hall, and condemned men were always served their last supper by him.

Fraud Charges Never on Trial.

The embezzlement charges against Appel were never made clear, as the case did not go to trial, but it was reported that he had gone heavily in debt to his friends. He was alleged to have received a fund of $125,000 for whisky purchases for druggists and never to have accounted for it.

Surviving in addition to the two daughters, Mrs. Tufford and Miss Lee, are the widow, Augusta, and three grandchildren, Lila and Robert Tufford, and James Kirkwood Jr., son of Miss Lee and her former husband. Miss Lee informed Mrs. Tufford yesterday that she would reach Elyria today for the funeral.

MOTHER OF FIVE ENDS OWN LIFE BENEATH TRAIN

Mrs. Marie Bunte, 48 years old, 3408 Belmont avenue, widowed mother of five children, pinned a note to her coat giving her name and address last night and then leaped in front of a Chicago and North Western suburban train at Avondale and Kimball avenues. She was killed. Three years ago her husband, Gust, was killed by a train near the same spot.

Sergt. Walter Anderson and his Albany Park police squad went to Mrs. Bunte's home. The policemen found the children, Margaret, 18 years old; Charles, 13; George, 11; Jane, 9, and Dorothy May, 5, supperless and destitute.

"A few months ago our relief was cut down because I got a job at $7.80 a week in a loop beauty parlor," Margaret said. "We haven't been able to exist on my salary and the small relief we get. There was no food tonight and mother was despondent."

Sergt. Anderson returned to the police station and took up a collection. The money bought enough groceries to last the children several days.

FRANCIS FLOYD, SOLDIER IN CIVIL WAR, DEAD AT 87

Francis M. Floyd, a civil war veteran, died yesterday in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Laura A. Shaw, at 8434 Drexel avenue. Mr. Floyd, who was 87 years old, served with the 159th Indiana Volunteers throughout the war although he was born in Georgia. In one of the engagements he fought against the Confederate company in which his father enlisted.

Mr. Floyd was born in Decatur, Ga., and moved to Indiana in 1859. After the war he returned to Indiana, then moved to Chenoa, Ill., in 1890. In 1894 he came to Chicago. Three daughters and a son survive. Funeral services will be held Monday morning from the home of Mrs. Shaw. Burial will be in Chenoa.

Mrs. Rose Sidney, 41, Dies After Collapse on Street

Mrs. Rose Sidney, 41 years old, 7500 Parnell avenue, wife of Thomas J. Sidney, garage superintendent for Armour & Co., collapsed yesterday in front of 7620 South Union avenue and was taken to the Auburn Park hospital where she was pronounced dead. Besides her husband she is survived by three children, Thomas Jr., 18 years old; Edward, 17, and Myrtle, 14.

SEC TONES DOWN UTILITY RULE AS SUITS MULTIPLY

Exemptions Given Many Companies.

While court attacks on the federal utility act multiplied rapidly yesterday the securities and exchange commission in Washington took steps to ward off further possible litigation. The commission gave blanket exemption from registration under the act to all holding companies whose operations are confined principally to one state and to holding companies that are predominantly operating concerns. The exemptions are temporary and will expire Feb. 3, 1936.

C. S. McCAIN.
[Assoc. Press Photo.]

Under the rulings of the commission exemption is clearly granted to such companies as the Commonwealth Edison company, Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, and Public Service Company of New Jersey.

Other Concerns Invoke Courts.

Meanwhile, the constitutionality of the law was challenged yesterday by several important holding company groups. Among the most important suits filed were those of the Cities Service company and a group of associated firms, the United Light and Power company and several of its subsidiaries, and the North Continent Utilities corporation.

Cities Service in the federal court in Wilmington, Del., asked an injunction to restrain enforcement of the act and set forth that if it was forced to comply with the provisions of the act the holders of company's securities would suffer irreparable losses. Most of its subsidiaries depend on Cities Service for financing, the bill set forth. The system employs more than 31,000 persons whose "background and training make them essential" to the operation of the subsidiary companies, the bill added.

Subsidiaries Join Action.

Associated with the parent company in bringing the action were the Toledo Edison company, Ohio Public Service company, Lake Shore Power company, Ohio Utilities Finance company, Cities Service Power and Light company, and Toledo Power and Light company.

A similar suit was brought in the Supreme court of the District of Columbia by the United Light and Power company and a group of associated firms, including United Light and Railways, Continental Gas and Electric, and American Light and Traction. The companies control operating subsidiaries in 14 states.

C. S. McCain, president of United Light and Power, issued a statement from the company's Chicago office saying the action was brought with no intention of harassing the government but because of the grave issues involved. The company will not register under the act.

Another Court Avoids Ruling.

A petition for a ruling on the validity of the act was dismissed by Federal Judge John P. Nields in Wilmington. The ruling was sought by trustees of the Central West Public Service company in proceedings for reorganization under the bankruptcy act.

Judge Nields said he could not give instructions to the trustees in an ex parte poceeding in which the government was not represented.

A check-up tonight showed that at least thirty-eight suits had been brought in the federal courts by major holding companies and their subsidiaries; that eighty-nine applications for exemption by holding companies and subsidiaries had been filed with the Securities and Exchange commission, and that three applications for registration by minor holding companies had been received.

FIELD APPOINTS NEW COMMODITY SALES MANAGER

Appointment of the first of five commodity sales managers under the new form of organization of Marshall Field & Co. manufacturing division was announced yesterday. R. O. Zachritz has been chosen to handle the division concerned with silk, wool, rayon, and cotton dress goods, as well as imported white goods. The other four are yet to be named.

Resignation of H. R. Boggs as assistant general sales manager of the manufacturing division also was announced. No successor has been chosen, but R. T. Graham, manager of the credit department, will assume the duties of the position temporarily.

JOYCE PREDICTS BETTER YEAR FOR GREAT WESTERN

A substantial improvement in business of the Chicago Great Western railroad during 1936 was forecast yesterday by Patrick Joyce, president and trustee of the road, as details were completed for Attorney Luther M. Walter to serve as co-trustee, effective at midnight tonight.

Joyce warned, however, that the company stands to take a jolt of $500,000 annually in increased operating costs because of the social security act and the new railway pension law.

Use of Money Rises Sharply Over Holiday

The volume of money in circulation rose 81 million dollars in the week ended Wednesday, the heaviest weekly increase that has been recorded in several months, according to the statement of the federal reserve system released yesterday. The heavy withdrawals of currency reflected the demand for cash over the Thanksgiving holiday.

The increase in currency circulation served to check the expansion of bank reserves, which had been rising rapidly for several weeks with the influx of foreign gold. Reserves went up again last week—approximately 7 millions—but the gain was not commensurate with gold importations of 70 millions shown in the statement.

Gold Stock at New Peak.

The week's addition to the country's gold stock sent the total to another new high figure of 9 billion 874 million dollars. Contributing to rapid influx of gold was the continued purchase of American securities by foreigners and the flight of capital from the gold standard countries of Europe.

The last week saw a substantial expansion in the volume of bank credit outstanding in New York. The statement of the New York banks showed an increase of 132 millions in all types of loans and investments. One of the most important factors in this gain was an increase of 66 millions in loans to other banks. Brokers' loans contributed with a gain of 30 millions over the preceding week and holdings of commercial paper were reported 13 millions higher.

Banks Shift Investments.

The New York banks sold 14 millions of government bonds but boosted their investment in other securities by 25 millions. There was a decline of 25 millions in the reserve of the New York banks resulting from the expansion in loans and investments.

The statement of the Chicago banks showed no changes of significance. Commercial loans were 3 millions higher than a week earlier. Holdings of government bonds were unchanged, and investment in other securities dropped 9 millions. Reserves of the Chicago banks increased 17 millions.

EXTRA DIVIDENDS ARE VOTED BY MORE CONCERNS

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—More cheer for stockholders was provided by several corporations yesterday as directors voted back dividends, increased rates or declared extras. Wheeling Steel corporation declared a dividend of 50 cents a share on the 6 per cent preferred stock, payable Dec. 24. On Oct. 1 arrears totaled to $22.50 a share. Blue Ridge corporation voted a payment of 1-10 share of common stock of Central States Electric corporation on each outstanding common share, payable Dec. 17.

New Jersey Zinc company declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share on capital stock, payable Dec. 10. Abraham & Straus, Inc., declared an extra of 15 cents a share on common, payable Dec. 31.

Vulcan Retinning company declared a special dividend of $4 a share on common, payable Jan. 20. Last year a similar special payment was made. American Cigar company voted a stock dividend of 1-20 share of common B stock of American Tobacco for each share of American Cigar common and also a quarterly dividend of $3 a share on the common, both payable on Dec. 16. Previously the company paid $2 quarterly.

NEW YORKERS PAY $71.34 EACH TO OPERATE CITY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.] — Based on a population of 7,154,300 as of July 1, 1933, the per capita cost for the operation and maintenance of the general departments of New York City for the fiscal year ending Dec. 31, 1934, amounted to $71.34, or a total of $510,410,912, according to a survey by the bureau of the census announced today.

Total revenue receipts for the year, including those for the Triborough bridge authority, were $803,017,603, or $112.24 per capita. This was $170,466,324 more than total payments for the year, exclusive of payments for permanent improvements, and $55,581,386 more than the total payments, including those for permanent improvements.

Property taxes represented 61.9 per cent of the total 1934 revenue, compared with 64.7 per cent for 1933, and 73.1 per cent for 1917. A per capita cost of $63.40 was made by Jersey City, the year's expenses being placed at $20,282,221.

WHEAT RALLIES AS WAR SCARES CROP OUT AGAIN

Covering of Shorts Chief Influence.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Tremors set in motion by the international political ferment were charted in the price trend yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Quotations on wheat went up more than a cent a bushel, checking the mildly reactionary market movement that had been in progress for several days.

In Liverpool and Winnipeg wheat prices did not respond as emphatically to the political news as did the market here. The explanation offered was the accumulation of a short interest in wheat here that traders hastened to retire for fear of a sudden explosion in the political pot.

Eastern Speculators Cover.

Eastern speculators were credited with covering a substantial short interest in the market and this brought in other buying from professional operators in the wheat pit.

The market had opened quietly and prices developed no decisive trend until about 11:30 a. m., when wheat was bid up a cent a bushel in the course of a few minutes.

The sudden upward movement in wheat prices caught many traders by surprise because the Liverpool wheat market had closed earlier without showing any pronounced signs of apprehension over war possibilities. Traders hurriedly scanned the news tapes for explanation of the sudden spurt. The absence of new developments suggested that the movement had been started by the buying of traders who wished to cancel their short commitments.

Other Grains Firmer.

Other grains shared only to a limited extent the advance made in wheat. In the corn market prices developed an irregular course. The December future, under which deliveries will begin next week, fell three-quarters of a cent a bushel, while contracts calling for delivery in later months rose moderately. Market receipts of corn are increasing, with 404 cars reported yesterday. Sales of 100,000 to 150,000 bushels of corn "to store" were also reported to have been made.

Closing prices on the May futures, with comparative quotations, follow:

..	Yesterday.	Wednesday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$0.98½	$0.97¼	$0.98⅝
Corn	.59½	.59¼	.59⅝
Oats	.28⅛	.28⅛	28¼
Rye	.51⅝	.51⅛	.51¾

Yesterday's activity in the market was not accompanied by any material expansion in public trading, according to brokers. The volume of transactions was larger than earlier this week but outside interest in grains remains at a minimum.

FRANC FIRMER DESPITE HEAVY LOSS OF GOLD

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—On the strength of Premier Laval's initial success in the debate attending the reconvening of the chamber of deputies the franc today was bolstered up in the foreign exchange market. Under the influence of official support a small squeeze against shorts in the exchange was carried out, lifting the current rate for francs to 6.60½ cents and leaving it at today's close of business 6.58⅞ cents, up ⅜ point from Wednesday's final price. The dollar was worth $1.0068 against francs, compared with $1.0074 Wednesday.

A total of $19,693,000 gold was reported today as engaged in France for American account. In addition $558,000 was engaged in Holland, making a total of $20,251,000 taken in the day. Total gold engagements since Sept. 9 now amount to $777,800,000.

The rally in the franc was accompanied by gains in the other gold bloc currencies. The guilder gained 2 points to 67.69 cents, the Swiss franc went up 1 point to 32.32 cents, but the belga dropped 1 point to 16.90 cents. The pound sterling fell ⅞ cent to $4.93⅞.

Plan to Refund County Bonds Is Modified

Norman S. Taber, municipal finance consultant of New York, yesterday submitted to the county finance committee modifications of the bond refunding plan which he proposed last week. Changes in his plan, he said, overcome legal objections which had made it impractical.

The Taber plan is the same in broad outline as the earlier proposal providing for refunding of only a portion of the $38,000,000 unmatured debt. The $10,000,000 past due obligations would be retired through the sale of an equal amount of new serial bonds. The minimum of unmatured bonds which would be refunded under the plan would be $7,000,000, with a goal of $17,000,000 as the maximum, all of the bonds coming due within the next seven years.

Plan Later Maturities.

In exchange for these bonds Taber would have the county issue bonds of later maturities, with $2,400,000 of bonds maturing each year from 1936 to 1952. To reach this goal it would be necessary to obtain exchanges of some of the heavy maturities of the next few years.

Exchange of $7,000,000 of early maturities would insure the success of the plan, but if holders of more bonds, up to $17,000,000 could be induced to take later maturities, the $10,000,000 bonds to be sold for cash to retire past due claims would be made of short maturities.

If the bonds to be sold for cash could be made to come due in the next few years, he pointed out, they could be sold more advantageously by the county, either commanding substantial premiums for a higher interest rate or permitting the sale of low coupon obligations.

Second Plan Submitted.

County Auditor Lee J. Howard, in accordance with an order of the board of commissioners, submitted a refunding plan which calls for exchange of $35,781,000 bonds maturing after June 1, 1936, for new 20 year callable term bonds and the sale of $11,510,910 new 15 year term bonds, callable in 10 years, to provide cash for the retirement of past due bonds and obligations which mature during the next six months.

The committee took both plans under advisement and will give further consideration to the proposals next week, Maurice F. Kavanagh, chairman said. A new refunding bond ordinance must be adopted before the end of this year if the county is to make a reduction in the bond and interest levy in 1935 taxes.

Roads Ordered to Report Quarterly on Free Passes

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today ordered class one railroads and the Pullman company to report quarterly during 1936 on the number of free passes issued. Officials said the information would give a clearer picture "of how many passengers the railroads are actually carrying."

U. S. JUDGE RESTRAINS COLLECTION OF GUFFEY ACT 15% PENALTIES

Kansas City, Kas., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—A temporary restraining order preventing government officials from collecting a 15 per cent "penalty" or tax from four Kansas coal companies which have refused to sign the code provided in the Guffey coal act was issued today by Federal Judge John C. Pollock. Indications were that the order will remain in force until Judge Pollock returns here in about a month.

Counsel for the coal companies said their clients had received "threats" from the government and declared that administrator of the Guffey act had told certain railroads that their mail contracts would be canceled if they bought coal from concerns not signing the Guffey bill code. The legislation was termed a "camouflaged NRA" by A. L. Berger, one of the attorneys.

CAR LOADINGS RISE SHARPLY IN LAST WEEK

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Railway freight trafic last week rose contraseasonally to 646,503 cars, the first such advance for late November since 1925, the Association of American Railroads announced today.

The gain over the preceding week amounted to 18,173 cars. The week's total was 84,561 cars above a year ago and 60,765 higher than in the 1933 period. Coal contributed most to the advance over the preceding week.

Business Gain Continues on Three Fronts

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—The advance of business on three fronts—wholesale, retail and industrial—continued this week as the buying public, prompted by the colder weather and the imminence of the holiday season, unlossed its purse strings.

Release of Christmas savings funds, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., said today in its weekly review, has intensified interest in the retail division, with purchasing already sufficiently heavy to bring substantial reorders to wholesalers. The sustained improvement of industrial activity has spread more confidence in coming developments.

Upturn Best in Six Weeks.

Retail sales, the agency declared, were pushed ahead at the fastest pace in more than six weeks. Men's and women's apparel took precedence in the upswing, followed by house furnishings. The abrupt broadening of consumer interest enabled nearly all of the slack in early November distribution to be tightened and negated some of the October losses.

"Although the gain over the previous week's volume was held within a range of 3 to 6 per cent," it was pointed out, "the spread over 1934 reached an estimated average increase of 4 to 14 per cent as a whole. The rebound in the east was substantial, as 1934 sales were topped by 5 to 10 per cent.

Confidence Is Increasing.

"The sustained increase of industrial activity has spread more confidence in coming developments, as the durable goods division continued to display the greatest vigor.

"Recovering definitly from the lull during the early part of the month, volume of wholesale distribution has widened steadily. The rise in reorders of the weeks preceding was extended."

Two Chicago Stock Seats Are Posted for Transfer

Memberships on the Chicago Stock exchange were posted yesterday for transfer to Seymour Cromwell Jr. of New York, and to W. K. Archer, Kansas City. A membership on the Chicago Board of Trade was sold for $6,500 net to buyer, an advance of $100 over the preceding transfer.

Bankers Flout Spending Alibi of Roosevelt

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Chicago bankers yesterday were surprised by President Roosevelt's statement in his speech in Atlanta that it was the bankers themselves who in the spring of 1933 suggested a vast increase in the federal debt as a means of ending the depression.

In his address the President stated that certain bankers at that time had advised him that the national debt could safely be expanded from its then level of 21 billions to 55 or 70 billion dollars. A canvass of Chicago bankers failed to disclose any one who could recall any leading banker or any official of the American Bankers' association who had held such views in the spring of 1933.

Call Speech Retaliation.

The banking fraternity here regarded the President's latest broadside as retaliation for the attacks made on the New Deal spending at the recent convention of the American Bankers' association in New Orleans.

The chief banker advocate of big government spending in early 1933, it was recalled, was Marriner S. Eccles, Utah banker, who differed from the vast majority of bankers on the subject of government spending and who later was rewarded by being chosen by the President to head the federal reserve board in Washington. As a self-appointed witness at the senate finance committee hearings in February, 1933, Eccles proposed a big increase in the federal debt, government handouts to states, subsidies of various kinds and cancellation of European war debts.

NEW YORK BANKS SCOFF

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—The President's statement today that prominent bankers had agreed the United States could safely support a public debt of 55 to 70 billion dollars was challenged, and the idea behind it sharply denied, by the heads of fifteen big New York banks and banking firms.

None of them, they said, ever had said or subscribed to such a statement. While none would allow his name to be used for publication, because all were reluctant to be placed in a position of contradicting the President, typical comments closely paralleled one another in substance.

Blame "Obscure Little Banker."

One banker of prominence said:

"I am sure no one ever thought of saying such a thing. It is possible that some obscure little banker may have said something of the sort to Roosevelt, but I am sure no responsible banker did."

The head of a large Wall street bank declared that the only bankers who may have had such expansive ideas must now be in Atlanta.

A member of a large investment banking firm commented as follows:

"I never heard of anybody making or agreeing to such a statement. The outside figure I ever heard mentioned as a figure for the public debt which might be safely supported was 45 billion, but that was mentioned in private conversation and was not in any formal speech or discussion. It is just one of those wild statements the President makes from time to time."

Impossible "Drunk or Sober."

The senior officer of another big commercial bank, manifesting astonishment at the President's remarks, observed that no responsible banker would say such a thing, "drunk or sober." The presidents of three other big banks declared that they knew of nobody who had ever said such a thing and of no one who subscribed to such an idea.

U. S. DEBT MAY TOP 30 BILLION MARK NEXT WEEK

Borrowing Expected to Set New Peak.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—The prospect that the public debt will be pushed above thirty billion dollars for the first time in American history developed today as a result of new treasury financing plans which will be announced next Monday.

The treasury may borrow upward of a billion dollars in new money in addition to the 418 million dollars which must be obtained to refund an issue of 2½ per cent treasury notes maturing Dec. 15. The public debt stood at 29 billion 585 million dollars last Tuesday. It would take new borrowing of a 415 millions to send the total to 30 billions.

Bankers' Advice Ignored.

The treasury financing plans met in a headon collision today with the recommendation of the federal reserve advisory council that the reserve banks reduce their holdings of government securities. The recommendation, filed with the open market committee of the reserve system, was made in the interest of preventing a possible credit inflation.

The council suggested the reserve banks' short term government securities not be renewed on maturity. Such a step would serve to cut down the excess reserves of the member banks of the system, it is asserted and thus provide some safeguard against credit inflation. The recommendation, however, comes at an inopportune time when the treasury is completing its plans for new financing.

Fear to Depress Market.

If the reserve banks were to embark upon a policy of cutting their investment in government securities they would depress the market at a time when the treasury needs a strong market. For this reason officials of the reserve board today indicated that nothing would be done about the council recommendation at this time.

Enough new money will have to be borrowed to replenish the government's cash balance, which has reached the arbitrary minimum set by the treasury. The "working balance" was down to 1 billion 51 million dollars today. Of this total about 290 millions is obligated for the redemption of national bank notes, leaving a net balance of 761 million dollars. The treasury does not want the net balance to fall below 700 millions.

Large Deficits Faced.

Deficits which the treasury may have to pay for out of the cash balance between now and March 15, the next financing date, may aggregate as much as 1 billion dollars. Deficits in income tax payment months, such as December, have amounted to about 160 million dollars, while deficits in no income tax months have ranged from 300 to 500 million dollars.

The treasury, therefore, may have to draw between 760 million and 1 billion dollars out of its cash balance in the next three months and will have to borrow this sum beginning Monday. Facing this crucial financial operation, the New Dealers will not allow the reserve system to follow the recommendation of the private bankers and industrialists who make up the advisory council.

STOCKS SLIDE; WAR, LONG RISE CAUSES SELLING

Speech of Roosevelt Has Little Market Effect.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 29.—Under the influence of the latest "war scare" in Europe and a widely held conviction that the advance has extended far enough to warant a technical correction, the stock market went into a moderate decline today. Selling was in driblets for the most part and few active issues declined more than a point or so.

A few attracted enough fresh demand to score gains on the day, among them being Allied Chemical, which finished a point higher; Continental Motors, which rose fractionally on heavy scale buying; Norfolk and Westrn railway, which advanced nearly 2 points; U. S. Smelting, up 2½, and a scattering of preferreds which rose as much as 4 to 6 points.

Trading was at a leisurely pace throughout the session, volume falling to around 2,190,000 shares.

Roosevelt Talk Lacks Effect.

To all appearances the speculative community was only mildly interested in President Roosevelt's speech at Atlanta, Ga., promising greater economy in the administration of national government. Brokers generally approved the executive's assurance that the nation could look forward to a decreasing budget, but so many similar assurances from high administrative sources have come to naught in the last few years that there is a disposition to await concrete results before putting on any wild celebration nowadays.

Copper shares fared rather better than the mine run of the list. Word recently went the rounds that a rise of 10 cents a pound in the price of metal is on the fire and today's "follow up" to the report was that a large buying wave is rolling up to the industry in anticipation of the supposed markup.

Anaconda Shares Active.

Anaconda was turned over in heavy volume and ranged higher most of the day, although settling back to its starting point in the late trading. Kennecott and Cerro de Pasco scored fractional gains, as did some of the lesser lights of the division. American Smelting promised things of importance in the early dealing, but buckled in the late afternoon. U. S. Smelting at one time was more than 3 points above its previous close.

Traders continued to show a preference for low priced issues, particularly for Curtiss-Wright and Continental Motors, both of which rose to new highs. Most of the airplanes were active and firm. American Telephone crossed 160 for the first time in four years, but could not hold its gain.

In the railroad section, Union Pacific, selling ex dividend, advanced 2½ points on the first sale, but succeeded in retaining only about half its gain. Atchison, New York Central, and Delaware and Hudson dropped a point or so each.

PURDUE TO START CONSTRUCTION OF 'TEST TUBE' TOWN

Project Will Seek Best Type of Home.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Part of the "test tube village" by which Purdue university seems to bring better homes within reach of the nation's wage earners is ready for immediate construction.

The village, known as the Foundation Home and Community Research campus, will be an extended experiment, with university faculty members and their families playing roles as laboratory technicians.

Frank Watson, director of the project, announced today contracts were let for three homes in the first group of nine, the remaining six being in the design stage. He said work on the first three houses will be pushed in an effort to enclose them before severe weather comes.

Employ Variety of Methods.

A variety of construction methods, combinations of building materials, and household equipment will be used.

One home, contracted for at $4,997, will be of reinforced concrete. Another will be of wood frame and stucco, costing $4,681, and the third will be of prefabricated plywood units, costing $4,236. The last two will have no basement. The prices include plumbing, electric, and heating work.

Each will be built for a family of four, having a combined living and dining room, a kitchen, three bedrooms, a bath, and a garage.

Ground Work Started.

Ground work for the homes already is under way. Roads for the first unit have been built, trenches for utilities are being dug, a deep well for the water supply has been drilled, and a sewage disposal plant for 50 houses in under construction. Electric lines will be underground.

Faculty members of Purdue will rent the homes at normal rentals and will use them as practical research laboratories to determine the relative values of types of materials and construction. Exhaustive records will be kept with a view to providing data for determination of how best to meet the needs of average home owners.

In all 143 acres has been allotted for the project, which is sponsored by the Purdue Research Foundation.

ILLINOIS RETAIL GROUP ELECTS ELGIN MAN HEAD

J. C. Spiess of Elgin, chairman of the retail division of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, yesterday was elected president of the new Illinois Federation of Retail associations at an organization meeting attended by the 24 directors. Elmer Wieboldt, Chicago merchant, was named vice president, and Fred P. Seymour of Horders, Inc., was elected treasurer. The executive secretary will be J. T. Meek, who acts in similar capacity for the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

The officers together with eight other directors will compose the board of governors. Named to this body yesterday were Leon Mandel and Harry Engelstein, Chicago retail men; Charles V. Weise of Rockford and H. T. Willis of Champaign, downstate retailers; J. C. Amis, M. D. Weaver, and C. G. Gilbert of Chicago, and A. E. Sandberg of Paxton, representing trade associations.

REPORT DROP IN BUTTER OUTPUT; PRICES ADVANCE

Butter traders who had expected an increase in production of that commodity were much surprised by the report of the American association yesterday, which showed a reduction of nearly ½ per cent as compared with the preceding week, and a drop of 23 per cent from the corresponding week last year. New buying and short covering developed in futures with the close ¾ cent higher.

Colder weather had some effect on egg futures and, while withdrawals from cold storage continue well below those of last year, the close was at gains of ⅛ to ⅝ cent with November at 21 cents per dozen. Sales of butter were 312 cars and eggs 122 cars. Deliveries on November contracts aggregated 15 cars of butter and 1 car of eggs. Prices:

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Cotton goods were fairly active in the gray today with fine yarn constructions in good demand. Raw silk advanced 2 cents. Silk fabrics moved in moderate quantities. Rayon cloths were firmer and sales showed slight improvement. Higher bids several million yards of wool goods asked by the army reflected the firmer position of mills. Burlaps were quiet and steady.

BANKERS FLOUT SPENDING ALIBI OF ROOSEVELT

Deny Urging U.S. Debt Be Increased.

Bankers' association failed to disclose anything which could, by any stretch of the imagination, be used as a basis for the President's assertion.

On the contrary, in an address at New Orleans, Rudolph Hecht, former president of the association, declared that the public debt of 29 billions was within the country's ability safely to support, in view of its vast wealth and income, but he specifically warned against increasing the debt to fantastic figures through relief expenditures on a large scale for an indefinite period.

Question of "Who's Banker."

It is well known among bankers here that certain western bankers have held what they regard as rather fanciful ideas on public spending and the debt, and feel that their prominence seems to have come as a result of their friendliness with the administration within the last year or so.

It also did not escape comment here that certain other individuals, best known for their speculative activities, especially in silver, sometimes have been referred to as bankers when appearing in Washington.

Wall street men could think of only three persons whose views on public finance might to some degree be along lines approaching the ideas attributed to "prominent bankers" by the President.

Two, Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the board of governors of the federal reserve system, and A. P. Giannini, chairman of the Bank of America National Trust and Savings association of San Francisco, are in the category of prominent bankers.

They're Both Circumspect.

Neither Mr. Eccles nor Mr. Giannini, a study of their public statements and speeches reveals, have mentioned such a figure as 50 to 70 billions of dollars.

The third person, Prof. O. M. W. Sprague of Harvard, one-time adviser to the Bank of England and connected in an advisory capacity at one time with the United States treasury, is prominent and at least is a professor of banking. In a recent speech he said that the government debt might increase by "a considerable number of billions."

MANUFACTURERS URGE BALANCED FEDERAL BUDGET

End of Relief Projects, RFC Sought.

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Demands for a balanced federal budget, curtailment of works relief projects, and conversion of the RFC into a liquidating agency are included in a recovery program to be submitted to the National Association of Manufacturers by its committee on government finance.

The program is scheduled for presentment at the association's annual meeting here, Dec. 4 and 5.

The committee's report, expressed the view that "a larger volume of employment, especially continuing employment, can be furnished by increased private savings and investment than by increased taxes and government efforts to spend such taxes to furnish employment."

Cut in Expenses Urged.

"In our opinion," the report said, "the only sound policy for federal, state, and local governments to pursue is to cut expenses to meet reasonable taxes, thus permitting balancing of their budgets as soon as practicable."

The committee recommended the use of federal funds for "absolutely necessary relief" only where private, local, and state resources are actually inadequate.

Conversion of the Reconstruction Finance corporation into a liquidating agency, the committee estimated, would result in a collection of $1,250,000,000 the first year.

Oppose Soldiers' Bonus.

Immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus was opposed.

Another recommendation by the committee urged stopping the creation of public works for the primary purpose of providing relief, "since experience demonstrates that they provide relatively little additional employment, invite waste, and defer balancing of the budget.

The report included a recommendation for discontinuance of the use of public funds "to establish or conduct enterprises competing with private industry and labor."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 29.—The bond market turned irregular today. Although plus and minus signs were scattered generously throughout the list, net changes on the whole were small. Highest grade issues held their ground best, with the second grade and foreign issues yielding to selling pressure.

Total trading amounted to $14,200,000 par value, against $14,340,000 on Wednesday.

Federal Bonds Quiet.

United States obligations were inactive, the turnover being only $310,000 par value, against $770,000 on Wednesday. The range of changes at the close was from 3-32ds up to 6-32ds down.

Foreign bonds were weak. Italian 7s of 1951 fell 2¾ points, while some of the municipals dropped 1⅝ to 3¾ points. British 5½s of 1937 were up ⅝ point.

American Water Works 6s, Tennessee Electric Power 6s, Western Union 4½s, and Remington Rand 5½s were the bright spots in the domestic group.

Other Issues Decline.

On the loss side were American Rolling Mill 4¼s, down 3 points; Marion Steam Shovel 6s, down 6½ points.

The momentum of the rails from the last few trading sessions was insufficient to offset today's selling. Atlantic Coast Line 4½s were up a half point, Baltimore and Ohio 4½s were down; Baltimore and Ohio 6s and Illinois Central refunding 4s closed higher and Delaware and Hudson 4s, Louisville and Nashville 4½s, and Nickel Plate were down.

Midland Steel Products.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly give me a report on Midland Steel Products common?—D. A. T.

Answer: Midland Steel Products company, Detroit and Cleveland, manufactures automobile frames, parts, brakes and various other iron and steel products for the automobile industry.

Last July the company negotiated a contract to supply Chrysler with about $6,000,000 of chassis frames for 1936.

In 1934 higher operating costs checked the benefits that would otherwise have resulted from the increased activity of automobile manufacturers. In the first nine months of 1935, however, net income was $743,000, or 37 cents per common share. This was twice earnings of $374,000, which was equal to only 66 per cent of first preferred dividend requirements, for the corresponding 1934 period.

Net income for all of 1934 was only $681,000, which failed to cover first preferred dividend requirements, against $673,000 for 1933 and a loss of $222,000 for 1932. In 1931 net income was $776,000, or 27 cents per share of second preferred.

Current position on Dec. 31, 1934, was satisfactory. Cash assets alone were almost five times total current liabilities.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 94,925 shares of $100 par 8 per cent cumulative first preferred, 57,900 shares of $2 dividend no par second preferred [noncumulative], and 234,915 shares of no par common.

On May 1, 1935, directors cleared up all back dividends on the first preferred and have continued payments to date. Nothing has been paid on the noncumulative preferred or common shares since 1932.

California Water Service.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly send me your opinion on California Water Service 5s, due 1958?—H. E. M.

Answer: California Water Service company first mortgage 5s, due April 1, 1958, are considered sound.

The company, an operating subsidiary of Federal Water Service corporation, is the largest privately owned water utility system on the Pacific coast, serving a population of 295,000 in twenty-nine communities in California.

Fixed charges have been earned by a good margin [1.73 times in 1934] and current position is satisfactory. The bonds are secured by a first mortgage on all assets of the company. They are redeemable at 106 to April 1, 1936, the call price decreasing thereafter as maturity date approaches.

INLAND STEEL SELLS 10 MILLION ISSUE OF BONDS

Considers Further Large Refunding Plan.

Reports of the sale of $10,000,000 of ten year 3 per cent first mortgage bonds, series C, to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. were confirmed yesterday by L. E. Block, chairman of the Inland Steel company. Block also said Inland is considering a plan for additional refinancing in the next few months which with the present financing would complete a refunding operation involving the entire outstanding indebtedness of $39,600,000.

Proceeds of the current issue will be used to redeem on Feb. 1, 1936, the $13,800,000 of 4½ per cent series B first mortgage bonds, due Feb. 1, 1981, at 102½ and accrued interest. Including the premium to be paid this operation will require an outlay of $14,145,000. Accordingly, the company will be called upon to draw on its cash reserve to the amount of approximately $4,000,000.

Sell Issue Privately.

The investment banking house is disposing of the issue privately. Accordingly, no registration of the securities will be made with the securities and exchange commission.

The second part of the refunding operation, if completed, will involve $25,800,000 of series A first mortgage bonds due April 1, 1978. Whether further reduction of the funded debt is contemplated in this operation was not disclosed.

Refinancing of the series B issue at the lower interest rate, together with the reduction in principal, will cut annual interest charges from $620,000 to $300,000.

Fixed Charges Reduced.

Almost $400,000 more in yearly charges would be saved if the company refunds its A series without reduction in principal. If its interest rate is cut from 4½ to 3 per cent, as in the current financing, charges would be reduced from $1,161,000 to $774,000.

An offering of $2,000,000 in ten year serial notes of the Keystone Steel and Wire company by F. S. Moseley & Co. and N. L. Rogers & Co. of Peoria was sold quickly yesterday at prices to yield from 1.5 to 4.25 per cent, depending on maturity.

Boston Elevated Railway has called its 10 year 5 per cent bonds due July 1, 1940, as of Jan. 1, 1936, at 101 and accrued interest. There are $4,200,000 of the bonds outstanding.

COTTON UNDERTONE EASY; PRICES DROP 2 TO 7 POINTS

Cotton markets showed an easy undertone yesterday in sympathy with a decline in Liverpool and scattered selling based on the weakness in stocks. Closing trades in Chicago were 2 to 6 points lower on the active futures and other markets were 3 to 7 points lower than Wednesday. Selling attributed to the far east uncovered stop-loss orders in Liverpool, while trade buying checked the decline abroad.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to 5 points lower with New Orleans 12.15 cents, Galveston and Houston 12.05 cents, and New York 12.20 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound:

ALL LIVE STOCK PRICES HIT NEW NOVEMBER PEAKS

Rejected Show Cattle Set Day's Top Quotation.

New November peaks were established on all live stock here in yesterday's lively post-holiday trade. Buying centered in meat animals culled from "show" herds which raised the quality of offerings above average.

Steers rejected from the carlot division of the show sold at $15.25, the highest price for cattle on the open market since May and the best for this season of the year since 1929. A liberal showing, mostly 950 to 1,050 pound yearlings, brought $14 to $14.75.

The comparatively few regular market steers offered, consisting largely of fair to good grades, sold from $8 to $11. Prices for all good beef cattle were strong to 25 cents above Wednesday's levels, top classes indicating the sharpest advances for the day.

Hog Prices Advance.

Hogs originally intended for the show held the spotlight in this division. Demand was the liveliest of the season and prices moved 15 to 25 cents above Wednesday. Several lots of selected 195 to 235 pound "show hogs" reached $12.20, processing tax included, the highest November mark since 1926.

Numerous loads of regular market hogs reached $12.15 with the bulk of the day's offerings of 150 to 300 pound averages bringing $11.95 to $12.15. Sows, 275 to 500 pounds, sold at $11.25 to $11.65. The average price for the session at $12.05 showed a gain of 20 cents over Wednesday and 30 cents above the close of last week.

Lambs Reach Five Year Top.

Lamb prices rose 15 to 25 cents to the highest levels since June, 1930. Yesterday's peak at $11.65 was 15 cents over the previous high mark of the season. Packers bought freely both natives and fed westerns, paying up to $11.60, including some 94 pound Colorado stock at this figure. Tops show an advance of $1 in 11 days. Fed western yearling wethers sold at $9.25 to $9.75, with freshly shorn stock at $8.50. Old ewes went for slaughter at $5.50 and under.

LEGAL NOTICES.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that Daniel O. Hastings, Receiver of GENERAL THEATRES EQUIPMENT, INC., appointed by the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware, has filed in the said Court his petition for the approval of an agreement for the settlement of controversies between him, as such receiver, and General Theatres Equipment, Inc., and All Continent Corporation and William Fox, which controversies and agreement are more fully hereinafter described, and that the said petition has been set down for hearing before the Chancellor of the State of Delaware, in the Court of Chancery, County Court House, Wilmington, Delaware, on the 6th day of December, A. D. 1935, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, at which time all persons interested may attend and be heard relative to the prayers of the said petition, or thereafter be barred from objecting to any Order which may be made in relation thereto.

All Continent Corporation has filed a claim in the said receivership proceeding for $2,300,000, based upon two promissory notes of General Theatres Equipment, Inc., of aggregate face value of such amount, to which claim exceptions have been filed by the said Receiver on the ground, among others, that the said notes represent an alleged indebtedness created by fraud. Said receiver has filed a suit against All Continent Corporation and William Fox seeking the cancellation of a certain settlement agreement between General Theatres Equipment, Inc., and William Fox, the aforesaid promissory notes and certain instruments collateral thereto, and further seeking a decree requiring the defendants to indemnify the said receiver from any claim which may be asserted in respect of a promissory note of General Theatres Equipment, Inc., in the face amount of $300,000 held by The Philadelphia National Bank, and further seeking the recovery of all collateral security given in connection with the aforesaid promissory notes and all sums heretofore paid in reduction thereof and on account of interest thereon, and other relief.

Under the proposed settlement agreement between the said Receiver and All Continent Corporation and William Fox the aforesaid claim of All Continent Corporation would be reduced to $600,000 and allowed in that sum and title to the collateral security held by All Continent Corporation with respect thereof would be confirmed to it, and the suit of said Receiver against All Continent Corporation and William Fox, above described, would be dismissed.

All Continent Corporation and Eva Fox have commenced a suit against Fox Film Corporation and others, including the said Receiver and General Theatres Equipment, Inc., in the Supreme Court of the State of New York. Under the said proposed settlement agreement, the said suit will be dismissed.

The foregoing is a summary only, and for a fuller description of the subject-matter thereof, reference is hereby made to the petition of the said receiver for the approval of the said proposed settlement agreement on file in the office of the Register in Chancery, County Court House, Wilmington, Delaware.
